GIANTS WIN, 6 TO 4; CROWD SETS RECORD FOR POLO GROUNDS

FRISCH'S PLAYING SPARKLES

WASHINGTON'S RALLY FAILS

Working out of a desperate hole in the ninth inning, when the game hung by a thread, the Giants won the third and poorest contest of the world's series yesterday, 6 to 4, and the betting at nightfall was 2 to 1 that they would beat the Senators for the baseball championship. But yesterday neither team looked like a champion. The untutored observer would have said that they were two second-division outfits fighting it out in a city series.

However, the crowd was big and seemed to enjoy what the experts called mediocre baseball. In fact, it was the biggest crowd in the history of the Polo Grounds. The official paid attendance at the first New York game of the series was 47,608 and the gross receipts were $188,572. Although these figures are far below the record of records made at the Yankee Stadium in 1923, they excel the mark established at the fourth game last October, when 46,502 paid $181,422 at the Polo Grounds. Altogether more than 50,000 spectators saw the contest.

Yesterday's baseball didn't deserve such glamorous figures. It ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. It was ridiculous when each team used four pitchers and the fielding sagged down to second-rate levels. But it was sublime whenever Frankie Frisch got his hands on a ball. With an injured finger on his right hand and an injured finger on his left hand and a cap that wouldn't stay on his head, the New York captain made two miraculous catches in short center and short right field. He played the game of a lifetime, and the only other hero worth mentioning in the same breath with him was Solemn John Watson, who ambled nonchalantly and sleepily from the bull pen in the ninth with the bases full of Senators and one out and retired the side in a few minutes.

Still, the Giants won and the game goes into the record as their second victory of the series, giving them a 2-1 edge on Washington. The Senators are in a bad plight. They must win today or virtually concede defeat. John McGraw can afford to experiment with Virgil Barnes, but Bucky Harris will be forced to gamble with somebody else than Walter Johnson, who pitched twelve hard innings Saturday and is not quite ready yet.

Peckinpaugh Pulled Tendon.

Besides, Washington lost Roger Peckinpaugh yesterday, and their cup of woe is running over. How long the great hero of Sunday's game will be out is a question, but he spent two hours yesterday afternoon with his left leg packed in ice. In the long run the Sunday victory may be a costly one, for it was while he was sprinting to first base after driving the winning run across the plate that the veteran shortstop pulled a tendon in his leg.

With characteristic gameness, he tried to play yesterday, but he lasted only two innings and a fraction. In the third, Oswald Bluege, third baseman, moved to short and Ralph Miller, who began life humble as a Phillie, went to third, and Peck went to the clubhouse. Manager Harris was dubious after the game whether Peck would get another chance to beat the Giants this series.

There was no greater tribute to the raw, sheer courage of the Senators than their reaction to this blow of fate. Many a team would have given up the ghost, particularly since Fred Firpo Marberry, another hero of the Sabbath, was giving a sad exhibition in the box. The Giants were three runs ahead then and playing on their own field, but the Senators, fighting ahead step by step, had the satisfaction of bringing more gray hairs to the gray head of John McGraw in the ninth.

It was Washington's doughty spirit, probably, which accounted for the attitude of the crowd. From the very beginning a large section of the Giants' biggest crowd had been for the visitors. After Peckinpaugh went out, the Senators were even more appealing. In the fourth, eighth and ninth, when the Senators rallied their strongest, thousands of spectators broke out in concerted clapping and shouting. At Washington, under similar circumstances, this would be sacrilege and profanation, but in New York it was sportsmanship.

Scandal Not Forgotten Here.

The scandal, too, provided an undertone of sentiment for Washington—more than it did even in the Capital. You heard no Washington fan shout "Where's Jimmy O'Connell?" when the batteries were being announced or any District of Columbia enthusiast yell, "Put Cozy Dolan on the coaching lines!" But they relied that yesterday—not many times, but too many.

It was a New York crowd, of course, and a popular referendum would have favored the Giants. But vivid enthusiasm and bitter partisanship were missing. People accounted for that last year by saying two New York clubs were playing, but the real explanation now seems to be that local fandom, although

IMMEDIATE ELECTION LOOMING IN BRITAIN

MacDonald Rejects Both Liberal and Tory Censure Moves and May Fall Tomorrow.

HE WILL ASK DISSOLUTION

Only a Liberal Backdown, It Is Said, Can Avert Contest—Politicians Active.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Labor Government, in Cabinet council, today decided to refuse both the Conservative vote of censure on the Government for withdrawing the prosecution of the editor of a Communist weekly and the Liberal amendment calling for a Parliamentary inquiry.

This decision will be announced in the House of Commons when it meets on Wednesday, and it seems likely to have an important reaction on the political situation.

The London Times goes so far as to assert the inevitability of a general election unless the Liberals recede entirely from the position they have hitherto taken up.

"The Cabinet will make it perfectly plain," says The London Times, "that if either the vote of censure or the Liberal amendment is carried against them the Prime Minister will advise the King to dissolve Parliament, and that if a dissolution is granted it will be followed by an appeal to the country early in November."

It was again made clear at the Cabinet meeting that whatever course events may take the safety of the Irish bill will not be imperiled. If the Government is defeated on Wednesday night the House of Commons will certainly meet again to pass the Irish bill through its remaining stages after it comes from the House of Lords. The only uncertain attitude is that of the Liberals, now that a crash is inevitable if their amendment is carried. A judicial inquiry instead of an investigation by a Parliamentary committee may be suggested as a compromise, but not from the Labor side of the House, the Cabinet having decided against offering such an alternative.

In a report issued today of an interview given by Ramsay MacDonald to Wickham Steed for The Review of Reviews the Prime Minister questions whether the Liberal proposal to have the withdrawal of the Communist prosecution submitted to Parliamentary inquiry is fair play.

"We are to submit our case in advance," he says, "to a select committee, on which our political opponents will hold a majority of 7 to 3. That is to say, men who will have voted against us before acting as our judges have our reputation in their hands.

"Though the Government has no majority, it has a right to demand fair play. We are not a gang of footpads."

The Prime Minister asked why the Liberals, if they did not object to the principle of the treaty with Russia, did not consult Labor about what could best be done in the national interest, instead of playing a party game.

The development of the political situation lent additional interest to speeches delivered tonight throughout the country by Mr. Lloyd George for the Liberals, Sidney Webb and Ben Spoor, chief whip for the Government, and Neville Chamberlain, L. S. Amery, Mr. Bridgeman and other prominent Conservatives.

If there was a member of Parliament wanting for a third election in two years, said Mr. Lloyd George, he should be locked up. If there were a third election now, the reason would be that a body of extremists behind the Prime Minister had forced him to take a course to which he was opposed, but which he could not resist because of the pressure behind him. For the Prime Minister to put the country to the expense and inconvenience of a general election rather than have a Parliamentary inquiry into facts was an outrage upon his prerogative. If the Government could not restrain the wild men now, when failure to restrain them meant defeat and disaster, what could

WON'T ACCEPT A SET CREED

RUMORS OF SPLIT DENIED

Dr. Fosdick Says He Will Not Lead a Movement to Form a New Congregation.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist and a professor in Union Theological Seminary, has declined to become a Presbyterian and he has sent in his resignation as special preacher at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street.

The resignation has not yet been accepted, and there are many who doubt whether or not the First Church will let him go. A report was current last night that a group of the members of the First Church, including some of the officers, are considering withdrawing, forming an independent congregation, hiring a large hall and inviting Dr. Fosdick to be the regular preacher. There is intense feeling in the church.

When Dr. Fosdick was told of the rumor last evening at his home he said: "Under no circumstances would I lead a movement that would split the First Presbyterian Church."

He will preach next Sunday in the First Church and, probably later. No time was specified as to when his resignation, if accepted, would take effect.

W. M. Kingsley Denies Split.

William M. Kingsley, Vice President of the United States Trust Company, who is a trustee of the church, Chairman of the Board of Ushers and President of the Directors of the Union Theological Seminary, said last night:

"I absolutely deny that there has been any movement on the part of any group of people in the church to go to an outside hall or do anything of that sort."

The Presbytery of New York met yesterday in the chapel of the First Church and accepted unanimously and without debate a report of its special committee, known as "the Fosdick Committee," submitted by the Chairman, the Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work.

The report contained a letter from Dr. Work to Dr. Fosdick informing him officially of the action of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church taken last May in Grand Rapids, Mich., which recommended that Dr. Fosdick seek entrance into the Presbyterian ministry; or, if he could not see his way clear to do this, to sever his relation with the First Church.

The report also embodied a reply from Dr. Fosdick to Dr. Work in which Dr. Fosdick declined to become a Presbyterian and set forth his reasons for not wishing to be bound by a set creed.

On recommendation of Dr. Work, the Presbytery adopted the resolution to submit the documents in the case to the First Presbyterian Church for consideration and action and to ask the First Church to report back to the Presbytery at its next meeting, on Nov. 10.

Dr. Fosdick sent in his resignation once before but the session would not accept it. This was in May, last year, after the Presbyterian General Assembly instructed the New York Presbytery to investigate the charges that the preaching at the First Church did not conform to Presbyterian standards.

It is understood that the session of the First Church will hold a meeting very soon to receive formally Dr. Fosdick's resignation, which is now in the hands of the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, the 81-year-old pastor of the First Church. The general impression, in view of the attitude of the General Assembly, is that the majority will vote to accept the resignation.

Dr. Fosdick, in his letter to Dr. Work, declines to make a "moral surrender." The letter follows:

My dear Dr. Work:

I have before me your letter of Sept. 1, informing me of the action of the General Assembly with reference to my relationship with the First Presbyterian Church of New York. I agree with you that this action is a sincere and kindly endeavor to find a solution for a trying situation and, from

Root Helps Found a Society for Toleration; Many Masons and Knights of Columbus in It

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—With a view to fostering patriotic ideals and "a spirit of toleration in economics, politics and religion," fifty Protestants, nearly all members of the Masonic Order, and a like number of Catholics, the majority affiliated with the Knights of Columbus, met tonight for formal organization of the Hamilton-Jefferson Association, announced as a "non-secret, non-sectarian and non-partisan" group.

Gathered at a dinner in a local hotel, the charter members of the association, all leading business men of Utica, heard the aims and objects of the organization outlined by leaders in each of the two fraternal bodies, and summed up in the principal address of the evening by Elihu Root, formerly United States Secretary of State and a resident of Clinton, near here.

Mr. Root, who became a member of the association only after he had been assured of its non-sectarian character, expressed the belief that by having a membership drawn equally from the Protestant and Catholic faiths, the organization had gone a long way toward ultimate success.

"We have hit upon the life-giving properties," he said, "the lack of which killed other great patriotic movements. We have here the two great national bodies, the Masons and Knights of Columbus, from which a large percentage of the membership may be drawn."

It was explained at the dinner that the membership list of the parent charter of the organization is limited to 100 men, of whom half must represent each religious faith. To maintain the desired balance, new members will be admitted in pairs, one Protestant and one Catholic. At the monthly meetings of the association subjects concerning general welfare will be discussed and acted upon. According to the purposes outlined at the dinner, the United States Constitution will be held up as "an antidote for the evils of the day."

Organization of the association was brought about when Arthur J. Foley, member of the Knights of Columbus, discussed its formation with William Ross Lee, former District Attorney of Oneida County and a Mason. The plan was broached to Andrew F. Kelley, director of the Utica branch of the National Catholic Welfare Council, who, after approving it, suggested presenting it to Mr. Root.

The name of the organization was suggested by Mr. Root as one which signified the combination of two groups holding divergent views. Incorporation of the association followed selection of its member from foremost Catholics and Protestants of Utica.

COOLIDGE SEES GAIN IN ANTI-WAR IDEAS

LAUDS "GREATEST CHARITY"

Organization's Work Proves Materialism Is Not Dominant, President Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Presiding at the annual meeting of the National Red Cross here today, in his capacity as chief of the organization, President Coolidge in a speech referred to the ideal of "no more wars" as one for which the race was "striving and yearning."

This ideal, he said, "is making progress," and he continued:

"The thought of ridding society of the very institution of war has seized powerfully on the minds of men. We shall not get it done by some magic formula in some inspired moment. But it is going to be done because men and women demand it. We are making more progress in this direction than we yet fully realize."

Other addresses were delivered by General Hines of the Veterans' Bureau, Colonel D. H. Pond of the Cleveland Chapter and Judge John Barton Payne, Chairman of the Central Committee of the Red Cross.

Members of the diplomatic corps attended the session tonight, when the foreign and pan-American service was discussed.

Text of the President's Speech.

President Coolidge said:

The annual meeting of the American Red Cross is an occasion for taking account of the national progress in ways of benevolence, charity and organized social effort. No matter how highly we may estimate the many other agencies to promote the common good, we realize that the Red Cross is a sort of meeting point for all kinds of effort to relieve distress and advance the general welfare.

The Red Cross is devoted to no special program. It indulges in no propaganda. It knows no creed, no party, no politics, no classes or groups. It sees humanity as a whole, into all of which may come elements which bring suffering, pestilence, misfortune in any of its myriad forms. Its sole purpose is to relieve these.

It does not try to reorganize human relationships so as to banish unhappiness or misfortune. It knows no formula for setting up an Utopia, no program to abolish poverty. It has not tried to prevent earthquakes or to convince active volcanoes of the error of their ways. But it has a definite, comprehensive and intensely practical program of helping those who need help, when they need it, and where it is needed.

It believes that food is more helpful to hungry people than advice; has found that hunger affects people very much the same in all countries, and that the method of coping with it is by feeding its victims. It is absolutely the only organization I have known that does any good by "looking for trouble."

Everybody is the friend of the Red Cross, because it does not insist on any controversies. We have not all been able to agree on how to rid society of poverty, but we can all agree with the Red Cross in helping the poor. We hope that civilization will learn how to outlaw wars, but till then the Red Cross will be ready to alleviate the sufferings of war in every possible way, and we will all be glad to help in that work of mercy.

The American Red Cross is proof that materialism is not the dominant motive of the people of the United States. I doubt if there is another country in which so great an amount of unselfish effort is put forth for social and civil betterment.

To this unquenchable altruism of our people the American Red Cross offers a practical and efficient mode of expression. By adding to lofty ideals its practical efficiency it makes a double appeal. "Common sense" has become almost a national term. It describes a national way of thinking.

When we consider aiding our fellow man our common sense tells us to look for the right method of liberating our generosity. We want to be sure that

SMITH SAYS DAVIS MEANS PROSPERITY

SCORES OIL AND NEWBERRY

Declares He Can Supply Hughes With Plenty of Issues Besides the Personality of Coolidge.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 6.—Keeping the promise he made at the Democratic Convention at Madison Square Garden last July to take off his coat and vest and work for the election of the party's national standard bearers, Governor Alfred E. Smith spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience of New Englanders here tonight and was wildly cheered when he urged that the prosperity and welfare of the country be restored by the election of John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan and a Democratic Senate and House in November.

Appearing on the same platform with New Hampshire's local Democratic candidates at the Chateau, the local town hall, the New York Governor received the same sort of reception as he usually gets when he speaks in his own city.

When Governor Fred H. Brown, Democratic candidate for re-election here, told about the troubles he had to get legislation past a hostile State Senate, Governor Smith was reminded of his own fights at Albany, and he devoted part of a speech he had reserved entirely for national issues to New York State problems.

But the Governor launched vigorously into national issues and talked of the oil scandal to the delight of his audience. He ridiculed the campaign of silence adopted by President Coolidge and contrasted it with the frankness of other Presidents, who, he said, were not afraid to take the people into their confidence and convey a message to them when it was needed.

Challenges Hughes on Issues.

"Silent men don't go," said the Governor. "The country hasn't had very many of that kind. Lincoln spoke some words that were heard around the earth. Washington, nor Jefferson, nor Cleveland, nor Theodore Roosevelt, nor Woodrow Wilson were silent men."

Quoting from a recent speech by Secretary Hughes these words: "There are no issues; Coolidge is the only issue; why should there be a change?" Governor Smith said he would like to have Secretary Hughes on the platform with him a few minutes and he would tell him about issues by the thousands. He then took up the oil investigation.

"Either they weren't in on it or they haven't any brains," shouted the Governor.

Into his argument the Governor wove the question of party responsibility to the people. In 1920 he said the Republicans promised "the very earth itself."

"Wool growers in the West," he said, "were promised higher prices and the people cheaper clothing in the East. German-Americans were promised the right sort of reparations, while Italian voters were told that Fiume would be restored to their country.

"And they promised the Irish that the new President would recognize the Irish Republic. All they did on that last score was to stop the Irish from parading in Boston."

"The Republicans say there are no issues," went on the Governor, "but they cannot rub out the blot of the purchase of a seat in the United States Senate and they cannot rub out the record showing that Senator Newberry of Michigan continued to participate in the proceedings of the Senate up to the hour when he was indicted.

Recalls Record of Scandals.

"I suppose," said the Governor, while the audience cheered again and again, "that the black record of the oil scandal is not an issue in this campaign? There is more to that matter than the bribery of a Cabinet officer or the transfer of a lease from one department to another."

The Governor read from the indictment of former Secretary Fall and said the real question was the unfaithfulness of a public officer. The Governor then wanted to know if the scandal in the Veterans' Bureau was not an issue.

"Where hundreds of millions of dollars were diverted from the care of the sick and maimed in the war?" he asked.

He told how when the Republicans refused to demand a State appropriation to build a veterans' hospital he himself had

DAVIS DENOUNCES REFUSAL TO ACCEPT LEAGUE INVITATION

Tells Albany Crowd He Would Have Entered Geneva Conferences If President.

ASSAILS COOLIDGE VIEW

SECRETARY WILBUR SCORED

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Beginning a speaking trip across New York State, John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, announced in a speech at Harmanus Bleecker Hall here tonight that if he had been President he would have accepted the invitation of the Assembly of the League of Nations for the United States to attend the conference at Geneva, instead of having declined it.

Mr. Davis reiterated his declaration that if elected President he would accept the invitation for the Conference for the Limitation of Armaments which the League expects to hold next June, and declared that the people of the United States were entitled to know the foreign policy of the present Administration, or whether it had any foreign policy.

The Democratic nominee characterized as "stale and vapid" the words of President Coolidge that we do not propose to entrust to any other power or combination of powers any authority to make up our minds for us, and declared that America could not escape its responsibility in such a way.

After assailing the Republican Party as having encouraged the growth of sectional feeling by arraying the industrial East against the agricultural West, Mr. Davis declared that the suppressed speech of Secretary Wilbur of the Navy would have revived the "bloody shirt" in an attempt to array the North against the South. He again attacked President Coolidge for failing to reduce sugar duties and cited as an instance of exorbitant profits of "overprotected industries" those of the Great Western Sugar Company, which, he said, amounted to $12,000,000 a year on a capital of $10,000,000.

10,000 March in Albany Parade.

The meeting at Albany was preceded by an old fashioned political parade with twelve bands, three drum corps and approximately 10,000 marchers, with an accompaniment of blank shots from revolvers, roman candles and red fire.

Albany, formerly strongly Republican, gave Mr. Davis a great welcome, and the candidate was met on his arrival by Mayor William S. Hackett, Edwin Corning, Democratic leader, and other prominent Democrats. With Governor Alfred E. Smith speaking for the Democratic national ticket in New England, Mr. Davis both here and at Schenectady urged the re-election of the Governor, every mention of the latter's name bringing enthusiastic applause.

The meeting was one of the most demonstrative that Mr. Davis has addressed since his nomination.

"Cal vetoed the bonus; don't forget that," a World War veteran shouted as Mr. Davis rose to speak. "Send him back to the farm."

The nominee in his speech again referred to his controversy with Secretary Mellon and cited the report of the Federal Trade Commission, published in this morning's newspapers, as substantiating his assertion that the Aluminum Corporation of America, found by the commission to be a monopoly, had profited hugely by an excessive tariff.

"I will rest the whole tariff argument on that one incident," Mr. Davis said. "I am not surprised that Mr. Mellon said he would engage in no further controversy with me, but would leave it to the company to answer.

"One decision lies before us which cannot be much longer avoided or postponed," Mr. Davis said in indicating what would be his position on international questions if he should be elected. "What steps shall we take to insure our national security and our peace abroad?

"I have been following the discussions at Geneva and I confess that it gives me grave concern to see all the

REGISTRATION UP BY 26 PER CENT.

Fourth Assembly District in Bronx Is Only One to Fall Below Four Years Ago.

The heaviest first day's registration in the city's history followed a widespread campaign to "get out the vote." Yesterday's total figures for all boroughs were 187,845, which exceeded by fully 26 per cent. the former record for the day, 149,350, in 1920, the last Presidential year.

Detailed comparison of the gains in boroughs over the corresponding day in 1920 showed the following percentage increases: Manhattan, 20; Bronx, 50; Brooklyn, 22½; Queens, 40, and Richmond, 46.

Returns from the Republican strongholds in Manhattan were the last to come in, but when they did they showed notable strides in the registration. The Seventh Assembly District reported 2,958 registrants, where it produced only 2,409 four years ago. The Ninth Assembly District did even better, with 4,713, compared to a former 3,331, and was matched by the Fifteenth Assembly District with comparative figures of 4,383 and 3,687.

The Fourth Assembly District, known for Socialist tendencies, showed that party leaders there had been actively at work, the registration more than doubling that of 1920. The same held true in the Sixth Assembly District, where the Socialists are also organized.

Much satisfaction was expressed by Republican campaign boards over the showing in Manhattan.

Brooklyn also showed particular activity in the Republican districts. The party workers or else the inclinations of the party rank and file worked to minimize the stay-at-homes.

The Bronx produced the only Assembly District in the entire city which fell below the registration figure for the first day in the 1920 registration. This was the Fourth District, where 2,397 voters qualified the first day of the week in 1920 and only 1,943 appeared yesterday. Otherwise, the borough showed decisive gains in every district.

The substantial gain in Queens was believed to reflect in rather accurate degree the augmented voting population that had come to that borough as a result of the extensive housing development there in the last four years. The borough total, 1924 compared with 1920, was 20,805 to 14,605.

Richmond also made a strong representation with a 1924 "first day" total of 4,414, against 3,003 in 1920, figures that might be explained by census gains or by keener interest in the candidates and issues in the present campaign.

Apparent anxiety in both political and civic circles this year lest the 1924 election repeat the apathy noted in 1920 was reflected in the unusual efforts being made on all sides to "get out the vote."

This activity almost overshadowed the elaborate mechanical preparations which were completed smoothly and in good time by the Board of Elections. Additional election inspectors who had not been sworn in previously were taking the oath in the Municipal Building all day yesterday so insure that the 2,900 polling places throughout the five boroughs were fully manned.

The respective political campaign

WOULD ASK COOLIDGE FOR TARIFF REPORT ON ALUMINUM RATES

Democratic Chairman Calls on Mellon to Join in Request for Unpublished Data.

SHAVER IS FORCING ATTACK

He Says Report After a Year of Investigation Showed Duties Too High.

ALIEN LABOR BROUGHT IN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Chairman Clem L. Shaver of the Democratic National Committee called on Secretary Mellon today to join in a request to President Coolidge for authority to the Tariff Commission to publish the results of its inquiry into whether the Fordney tariff rates on aluminum were adequate, inadequate or excessive. Mr. Shaver said the committee did not intend to let up in its drive to bring out the facts.

Secretary Mellon declined to discuss the situation today. It was stated at the Washington office of the Aluminum Company of America that the company would probably make a complete answer to the Federal Trade Commission's report of yesterday, calling the concern a monopoly operating in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Chairman Shaver declared that the Secretary of the Treasury should assist in making public the reports on tariff rates in order that the public might have an opportunity of knowing definitely whether the aluminum company was profiting unduly from the tariff. The Democratic Chairman scored the Secretary for coming to the defense of the company when it was under fire some time ago.

Mr. Shaver's Statement.

Mr. Shaver's statement reads:

"More than a week ago the public press published reports of the enormous earnings of the aluminum company during 1923. The Democratic National Committee and a number of newspapers charged that the protection given to the aluminum trust by the Fordney bill was excessive and made possible the company's heavy earnings at the expense of the general public, and particularly housewives and hospitals, because aluminum utensils are indispensable articles in every home and hospital.

"Secretary Mellon, speaking for the aluminum company, which is owned chiefly by members of the Mellon family, promptly came to the defense of the aluminum company, denying that it was a monopoly or that it was the beneficiary of the existing high tariff duties on aluminum and aluminum products.

"Information came to the Democratic National Committee that, after an investigation covering approximately one year, the United States Tariff Commission had found the aluminum duties unnecessarily high, and it invited Mr. Mellon to join in urging the President to make public the commission's findings. Mr. Mellon has not as yet either accepted the invitation or commented on it.

"Mr. Mellon's denial that the aluminum company is a trust or monopoly is answered by the Federal Trade Commission's report on its investigation, made at the direction of the Senate. The commission finds the aluminum company, through itself and subsidiaries, to have a 'practically complete monopoly of the production of aluminum in the United States', that it and its associate corporations are guilty of 'price discriminations between customers,' and that methods of the aluminum company of America appear to disclose repeated violations of a consent decree which had been entered against the aluminum company under the Sherman Anti-Trust act.

"The Democratic National Committee holds that, in view of Mr. Mellon's official association with the Administration and his large financial interest in the Aluminum Company, again declared to be a monopoly, the direct beneficiary to the extent of millions of dollars annually of the Fordney tariff duties, he should join with it in urging the President to make known the findings of the Tariff Commission on the aluminum duties. Only by making public that report can it be officially established whether Mr. Mellon was as wrong in asserting, as he did through the press, that the Aluminum Company is not profiting unduly from the tariff, as he was in error in asserting that the company is not a monopoly.

"Roy A. Hunt, Vice President of the Aluminum Company, commenting on the publication of the Trade Commission's report, thinks 'the time of its issuance is peculiar,' since it appears only one month prior to the election. Doubtless Mr. Hunt and others who are the very substantial beneficiaries of the exorbitant aluminum rates would have preferred to have the Trade Commission defer making its report until after the election. It is to be hoped Mr. Mellon will not take this selfish attitude toward publicity for the Tariff Commission's report on its aluminum tariff investigation.

"The Fordney bill increased the tariff on aluminum pig from 2 to 5 cents, and substantially trebled the rates on aluminum utensils.

Price Increases Under Tariff.

Further participants relative to the alleged monopoly over aluminum kitchen utensils held by the Aluminum Company of America and the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing Company were disclosed today.

The Trade Commission's entire report has not yet been made public, but the

Riot Act Read, 11 Arrested at Paterson; Congress Candidate and Women Aids Seized

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 6.—Eleven persons, including a candidate for Congress and two women, were arrested here tonight when the police broke up a meeting of silk strikers in front of the City Hall. The arrests followed the reading of the riot act by a police sergeant who climbed the statue of Vice President Garret A. Hobart for that purpose.

The strike began Aug. 12 when 16,000 workers walked out after their demand for elimination of the four-loom system had been rejected. Since then some of the mills have been settling with their former employes but about 5,000 workers are still out.

Early this evening the police learned that the strikers planned to hold a meeting at Turn Hall, which had been closed to them a week ago. Twenty policemen were sent to the hall and turned back 1,000 strikers when they appeared marching down Market Street.

Instead of dispersing, however, as the police had warned them to do, the strikers turned about and marched toward the City Hall. This time Sergeant Kelliher took ten policemen with him and ordered the strikers to go home. There was a rush up the City Hall steps, and before the police could stop him John C. Butterworth, Socialist candidate for Congress in the Seventh New Jersey District, was making a speech, and beside him stood Louise and Alice Kimball, holding a large American flag.

A large crowd had now joined the strikers, and Sergeant Kelliher, finding his forces too few to cope with the gathering, climbed the Hobart statue which stands in the City Hall Plaza. In one hand Kelliher held a copy of the riot act, and this he read aloud while the crowd jeered.

Word that a riot was in progress was sent to Police Headquarters. Fifty police reserves appeared on the run, and the crowd finally was dispersed. Butterworth and the Kimball sisters, together with eight foreigners, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and obstructing traffic.

Paterson silk strikers are permanently restrained from picketing fifteen of the larger silk mills affected by the strike of weavers in an order granted by Vice Chancellor Lewis in Jersey City yesterday.

Cuban Cabinet Acts on Menocal Clash; Troops Go to Scene; Warships Held in Port

HAVANA, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—The Government tonight dispatched 400 troops in a special train from Camp Columbia to Camaguey and Oriente Provinces as a precautionary measure against further disorders.

President Zayas also issued a proclamation calling upon the people and the political leaders to remain calm. The proclamation said that for the time being President Zayas could not say who provoked last night's clash at Camaguey between the police and adherents of former President Menocal, in which seven persons were killed and about sixty wounded.

President Zayas called his Cabinet in special session today, and the chiefs of staff of the army and navy were present. Later it was announced that the army had been ordered to take "extra precautions," and that two Cuban warships which were to have left tomorrow for Key West would remain in their Cuban ports.

The President has ordered the suspension of all permits to carry arms. This if put into effect would lead to the disarming of the 200 or more members of General Menocal's party accompanying him on a tour of the republic in his campaign for re-election to the Presidency.

General Menocal himself was not in the parade which precipitated the shooting, it was declared over the telephone tonight by his son, Raoul Menocal, who is with him. Government officials here have asserted that the Menocal adherents started the trouble by attempting to disarm the police, but young Menocal said that the police were responsible for the clash by attempting to break up the parade.

In Government circles it was said that such charges probably would be preferred and that a special Judge would investigate the affair, and also that a military supervisor had been appointed for Camaguey.

General Menocal, according to his son, is not held in restraint at Camaguey, and, with his forces, expects to continue his tour tomorrow.

additional material contained in a fifteen-thousand-word summary released from the commission today, shows that 85 per cent. of the total production is in the hands of eleven concerns, the combined sales of which amounted to $22,800,000 in 1921.

The commission states that the stockholding aluminum manufacturers, at a meeting held that year in Cleveland, appointed a committee which filed a brief urging restoration of the duties on aluminum products in effect prior to the 1916 Tariff act; that the Tariff act of 1922 increased the duties on ingots from 2 to 5 cents a pound and on plates, sheets, bars, &c., from 2½ to 5 cents a pound, effective Sept. 22, 1922, and that the Aluminum Company of America increased its ingot price from 23 to 28 cents a pound in New York, to 33 cents on New Year's and then by increases on Sept. 24 and Nov. 29 of that year it also raised sheet prices 5 cents a pound.

The commission says that under its ownership the Aluminum Company investment of $30,000 in 1888, supplemented by an additional investment of $3,000,000, grew to a combined capital and surplus amounting to $110,982,461 on July 31, 1924.

Plans for a Merger.

The more extensive summary of its report to the Senate, made available by the Commission today, referring to proposed expansion by the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing Company of Manitowoc, Wis., communicated to the commission a plan looking to the purchase of the entire New Kensington business and property of the United States Aluminum Company and the Aluminum Cooking Utensil Company, subsidiaries of the Aluminum Company of America.

The commission declares that under the terms of the plan outlined for the proposed expansion, the Aluminum Company of America "will have no further interest in the business of manufacturing aluminum utensils or articles of a similar nature." It would apparently retain its one-third interest in the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing Company, its one-third of the directorate and its "substantial influence of that company's policy."

"The inconsistency of such a merger," the commission went on to say, "with the anti-trust laws is evident."

Special to The New York Times.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 6.—At the Immigration offices here it was stated today that it had been customary for some time to allow foreigners to enter from Canada to work at the Massena plant of the Aluminum Company. The company has obtained a number of special permits at various times from the Department of Labor.

Usually a permit is made to cover 100, 200 or 300 foreigners, and the quota specified in the permit is filled as occasion demands or as men are available. Such a permit gives the company permission to bring in employes from any part of Canada.

In some departments of the plant, such as the hot-room, where working conditions are exhausting, there is nearly always a scarcity of laborers.

Labor Department Gave Permits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Federal Trade Commission's report on the alleged aluminum monopoly of the Aluminum Company of America developed a keen interest from another angle in Washington tonight—that of the admission of contract labor to work in the industries.

The report from Ogdensburg, N. Y., to the effect that it had been customary for immigration officers at that point to allow foreigners to enter under special permit from Canada to work at the Massena plant of the Aluminum Company, a plant in which Secretary Mellon is declared to be interested, excited particular interest, and especially with respect to how such permits admitting from 100 to 300 laborers at a time square with the contract labor provisions of the Immigration Law.

When the attention of Robe Carl White, the Assistant Secretary of Labor, having jurisdiction over immigration matters, was invited early this evening to the report that hundreds of employes were brought in on special permit from Canada to work at the Massena plant, he admitted that there had been some such admissions.

He said that "a few" employes had been admitted some time ago for some aluminum plant, the name of which he was unable to recall, and since he was being asked about the matter after the close of office hours and while he was at home, he would not be able to tell the name of the company for which these laborers were permitted to enter until he could examine the official records in the archives of the Department of Labor.

Later tonight, after the receipt of the dispatch from Ogdensburg, stating that immigration officers there said it had been customary for some time to allow foreigners to enter from Canada to work at the Massena plant, Assistant Secretary White could not be reached for comment with respect to this development.

Husband, the Commissioner General of Immigration, said that permission was granted some time ago for laborers to come in to work for some aluminum company, but he was unable, away from the records in the Department, to say whether it was the Massena plant that had obtained these laborers, or how many had been imported. When Commissioner Husband was asked how the issuance of special permits admitting from 100 to 300 laborers at a specified industry squares with the contract labor provisions, he said:

"The contract labor provisions of the law do permit the admission of skilled labor if labor of like kind cannot be found in the country. All told, several thousand such skilled laborers come in a year for various industries. I do not know how many have been allowed to come in for the aluminum industry.

"Permits for such skilled laborers to enter are granted on application of the employer. The application is made for importing so many persons to do a particular kind of skilled work. The employer has to submit evidence to show that he can not obtain that kind of skilled labor in this country.

"As a rule it is also investigated by immigration officers, who look into the situation as to whether such skilled labor is available, and also into the question whether the kind of labor for which there is a demand is really skilled. I don't know offhand how many skilled laborers were admitted for the aluminum industry, but it was under such a showing that any were admitted."

MELLON HOLDS REPORT UNFAIR

Secretary Is Said to Resent Trade Commission's Charges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Secretary Mellon regards as unfair and incorrect in many respects the statements concerning the Aluminum Company of America contained in the report of the Federal Trade Commission's report of its investigation into the Aluminum industry.

While the Secretary said he was interested as a stockholder, he told associates that he was unfamiliar with details of the company's affairs, the entire management being left to its officers. He was understood to have read the statements in the report to the effect that his brothers had been paid by the corporation. With the dividend payment Mr. Mellon said he was familiar.

He declined, however, to discuss the report, preferring to leave a general reply to the commission's charges to the officers of the company. It was understood they would make a public statement on their side of the case in a few days.

Women Makes Prediction.

Mrs. M. Smith, legislative secretary of the National Women's Trade Union League, predicted yesterday that 10,000,000 women voters would cast their votes for Presidential candidates throughout the United States.

DEAL TO KNIFE DAVIS ALLEGED BY THOMAS

LETTERS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Rival Tells Governor He Is More Progressive Than His Party in New York.

The Rev. Norman Thomas, Socialist Party candidate for Governor, charged yesterday, on the strength of stories he had heard "from more than one source in more than one city," that the Democratic Party was willing to knife John W. Davis in the national election by trading votes with La Follette or Coolidge, in order to re-elect Governor Smith on the State ticket.

Mr. Thomas made this accusation in a letter to Governor Smith. He gave out correspondence between himself and Governor Smith which followed a demand by the Socialist candidate ten days ago that the Governor clarify his position on labor and social welfare issues, and that he reply to a statement published in The New York Evening Post that Representative Carew had sought a La Follette endorsement for Smith.

Governor Smith in his reply paid tribute to Mr. Davis as one who would cooperate with the State Democrats in progressive legislation, and denied that any one had ever with his "consent, knowledge or approval," asked the endorsement of any other party or group outside of the Democratic Party.

Accepts Smith's Disclaimer.

To this Mr. Thomas replied that he accepted Governor Smith's disclaimer, but put up to the Democratic Party the charge of a deal to re-elect Smith at the expense of the Democratic candidate for President. As evidence of such a trade, Mr. Thomas cited the Democratic endorsement of Joseph Ricca, Republican Assemblyman in the Twenty-third Assembly District, a Socialist stronghold.

Mr. Thomas said Governor Smith's letter to him had strengthened his belief that the Governor was more progressive than his party except in matters of injunctions in labor disputes. The issues of injunctions, State insurance, housing, minimum wage and water power were discussed in the correspondence between the two candidates. Mr. Thomas's letter asking the Governor to clarify his position on such matters has already been published. Governor Smith's reply follows:

State of New York,
Executive Chamber,
Alfred E. Smith, Governor,
Albany, Oct. 3, 1924.

Hon. Norman Thomas, League of Industrial Democracy, 70 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Dear Mr. Thomas:

I acknowledge your letter of Sept. 27.

(1) As to injunctions—the Democratic platform contains a plank providing that no injunction shall be issued in labor disputes "without reasonable notice and without first having a hearing to establish the facts." This plank makes for caution and fairness in the issuance of injunctions. After an injunction has been fairly and cautiously issued, it should be obeyed, and I do not think a court should be prevented from enforcing its judgment.

His Position on Housing.

(2) Housing—My position is fully stated in the following extracts from messages heretofore sent by me as Governor to the Legislature: In 1920 in calling a special session of the Legislature to consider rent relief and housing, I said in recommending the creation of a State agency to deal with housing that "it should first of all be directed to report to the next Legislature on a method of State credits for housing purposes."

In my 1924 message to the Legislature I approved the recommendation of the newly created housing commission that "the way be paved for State aid in connection with housing, so that if private capital does not meet the demand for housing at low costs, the State and the various municipalities will be in a position to step in and supply whatever assistance may be necessary."

"The State must be enabled first to extend its credit under well defined restrictions to housing operations . . . This does not mean that the State is to engage in the business of constructing homes, but it should be in the position of financing their construction in accordance with a sound and well-defined policy."

"Cities can do much to help, but they must be freed from restrictions which may hamper them at the present time."

So that I have had a consistent policy on this subject for four years.

(3) Minimum Wage—The platform plank of the Democratic Party favoring a minimum wage board is drawn in this way to meet the decision of the Supreme Court. I have been on record for many years as in favor of a mandatory minimum wage law on the theory that the health of women and children is a State resource which should be adequately protected.

(4) Water Power—My message to the Legislature clearly indicates that I propose a State agency to develop and supply hydroelectric power in proper coordination with Federal, State and municipal agencies. The bill to carry this recommendation into effect was actually passed by the Democratic Senate last Winter under the leadership of Senator Walker, but was defeated in the Republican Assembly.

(5) I have no doubt that the Democratic Party in the nation under the leadership of John W. Davis will cooperate fully in the coordination of State and national programs with regard to public utilities, water power, injunction and social legislation.

Lastly: No one with my consent, knowledge or approval ever requested an endorsement of myself or any of the other nominees of the Democratic Party by any other party or group.

Yours sincerely,
ALFRED E. SMITH.

In his reply Mr. Thomas asked why the Democratic platform was silent concerning labor's demand for State insurance as the exclusive form of legal insurance for workmen's compensation; why the platform failed to make plain the Governor's position on injunctions; what remedy the Governor had for the situation should the Supreme Court overruled a minimum wage and why the Democratic platform failed to take a position of Federal water powers that would really solve the situation. He took issue with the Governor on labor injunctions, and, in reference to the alleged deal to knife Davis said:

"I am quite ready to believe that no one with your consent, knowledge or approval ever sought a La Follette endorsement for your ticket, but The Evening Post's story of Representative Carew's action is parallel to stories that I have heard from more than one source in more than one city, that your party is willing to trade votes with La Follette, or even with Coolidge, in order to elect you. There is still another aspect to this endorsement question. You justly criticize the Republican Assembly and yet your party in the Twenty-third Assembly District, where the Socialists are strong, found no difficulty in endorsing on the Democratic ticket the Republican reactionary Assemblyman, Joseph Ricca."

COMMEND SMITH SPEECH.

Messages on Acceptance Address Pour Into Headquarters.

All day long yesterday letters, telegrams and telephone messages were received at headquarters of the Citizens' Committee for Alfred E. Smith for Governor at the Hotel Biltmore expressing approval of his speech of acceptance delivered at Schenectady on Saturday night.

Raymond V. Ingersoll, manager of Governor Smith's campaign in this city, said last night that it was evident that the Governor's Administration had found favor throughout the State.

"The Governor's speech of acceptance, with its comprehensive review of State policies, has awakened a splendid response," said Mr. Ingersoll. "He stuck to the issues. He said nothing about his early struggles as a worker in the Fulton fish market. Neither did he base his appeal on high tariff, taxes and other national controversies.

"The keynote of comment on the acceptance speech is that it was a convincing answer to any cheap clap-trap about the Democratic Party being a party of promises and the Republican Party a party of performance.

"Governor Smith himself would not deny that promises are in order to this extent—that a candidate for high office should give the voters some conception of how he will handle their business if elected. To this much at least the voters are entitled.

"The Governor, however, does not need to deal much in futures. His speech of acceptance is a realistic setting forth of the vital affairs of the State and of the way they have been handled.

"It is the record that counts. If any voter thinks that the Governor is at his best only as a campaigner, let him inquire of any person who has had the privilege of seeing him at close range dealing with the great and complex affairs of the State."

M'ADOO IS OPERATED UPON.

He is Doing Well and is Expected to Leave Hospital in Ten Days.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 6.—William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, was operated upon at Johns Hopkins Hospital today for the removal of gravel in the bladder. Dr. Hugh H. Young, who performed the operation, declared that it was a very simple one, only taking a few minutes, and that the patient suffered very little pain.

He was doing very well indeed, Dr. Young added, and said further that Mr. McAdoo would remain at the hospital for treatment about eight or ten days.

The operation was performed under a local anesthetic. The patient was able to talk to the surgeons during its progress, it was learned, and was in excellent spirits throughout.

COOLIDGE STILL A FAVORITE.

Betting Odds Remain 3 to 1, but More Democratic Money Appears.

J. S. Fried & Co., betting commissioners, yesterday reported an increase in the supply of Democratic money to be placed on the forthcoming election, due to receipt of funds from the South. The firm still reports a preponderance of Coolidge money, with the result that there has been no change in the quoted odds. The firm is still quoting Coolidge a 3 to 1 favorite.

The firm is also quoting odds of 8 to 1 that La Follette will not be the next President of the United States and also odds of 3 to 1 that the election of the President will not go into the House of Representatives for a decision.

"JIM" CULLEN WITH DAVIS.

Trainer of Pugilists Will Keep the Nominee in Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 6.—The John W. Davis party had an additional member today in "Jim" Cullen, physical trainer of "Bill" Brennan and other pugilists, who was obtained to aid in keeping the Democratic nominee for the Presidency physically fit. Cullen's treatment consists of massage and exercises, and Mr. Davis had his first experience with it on his way from Schenectady to Albany.

"Mr. Davis shows the need of conditioning," the trainer said, "but with two treatments a day he will freshen up and be able to stand the wear and tear that a candidate must endure."

it put through, the money appropriated and the hospital built.

"That is a record of performance that does not go unrecorded," said the Governor. "The people will not forget about it on election day."

He told how the Republicans used to make fun about the Democrats appointed by President Wilson.

"Don't you remember," asked the Governor, "what they used to say about Josephus Daniels? They don't mention his name now. They are afraid that somebody might ask them about Denby."

The Governor then declared that President Coolidge was not able to control his party after he went into the President's chair. Whenever he expressed a desire to have something done, he said, the Senate or the House did the opposite thing.

"All he had to do," said the Governor, "was to tell them what he wanted done, and they sat up all night in order to do the opposite thing. If he promised fair weather, the Republican Senators all began to pray for rain."

The Governor caused great laughter when he told how the Republican Press Bureau had been called in to detract the mind of the people from the real issues of the campaign.

"They told about the old cheese foundry and the old 'can bucket,' said the Governor, while the crowd yelled with delight. "They told about the old neighbors falling down the cellar stairs. I am willing to give the people of Vermont credit for being careful and anxious to conserve their resources, but I didn't think they could carry it so far as to have the old can bucket which the President conserved for 122 years."

Then, turning on the Governor, he said: "Nobody ever accused Henry Ford, who will probably keep it for another 122 years."

In concluding his speech, Governor Smith declared that the big question to be settled on election day was the restoration of public confidence in the Government of the country.

"Progress and prosperity must be brought back to the people," he said. "It can be done after next March by the election of John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan, and a Democratic Senate and House."

Governor Smith will leave here tomorrow and go direct to Boston, where he is scheduled to address a meeting at Mechanics' Hall. Democratic local officials there have made arrangements for a big reception to the Governor.

When Governor Smith came across country by motor from Albany today he received an ovation in all the towns and hamlets through which he passed. Word ran far ahead that the Governor of New York was coming into New Hampshire and the countryside turned out to welcome him.

For the most part it was strongly Republican territory through which he passed, but it seemed to make no difference, everybody wanted to see Al Smith. The Governor stopped frequently to talk to local Democratic committeemen. They told him that the State was strongly Republican, but that a hard fight by enough Democratic speakers might change the situation.

When Manchester was reached about 4 o'clock in the afternoon a crowd of men and women were waiting at the hall where the Governor was scheduled to speak four hours later. The crowd continued to grow until the doors were opened at 7 o'clock. The hall which is the largest in the city and holds 1,500 persons, rapidly filled.

At 8 o'clock several hundred had overflowed into a near-by school yard. Arrangements had been made to have the Governor's speech broadcast and amplifiers relayed it to the outside crowd.

In addressing his Manchester audience Governor Smith really spoke to the whole of New Hampshire and considerable of the surrounding territory, for the radio had a range of about 250 miles.

Manchester has a strong Democratic following, and the situation is especially acute this year, as at least half of the 12,000 of the workers in the textile mills are out of work. Their tendency is said to be to leave the Republican Party for either the Democrats or La Follette.

DAWES DENOUNCES ERA OF DEMAGOGY

SAYS PEOPLE ARE ROUSED

Special to The New York Times.

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 6.—The Farmer-Labor-Socialist platform proposals for public ownership of basic industries and hamstringing the Constitution are the rocks upon which the Third Party ticket is being wrecked in Minnesota, General Charles G. Dawes was informed upon his arrival here today.

General Dawes and Theodore Christianson, Republican candidate for Governor, appeared on the platform at the armory tonight before an audience of 6,000.

General Dawes declared this campaign the "culmination of one of the greatest eras of demagogy through which the country has ever passed; an era of lax law enforcement and widespread political cowardice bending before the will of aggressive minorities."

"The people are at last awake, he said, and have made their own issues, with a result that a dangerous mobilization of extreme radicalism will be swept under at the polls.

"Republicanism in this State is at last militant and aggressive, Mr. Christianson told the Armory audience.

"There must be no compromise with the medicine men who are trying to inject into the political being of the nation the virus that has driven Europe insane.

"We may stand for jazz music, but we will never stand for jazz politics in America."

He told of the Farmer-Labor Party proposals to have the State enter into public business with grain, packing plants, water power, mines and other basic industries.

"In North Dakota," he said, "with a State investment of $4,000,000 in a flour mill, not one cent has been paid toward depreciation or interest on bonds and in the last six months there has been an operating loss of $2,000 a day which the tax payers of North Dakota must meet."

He took up the question of public ownership of railroads—a La Follette proposal—and said that on a fair valuation of $20,000,000,000, it meant an 8 per cent. mortgage on all property for the Government to buy the roads and go into the railroad business. He showed now a $12,000 home would theoretically be mortgaged for $1,000 and declared State taxes would be doubled.

"I will not compromise with Socialism in any of its forms or disguises," he shouted, to the apparent approval of the crowd.

General Dawes crossed Wisconsin today making addresses at Eau Claire, Rice Lake and Superior from the platform of his new car, Palm Beach, which has just been fitted with an amplifier which permits him to talk in ordinary speech and carries his voice clearly just as far as the operator cares to throw it.

THIRD PARTY IS WEAK, COOLIDGE IS ADVISED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—President Coolidge continued to get good reports as to nation-wide politics, both by letters and personal interviews. He is now hearing from States in the West regarded as friendly to the Third Party ticket. These reports say that South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa are manifesting pro-Republican tendency, with the La Follette sentiment receding.

Reports in the last few days are entirely satisfactory to the President, although it was admitted at the White House today that much effective work is necessary in the wheat belt before election day. It is planned to make extraordinary efforts to get out the stay-at-home vote. That plan was followed in Maine, where more than 1,000 automobiles were used to take indifferent voters to the polls. The same method will be followed in the wheat States in November.

Former Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey and Representative Begg of Ohio both told the President today that the tide in support of the Republican Party is running strong in the East and Middle West. Mr. Begg, who had just completed a speaking tour in Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Ohio, said that these States are sure to give Republican majorities. Mr. Frelinghuysen said the Republican Party is united in New Jersey and that he will support Senator Edge for re-election, although he had opposed him in the primary. He predicted that New Jersey would cast a Republican majority of 200,000.

DENOUNCES REFUSAL OF LEAGUE REQUEST

nations of the world arranging matters in which we may come to have a vast interest, without our presence or assistance. I am not an alarmist. I do not know of any nation that cherishes hostile designs upon our security at home or our peace abroad. But I know human nature, and I know how hard it is to alter, or to modify, or even to oppose things that have been settled and agree upon. I can see open to us but two courses:

"One is to so fully arm ourselves that we need not fear aggression, even if it comes supported by the united strength of other powers. The second is to meet all other powers in conference and build up understandings which will make future aggression impossible.

"How can we fail to recognize the new place which America holds in the world? No nation in human history has been more richly blessed. No nation today enjoys half our advantages. What other nation is there that can so well afford to venture, and to venture largely, as ourselves? Why should we stand idly by while other powers arrange the world to suit themselves?

"An invitation to attend the present conference at Geneva was extended to our Government and was refused. The committees there appointed to deal with the question of abolishing war, of arbitration, of reduction in armament and the codification of international laws, have presented plans upon which the diplomatic efforts of the world will be focused for the next few years. A general conference will probably be called next June to consider their adoption.

"Had I been President of the United States I would not only have accepted the invitation to attend the present conference, but I should have insisted upon the right of the United States to be present and take a leading part when matters so vital to ourselves were being dealt with. If I become President I shall favor sending a representative to attend the disarmament conference next June, and to put all the weight of our moral influence behind any practical effort to relieve

"It is all very well to say, as President Coolidge has, that Americans are bound to preserve their independence, meaning thereby the privilege of reserving to themselves the choice of their own course and the decision of their own actions. It is well enough to say, as he does, that we do not propose to entrust to any other power or combination of powers any authority to make up our minds for us.

"I am not aware that any American, either now or in the past, has entertained any different idea, and I do not think any one will do so in the future. But while we will not entrust to others the power of making up our own minds for us, we ought at least to exercise that power for ourselves. We ought to be competent to make our mind as to the course we shall pursue in foreign affairs, and make it up in time to protect our own interests and perform our own duty in the world.

"We cannot escape our responsibility by saying that if we are to cooperate we must be permitted to cooperate without the sacrifice of our right to determine our own policies. Such words are but stale and vapid formulas.

"Action and inaction both imply decision. There is neither safety, honor nor glory in a mere policy of drift. Such a policy leads inevitably to a situation that not only deprives us of the power to make up our own minds, but also of the chance to make our will effective when our minds are made up. The country has a right to know whether we have a foreign policy, and if so, what that policy is.

"Early in his speech, Mr. Davis declared that there were several questions to be settled by the coming election, mentioning first the question of party responsibility, which he has emphasized in many of his speeches.

"The second decision which we are called upon to make is whether or not we want to encourage the growth of sectional feeling in the United States," he continued. "Nothing is clearer than that the policy pursued by the Republican Party and approved by President Coolidge, if it has succeeded in nothing else, has succeeded in setting the agricultural West against the industrial East.

"For fifty years the fiscal policies of the United States have been dictated by an industrial bloc, to whose prosperity the farmer has been compelled against his will to contribute, with no corresponding benefit to himself. He has come to realize this situation, and out of it has arisen a third party movement paralleling the Populist movement that came to its peak under the Administration of Benjamin Harrison, and the Progressive movement that showed itself in the time of President Taft.

Attacks Secretary Wilbur.

"Not content with this, we have a new effort to put the North against the South. Since the Washington Post has seen fit to publish in full the extraordinary outburst which Secretary Wilbur, the latest of the best minds we have produced to emit at Denver, we get a clear idea of the extent to which some men are willing to go for partisan purposes. No wonder his party associates were dismayed at his frankness, and that an extinguisher was promptly clapped on his offending head. Apparently it was his intention to wave once more the 'bloody shirt' and preach again the crusade of civil hatred which most men of good will hoped had been buried beyond the chance of resurrection.

"As against this effort to arouse sectional feeling on the one hand and to promote sectional interests on the other, the Democratic Party offers a program and policies designed for the benefit of the country as a whole, and points to a party flag that flies in every State of the American Union."

Mr. Davis continued his attacks on the Fordney-McCumber tariff. In speaking on the duties on sugar he said:

"With much tribulation and agony of spirit an investigation has been completed of the rates of duty on sugar. Here the Fordney-McCumber bill fixed the highest rates in thirty-four years—50 per cent. higher even than those of the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

"The result was a tax upon the American people of $225,000,000, $100,000,000 of which went into the hands of the sugar interests. What it meant to them is shown by the fact that the Great Western Sugar Company, the principal beet sugar producer, earned for the year ending Feb. 29, 1924, according to its own figures, a net profit of $12,000,000 on a capitalization of $30,000,000.

"In November, 1922, the Tariff Commission began an investigation of this subject. While it investigated and deliberated and quarreled the American consumer continued to pay the bill. On the 31st of last July it laid its report on the President's table, recommending a reduction. Sixty days have gone by without action.

"The canning season, when purchases are heaviest, both for the housewife and the fruit grower, is almost over and the consumer is still paying the bill. Must he wait, I wonder, until the election is past to find out how much relief he can hope for from that quarter, or whether he can hope for any relief at all?"

Before reaching Albany Mr. Davis addressed 3,000 employes of the General Electric Company and other manufacturing companies at an open air meeting in Schenectady.

Here the candidate, who was introduced by acting Governor George R. Lunn, declared himself a progressive and gave his definition of a progressive as one who did his utmost to support what was right and actively opposed what he believed to be wrong.

REGISTER TODAY.

Polling places for the registration of voters will be open today, tomorrow, Thursday and Friday from 6 P. M. to 10:30 P. M. On Saturday registration places will open at 7 o'clock in the morning and remain open until 10:30 P. M. If you do not register you cannot vote.

REGISTRATION UP BY 26 PER CENT.

headquarters, national, State and city, had their workers in the field well in advance of the 6 o'clock opening of the registration places, all voicing the slogan:

"Vote Your Registration Early."

In some of the districts house-to-house canvasses were reported to be under way with a vigor worthy election day itself.

The agency force of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company also signalized the first day of registration, task, directing themselves to new voters, urging them to take the literacy test, and to instructing industrial policy holders concerning voting rights and obligations. The force of several thousand men expects to make direct contact with one-fourth of the entire population of New York City, according to the official announcement. They will advise new voters in ways and means to make themselves eligible for the elective franchise, and will point out to those eligible to vote before Jan. 1, 1923, but who failed to exercise the privilege, that they are not classed as "new voters" under the law, and consequently need not take the test.

The Rotary Club of New York last night began to distribute 50,000 circulars to business men, reminding "if you do not register, you cannot vote." This was the first step in a city-wide campaign which will continue until the Presidential polls close. A special meeting of the club at the Hotel McAlpin last night was devoted to discussion of the vote.

Samuel Aronowitz, State Commander of the American Legion, addressed the annual dinner of the John Wanamaker Post at the John Wanamaker store, Astor Place, last night, and said:

"The man who refuses or neglects to vote is as much a slacker as one who evades military duty in time of war. The right to vote is not a privilege, it is a sacred duty, and it is the first plank in the Americanization platform of the American Legion."

SHIELDS QUITS RACE ON COOLIDGE'S PLEA

TELLS OF "DRY" PROMISES

Asserts Law Will Be Enforced in New Jersey in Manner Never Before Attempted.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 6.—Dr. James K. Shields, formerly head of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, announced tonight his withdrawal as independent Republican candidate for United States Senator against Senator Walter E. Edge, saying that Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the National Anti-Saloon League in Washington, acting on behalf of President Coolidge, had requested such action. He quoted Mr. Wheeler as saying that the President would consider Dr. Shields's withdrawal as a personal favor in the interest of the Republican Party. Dr. Shields had announced during the recent Republican primary for the nomination that if Senator Edge was nominated he would become an independent candidate.

His statement announcing his withdrawal said:

"After long conferences at Washington and Newark between the friends of law enforcement and those high in authority in the Republican Party at Washington three reasons have presented themselves to me that seem to make it unnecessary and in a certain sense inconsistent for me to continue longer in the race.

"1. It is the judgment of Wayne B. Wheeler, our national legislative superintendent at Washington and general counsel of the National League that more can be gained for the cause by withdrawing than continuing in the race.

"By reason of the fact that we have secured guarantees from those who are high in authority and have power to make good their assurances, there will be a radical change in the administration of the law of the State of New Jersey if the present administration continues in power.

"Wheeler's convictions are also shared by our national superintendent E. S. McBride.

"2. President Coolidge has said through Mr. Wheeler, while not demanding my withdrawal, that he would deem it a personal favor if I would do so in the interest of the party, and the cause I represented would not be the loser for such favor. This was confirmed in an interview with the Chairman of the National Republican Committee, William M. Butler, at the national headquarters in the Munsey Building, Washington, D. C., who said: 'I hope in the interest of party harmony and success that Mr. Shields will withdraw his candidacy. I am sure that this action on his part will be highly gratifying to President Coolidge and would be deeply appreciated by him.'

"Senator Edge has promised to support the bill that has passed the House of Representatives and is now before the Senate the effect of which is not only to put prohibition enforcement agents under civil service and outside of political influence, but to withdraw enforcement from the Internal Revenue Department and put it in a unit of its own."

Senator Edge later issued a statement in which he said:

"Until Friday I was unaware of any special activity to clean the fields, but I am, of course, gratified with the outcome because it will permit me, as the Republican nominee, to concentrate my campaign on the main issues. It must be understood, however, Dr. Shields's withdrawal in the interest of party harmony in no way, shape, form or manner alters my determination to make every effort to correct the unfair and inconsistent features of the Volstead act."

The withdrawal notice reached Trenton shortly before 10 o'clock by automobile from anti-saloon headquarters in Newark. Former Governor E. C. Stokes, State controller Newton A. K. Bugbee and Senator Edge had spent the entire day telephoning to Dr. Shields in Newark.

The Senatorial fight now narrows down to a three-cornered battle among Senator Edge, Mayor Frederick W. Donnally of Trenton, the Democratic nominee and George L. Record, Jersey City attorney, running independently.

Republicans in the State capital were confident that Dr. Shields's withdrawal would result in Senator Edge coming through the victor by a wide margin.

Davis College League Formed.

The John W. Davis College League, with Cleveland H. Dodge as National Chairman, has been formed to promote the success of the Democratic candidate for President. Its immediate object is to organize the three college groups—Faculty, students and alumni—for an intensive campaign. Professor Emeritus Charles W. Eliot is honorary Chairman and among those active in the movement are Henry Morgenthau, Mrs. Sidney Newborg, Henry Breckinridge, Everett Colby, John W. A. Kelley, William L. Butcher, R. C. Patterson Jr. and Kenneth O'Brien, Treasurer. The headquarters of the league are at the Hotel Belmont.

BORAH BIG FACTOR IN IDAHO CONTEST

Politicians Say the Candidate He Endorses Will Carry the State.

SENATOR TO SPEAK TONIGHT

DECLARE DAVIS IS THIRD

Many Democrats Will Vote the Progressive Ticket in Hope of Beating Republicans.

Special to The New York Times.

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 6.—Idaho is in the midst of the most bitterly contested political battle in its history. All the surface indications are that the campaign has narrowed down to a finish fight between President Coolidge and Senator La Follette, with the odds, according to some of the best posted men in the State, apparently favoring the Senator. The State appears definitely lost to the Davis and Bryan ticket and this is admitted by some of the leading Democrats of the State.

Idaho gave Harding a 42,000 majority in 1920, but this year Republican State headquarters will be happy if Coolidge and Dawes cross the line with a margin one-fourth of that.

On all sides it is conceded that the one man who can solve the Idaho puzzle is Senator William E. Borah, running for re-election as the joint nominee of the Republican and La Follette organizations. If Mr. Borah would come out with a ringing denunciation of Mr. La Follette and a correspondingly warm endorsement of the President, wherever say, there would be no doubt as to the way Idaho would vote in November. Senator Borah has not done either of these things, and there appears no reason to expect that he will. He has said a lot of nice things about his friend "Bob." The La Follette men declare that "down in his heart" Mr. Borah is with the new movement.

Incidentally, William J. Bryan, who spoke here recently, eulogized the Wisconsin Senator, and this is another fact which the Third Party managers are circulating into every nook and corner of the State.

Borah to Speak Tonight.

Senator Borah will make his first real campaign speech in Idaho Falls tomorrow night, when he is expected to make his position clear. The Republicans are hopeful he will say something to help Coolidge and Dawes. "If he doesn't," said an official of the State Committee this afternoon, "we hope he leaves the State and keeps on going until he lands in the Atlantic Ocean."

In the bitter partisan atmosphere of the Republican and Progressive headquarters it is difficult to get a clear estimate of what is going on in Idaho. To get the truth the best sources are Democrats who, having become convinced their ticket cannot carry the State, are willing to state the facts as they really see them. One such Democrat is Clarence Van Deusen, former State Auditor and one of the McAdoo leaders in the contest for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

After talking with probably 200 Democrats in various parts of Southern Idaho," said Mr. Van Deusen, "I have found a very widespread decision on the part of most of these Democrats to vote for the La Follette-Wheeler electors. After thinking over the situation very carefully, I have come to the conclusion this is the best thing for the Democrats of this State to do, and it is what I am going to do. I cannot see much hope of the Democrats carrying the State for President, and therefore have decided to place my vote where it will do the most good."

James P. Pope, former Chairman of the State Democratic Committee, said "a man would be a fool" to minimize the strength of Senator La Follette in Idaho.

Robert Elder, Democratic National Committeeman for Idaho, gave it as his opinion that Mr. Davis has a chance to carry the State, but agreed with Mr. Pope that as matters now stand, Mr. La Follette is very much in the running.

La Follette backers assert that Idaho is the best organized of all the States claimed by the Progressives. Their State Committee is on the job every minute, they say, and there are working organizations in every county in the State except two.

Declares La Follette Backs Borah.

Mr. McKaig was asked if it was true that Senator La Follette had written a letter to the Progressive Organization urging them to support Senator Borah. He replied that Senator La Follette had sent a most emphatic endorsement to Idaho to be used, if necessary, to help elect Borah. Senator La Follette, he added, wrote that nothing would please him so much as a united Progressive support for the Senior Senator from Idaho in this campaign.

Senator Borah would not talk politics today, remarking that he would have his say at Idaho Falls tomorrow night.

The Republican State Organization is making a hard fight to hold the State in line for Coolidge and Dawes. It is freely admitted that Senator La Follette is the big obstacle they must overcome. It was stated at headquarters that the Organization would be satisfied if the National Ticket won by 15,000, which is 27,000 less than President Harding received four years ago.

The organization leaders are playing the Fordney-McCumber tariff as their trump card. That, they say, is the one big issue, and if they can convince the farmers that the tariff "saved them" the State, they urge, is safe for the national ticket.

Taking the Idaho situation as a whole, President Coolidge has the organization Republicans, his share of the beet-sugar planters, the wool vote, and a conservative Democratic vote. Senator La Follette appears to have the bulk of the railway brotherhoods and the organized labor vote, a large part of the farmers' vote, several thousands of "liberal" Democrats and a fairly large organization Democratic vote, on the theory that the best way to help the Democratic national ticket is to vote for La Follette and thereby keep Idaho out of the Republican column.

VIEW HUGHES SPEECH AS POLICY ON PROTOCOL

Diplomats Regard United States So Self-Sufficient as to Be Free of League Sanctions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Diplomats in Washington today saw in the declaration made by Secretary Hughes in his Saturday speech at Cincinnati the attitude of the Government under the Coolidge Administration toward the protocol adopted by the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva last week.

The people of the United States, Mr. Hughes asserted, "would never tolerate the submission to any power or group of powers of the determination of any of our domestic questions. If we are to cooperate, we must be permitted to cooperate without the sacrifice of our right to determine our own policies."

While the generally accepted opinion among diplomats appears to be that if the protocol were ratified as it now stands, Japan might insist upon the question of immigration being submitted to the World Court, or the League Council for arbitration, and, if the United States refused to be a party to such discussions, the League could, if it so wished, declare the United States an aggressor nation and order the League sanctions applied, there is no inclination to believe the League would ever attempt to go so far in the face of the announced stand of the United States.

Assuming that the sanctions were applied against the United States, the first laid would be the economic, and diplomats feel that this would act as a boomerang upon the nations applying them, since the United States, from an economic and financial point of view, is far more self-supporting and self-sufficient than any other nation.

It was suggested today, for example, that Japan, in applying the economic sanctions, would inevitably interfere with her own enormous silk exports to the United States.

Another consideration in the view of diplomats here is the action of the British Empire. Preliminary reports from Australia do not indicate that the Australian people would favor ratification of the protocol in its present form, and it is also considered unlikely that New Zealand and Canada would do so unreservedly.

Nevertheless, there was a tendency among diplomats to give very serious thought to the fact that the representatives of forty-seven nations had given their approval at Geneva to the protocol.

LA FOLLETTE GIVES PROGRAM IN DETAIL

WOULD CLEAN HOUSE FIRST

Then, If Reforms Were Not Adopted, He Would Appeal to People in 1926.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 6.—Declaring that "the Progressive campaign is just beginning," Senator La Follette, at Convention Hall here tonight, in the first speech of his cross-country tour, explained the executive and legislative program which he would seek to put into effect if he were elected President.

Nearly 5,000 men and women crowded into Convention Hall and gave Senator La Follette a noisy greeting. An overflow meeting was held outside the Auditorium. Departing from his prepared text, Senator La Follette said:

"There will be no Daughertys or Falls in my Administration, nor will there be any Jess Smiths or Howard Mannings."

There was great applause when the speaker pledged that if he were elected there would be "no Daugherty and Palmer. Injunctions and Federal troops will not be degraded into the shameful condition of strike-breakers."

Dividing his hoped-for term of office into two parts, Senator La Follette said the first would embrace "the house-cleaning period, which would occupy the eighteen months prior to the Congressional elections of 1926." The second would be "the constructive period, occupying the balance of my first term."

Saying that he was making his program public, "an unprecedented step on the part of Presidential candidates," because he believed the American people had a right to know what their public servants would do if elected, the Wisconsin Senator described in detail how he would essay to carry out his plans. The house-cleaning period would apply to men as well as to measures. He proposed "not only to remove the executive departments but also to wipe off the statute books the reactionary laws which are used as the instruments of exploitation and oppression."

The "house cleaning" would include "the appointment of a Cabinet selected without regard to party or political obligation," and composed of men pledged to rid their departments of every special interest representative and to enforce the law without fear or favor.

In the appointment of his Cabinet he would give due recognition to agriculture, labor and the independent business man. The house cleaning would remove "the henchmen of special interests" as well as "the incompetents and time servers," and restore the merit system.

His Legislative Program.

"If I am elected to the Presidency of the United States," he continued, "I shall call Congress into special session immediately after the 5th of March, and in my first message recommend substantially the following immediate legislative program:

"Enactment of emergency legislation for the relief of agriculture. This is class legislation, but in the highest sense legislation for the public welfare to remedy the disastrous results of the unwise policies of the last two Administrations. I believe that a clear, nonpartisan, majority exists in the present Congress and will act speedily when the obstructions hitherto placed in the way of such legislation by President Coolidge and the reactionary leaders of Congress have been removed."

"Revision or repeal of the two great charters of special privilege enacted by the reactionaries during their recent control of Congress: The Esch-Cummins Railroad law and the Fordney-McCumber Tarrif act.

"These two laws are now imposing upon all classes of the American people burdens which total in the aggregate billions of dollars. It is certain that a large majority of both the House and Senate are ready to repeal these measures at the earliest opportunity and to substitute for them legislation drafted in the interest of the American people.

"Repeal of the veterans' 'tombstone' bonus, enacted by the last Congress, and the substitution of legislation to provide genuine adjusted compensation for veterans of the great war. This question will not be settled until the nation's obligations have been fairly and squarely discharged. An overwhelming majority of the present Congress have demonstrated their readiness to support such a measure.

"Enactment of the Howell-Barkley bill. This bill proposes to abolish the present discredited Railroad Labor Board and substitute a plan for the adjustment of controversies between the railroads and their employes, every feature of which has been tested and proved by past experience. A clear majority favoring this bill now exists in both houses of Congress and it will pass at the next session if there is no interference by the Administration.

"Revision of salaries of postal employes and of pensions of Civil and Spanish War veterans to conform to the increased cost of living. These bills were passed by the last Congress and were defeated only by the veto of President Coolidge.

"I submit that all the items in this immediate legislative program already command overwhelming support in Congress and are not dependent upon partisan majorities. They would already have been passed except for opposition by the Harding-Coolidge Administrations, or obstruction by reactionary leaders of the two old parties in Congress.

"If these measures, or any of them, should not be enacted we would go to the country in the Congressional elections of 1926 confident that upon these issues the American people would express their will in unmistakable terms.

Constructive Proposals.

"While this immediate legislative program is being enacted during the house-cleaning period I propose to direct the appropriate executive departments, with the advice and counsel of the progressives in Congress and the best experts available in the United States, to prepare a detailed constructive program covering the following subjects.

"Reconstruction of the Federal Reserve and Federal Farm Loan systems, so as to make the nation's credit available on fair terms and without discrimination to business men, farmers and home builders.

"A permanent transportation policy, including a comprehensive study and analysis of methods of providing for public ownership of railroads, with adequate safeguards against bureaucratic control, and political manipulation.

"A national superpower system to develop the water powers now in the possession of the Federal Government and make the resulting electric power available to the people at cost.

"Development of cooperative marketing, to eliminate profiteering and reduce the enormous spread that now exists between the primary producer upon the farms and the ultimate consumer in the cities. This would supplement the emergency legislation for the relief of agriculture, for which I should demand immediate consideration upon the convening of an extra session of Congress.

"Control of trusts and combinations to fortify and supplement such weaknesses in existing legislation as may be disclosed by the honest and vigorous attempt to enforce the present anti-Trust laws, which we should initiate as one of the first acts of the Progressive Administration.

"There is one other important matter upon which I have not yet touched, and which I can at this time cover only in the barest outline. That is the foreign policy which I would expect to pursue if elected President of the United States.

"As a preface to this discussion, it is my opinion that the Congress, composed of the elected representatives of the people, is entitled to a voice in the determination of the foreign policy of the Government. I have expressed this view repeatedly upon the floor of the Senate, and I should expect to uphold it if I were elected President. I do not believe that the President or the State Department should have the power, without the knowledge and consent of the Congress or the people, to involve the nation in such a way as to lead to inextricable entanglements, unfavorable commitments or to war. I believe in the democratic control of foreign policy and am unalterably opposed to secret diplomacy.

"The great war which began ten years ago is now generally admitted to have been an imperialistic war, born of the greed of financiers, exploiters of foreign lands, imperialists who conquered defenseless peoples in order to protect their usurious loans and destructive concessions. They made war on foreign peoples as they profiteered and made war on the liberties of the people at home. They used diplomacy, the office, battleships and the country's youth to promote and protect their imperialistic possessions and in time brought the whole world to the cataclysm which caused the flower of its youth to be slain on the field of battle and twenty millions to be invalided by wounds and disease.

Foreign Policy.

"We will end invisible government and American imperialism. We will keep out of other people's lands. We will extend to those peoples the same freedom that we seek for ourselves. Our State Department shall not be the agent of bankers, investors and imperialists. Your sons shall not be conscripted as a collection agency of private debts.

"And as an evidence of our good faith in this program of peace we propose:

"1. A referendum of the declaration of war except in case of actual invasion.

"2. To end our imperialistic attitude toward Central and South America. We will withdraw our marines from Haiti, Santo Domingo and every other place where they are now being used to coerce local Governments for the benefit of American financiers and special interests.

"3. We will give the Philippines their independence. We will fulfill the solemn pledge made to them by the American Congress.

"4. We will end the partnership between our State Department and imperialistic interests, and we will divorce it from Standard Oil and international financiers.

"5. We will use every peaceful influence to bring about a revision of the Treaty of Versailles, not in terms of hate and punishment, but in accordance with the more generous terms of the armistice.

"6. Finally, we will use the influence of this Government to outlaw war, to abolish conscription, to drastically reduce air, land and naval armaments, and to guarantee referendums on peace and war. We can then hope to secure for these purposes the cooperation of the new Governments of Europe, the democratic Governments of Europe, the Governments which are sprung from the people themselves, and which, for the first time in a century, are seeking to end war by ending the causes of war."

"I intend to win the election on Nov. 4. On that day I believe the people of the country will take the control of the Government back into their own hands, where it rightfully belongs."

"If I wanted the election to be thrown into Congress," continued the statement, "I would stay in Washington and take it easy for the rest of the campaign.

"Our reactionary opponents in both the old party camps are charging that my sole purpose is to have the election thrown into Congress. This is utterly ridiculous.

"The election is now in Congress. I mean that if the election were held today no candidate would receive a majority of the votes in the Electoral College. Certainly neither Coolidge nor Davis could win a majority.

"I want the election decided by the people in a voice that brooks no misinterpretation. Reports from every part of the country lead me to believe that the Progressive tide is rising at a tremendous rate. It has not reached its crest. The reports lead me to believe that we can increase the power of this movement to the point of a clean-cut election in November. That is why I am on this trip. I believe the people want to hear the message I have to give. I intend to do everything in my power to see that it reaches them.

"When our opponents say, as they have been saying for the last five weeks, that our power has passed its peak, they are merely whistling to keep up their courage.

"We are in this fight to win and we will not be content with anything except victory."

He will speak tomorrow night at Scranton.

WHEELER CHARGES SECRET ROAD DEALS

CITES "MORGAN CONTRACT"

He Accuses Coolidge of Illegal Action as Governor to Aid Defunct Bank.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 6.—An attack upon President Coolidge and Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, which caused a sensation in political circles here, was made tonight by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, running mate of Senator La Follette, in an address at the Masonic Auditorium.

He charged President Coolidge with having authorized, while Governor of Massachusetts in 1920, the placing of large sums of State moneys in the Cosmopolitan Trust Company of Boston in violation of the law. The bank, however, failed, said Wheeler.

Later on, Senator Wheeler added, it was developed that Max Mitchell, President of the bank, had contributed $5,000 to the Coolidge campaign fund when Mr. Coolidge was a candidate for Vice President. This, Mr. Wheeler said, was brought out before the Senate committee which investigated campaign contributions in 1920.

This contribution by Mitchell, Senator Wheeler also charged, was in violation of the State law of Massachusetts, which provides that no individual shall contribute more than $1,000 to any election.

"I want you to decide in your own mind," said Senator Wheeler, "whether or not the key to Calvin Coolidge's character is not found in this bank-and-campaign-fund transaction."

Secretary Work was charged by Senator Wheeler with giving his approval to a secret agreement with the Morgan and Guggenheim interests for the exploitation of Alaska. He alleged that rate discriminations were made in which the Government-owned Alaskan railroad was involved and produced what purported to be a copy of an alleged secret agreement and correspondence concerning the deal.

Assails Alaskan Railroad Policy.

"Some years ago the Government appropriated a great many millions of the people's money to build a railroad in Alaska," said Senator Wheeler. "The attempted wrecking of this Government enterprise is still going on. Every possible device is being employed to make it fail of its purpose of serving the people.

"On this Government line there is a freight rate on ore of $6 per ton on carload lots for 412 miles from Nenana to Seward. Only one mine ships ore in that quantity. That is the Mayo mine, owned by the Morgans and Guggenheims. Everybody else pays a base rate of $44 per ton for the same haul for all classes of freight. This is one of the benefits obtained by the secret agreement of which I shall speak.

"You wouldn't use that line to much extent, in any case, for to reach it you would have to use the boats of the Morgan steamship companies and you would find the rates prohibitive. You would have to use these lines, never-theless, if you used any, because there exists a secret agreement between the Government's Alaska Railroad and these Morgan steamship lines.

"One year and a half ago Senator Robert M. La Follette wrote to the Secretary of the Interior, and now I must mention the name of this other faithful servant of the interests in the Cabinet, Hubert Work. The Senator asked Secretary Work to furnish him with a copy of each and every contract entered into between the Government railroad and the Alaska Steamship Company and the Pacific Steamship Company during the preceding two years.

"I have here Secretary Work's reply. It reads:

"In reply to your letter of April 20, I am transmitting herewith copies of contracts entered into between the Alaska Railroad and the Alaska & Pacific Steamship Companies, covering the years 1921, 1922 and 1923.

Respectfully,
HUBERT WORK, Secretary.

"There were enclosed copies of three unimportant and perfectly regular business contracts. Secretary Work, no doubt, believed he had disposed of Senator La Follette. A lot of misguided folks have made the same mistake.

Charges Secret Rate Contract.

"I am now holding up for your view the contract which Senator La Follette wished to see and which he has seen, despite Secretary Work's misleading letter. It is not one of those furnished him by Secretary Work.

"Mr. Work did not wish Senator La Follette to see it. It is a secret agreement as to joint rates on freight shipped by the Morgan steamship lines and the Government railroad between the ports of Seattle and Tacoma and points on the Government Railroad. A secret agreement, mind you.

"The agreement to which I refer was obtained by John Rustgard, Attorney General for the Territory of Alaska. He is a Republican, but he did not get it from Mr. Work nor from the Government's Alaska Railroad. Both of them refused to supply him the secret contract or any information that it contained.

"Listen to this paragraph from a letter to Attorney General Rustgard refusing the Attorney General a copy of it:

"This is a confidential agreement between the steamship companies and the Alaska Railroad and is not for general publication nor for the public. It would apparently answer no good purpose to give this out and would be a very distinct violation of the agreement arrived at.

"And this paragraph from the secret agreement itself:

"It is understood the Alaskan Engineering Commission and the steamship companies, parties to the through rates, will treat all division arrangements as confidential and promulgate the information to interested employes only.

"It is a link in the chain of proof that connects J. P. Morgan & Co. with the secret control of our governmental agencies in every avenue that deals with our national domains and our national resources in every State.

TO OPEN HEADQUARTERS.

Republicans Plan Many Attractions at Hotel Roosevelt Tomorrow.

The Republican National Committee will open headquarters at the Hotel Roosevelt tomorrow. The opening addresses will be made by Representative Ogden L. Mills and Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, aunt of the Republican nominee for Governor. "Blue, green and white elephants and campaign souvenirs and literature can be obtained," setting forth the attractions of the new headquarters, says an advance statement, which was made public yesterday.

Mrs. Barclay Warburton of Philadelphia and Mrs. George Orvis of Manchester, Vt., aided by a score of prominent women from this State, will be in charge at the new headquarters. Among them will be Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, Chairman of the Committee of One Hundred; Miss Maude Wetmore, Director of the Coolidge-Dawes Clubs; Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, Honorary President of the Women's National Republican Club; Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, President of the Women's National Republican Club; Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Vice Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee; Miss Sarah Schuyler Guthrie, Vice Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, Chairman of the Campaign Committee of the Women's National Republican Club; Mrs. John T. King, Mrs. Frederick W. Davies, Miss Margaret Bucklin and Miss Mary L. Shapiro of New York and Miss Mary Laurence Smith, Washington, D. C.

DR. FOSDICK RESIGNS; REJECTS SET CREEDS

my first acquaintance with the Assembly's decision I have so understood it. It is with the more regret, therefore, that I must write you my declination of the proposal which you so courteously have transmitted to me.

My disinclination to become a Presbyterian minister is not at all due to denominational reasons. Were the transfer of my membership from one denomination to another the only question involved, I have no sectarian loyalties that would make the change difficult. But that is not the only question involved. The proposal of the General Assembly calls for a definite creedal subscription, a solemn assumption of theological views in terms of the Westminster Confession.

Creedal Subscription a Peril.

In answer to this proposal I must in all honesty set my long standing and assured conviction that creedal subscription to ancient confessions of faith is a practice dangerous to the welfare of the Church and to the integrity of the individual conscience.

There have been two historic attitudes toward creedal subscription among evangelical Christians. Some have welcomed it, have founded their churches upon acceptance of definite formulations of faith, and then with the passage of time and the coming of new ways of thinking have sought liberty from the literal meanings of their confessions by emendation and interpretation.

Others, equally evangelical, have felt that this practice is perilous to honesty and hampering to the free leadership of the Spirit. They have distrusted the ethics and feared the effect of subscription to ancient forms of statement, involving successive reinterpretations of the meaning attached to the words. They have refused to require this in their churches and, as individuals, they have not submitted to it. To this second way of thinking I unreservedly belong.

There are many creedal statements such as the Augsburg Confession, the Westminster Confession, the Thirty-nine Articles, which express in the mental formulas of the generations when they were written abiding Christian experiences and convictions. I honor all of them; they represent memorable achievements in the development of Christian thought. But for me to make a creedal subscription in terms of any one of them would be a violation of conscience.

Let me add also that this general and long-standing attitude toward creedal subscription is necessarily heightened by the particular situation in which I now find myself.

In theology I hold the opinions which hundreds of Presbyterian ministers hold. I am an evangelical Christian. So many men in my position have been cordially welcomed into the Presbyterian ministry, as holding the substance of doctrine for which the Church stands, that I have no reason to suppose that the Presbytery of New York would fail to receive me. But, after two years of vehement personal attack from a powerful section of the Presbyterian Church, I face now an official proposal which calls on me either to make a theological subscription or else leave an influential pulpit.

Won't Make Moral Surrender.

Any subscription made under such circumstances would be generally and, I think, truly interpreted as moral surrender. I am entirely willing that my theology should be questioned; I am entirely unwilling to give any occasion for the questioning of my ethics.

One further reason for my declination remains. I undertook my present relationship at the First Church with entire good faith. Knowing nothing about Presbyterian regulations with regard to the employment of ministers from other denominations, I refused to take responsibility for any decision in the matter. When, however, the Session of the Church, the Presbytery and the Synod had passed upon the proposed arrangement without a dissenting voice, I supposed that my relationship with the Church was without taint of irregularity.

It was the interdenominational character of the arrangement which chiefly attracted me. Here was an object lesson in the new freedom with which Christians could disregard denominational lines and work together. The arrangement at the First Church has been so regarded in popular thought and I have rejoiced in that aspect of the relationship.

Indicates Return to "Closed Shop."

The proposal of the General Assembly, however, would reverse all that. I recognize that the Assembly's decision concerns the particular relationship at the First Church and cannot fairly be interpreted as a general rule excluding the ministry of non-Presbyterians from Presbyterian pulpits. Nevertheless, the principle involved in the decision, if logically applied, would certainly tend to discourage the employment of any except Presbyterian clergymen as ministers in Presbyterian pulpits.

It may not enact a rule but it suggests a precedent. It encourages a return to the principle of a denominationally "closed shop." It represents, so it seems to me, a retrograde sectarian movement. As a convinced interdenominationalist, therefore, who does not believe in an exclusive but in an inclusive church, I must not consent to the decision. To concur with it would be to agree with an attitude with which I radically disagree, to fall in with a denominational spirit which I regret and deplore.

As you see, my reasons for declining the courteous invitation which you have extended to me spring from my conscience. I must not do what for me would be a disingenuous and fictitious waiving under the guise of taking solemn vows. I am sure you would not have me do it.

Regrets Unrest He Aroused.

Let me add a final expression of my cordial thanks for all the goodwill which I have met in my Presbyterian associations in New York. As associate minister at the First Church I have spent five of the most memorable and enjoyable years of my life. I sincerely regret that so much uproar has attended the latter part of my ministry, but I am grateful that it has been uproar from a distance and that among my brethren in the church and Presbytery I have had such unfailing friendship and such generous support. I leave these relationships now with a most lively sense of my indebtedness to you and to those whom you represent and with prayerful good wishes for the prosperity of the great church to which you belong.

I am sending a copy of this letter to the Clerk of Session of the First Presbyterian Church together with my resignation as associate minister.

HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK.

Assembly's Decision Clear.

Dr. Work in his letter to Dr. Fosdick, dated Sept. 1, wrote that he hoped Dr. Fosdick would see his way clear to come into the New York Presbytery, but pointed out that if he declined "the Assembly's decision in the situation is clear."

"From being a guest in our Church, as you have been for the past five years," Dr. Work wrote, "the Assembly suggests that you voluntarily transfer your connection as a minister to the Presbyterian Church, in the manner prescribed by our constitution, and thus continue your ministry in the First Church as an installed Presbyterian pastor. In other words, the Assembly holds that, in view of your prolonged service among us, and in view especially of disturbed conditions existing, it is better for all concerned that the Presbyterian Church should assume responsibility for your ministry, and that you in turn should assume responsibility for the Church. This can be done in one way only."

MODERATOR GIVES HIS VIEW.

Says Church Must Stand by Creed or Face Dissolution.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—The Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, said tonight that the refusal of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick to enter the Presbyterian ministry had not been unexpected.

Dr Macartney said that the original protest which brought the matter to the attention of the Church was not on the ground of polity, but on the ground that Dr. Fosdick's teaching was not in harmony with the view of the Gospel as defined by the Scriptures, interpreted by the Presbyterian Confession of Faith.

"Dr. Fosdick's adherence to the non-creedal and independent Church relationship was well known," he said, "and, leaving doctrinal matters aside, it was to be expected that he would not now turn around and take the most carefully defined creed in existence.

"The Presbyterian Church has always been a witnessing Church, and in spite of those ministers within its fold who share Dr. Fosdick's views, it must continue to be such, or else consent to conditions of doubt which would dissolve not only the Presbyterian Church, but in time the foundations of evangelical Christianity."

LEADERS LAUD DRIVE TO GET OUT THE VOTE

HEADQUARTERS ARE OPENED

Intensive Advertising Campaign to Be Started to Call All Citizens to Their Duty.

An intensive advertising campaign, designed to get the voters of the nation out on registration and election days, was begun yesterday by the Non-Partisan Coordination Council, representing fifty organizations and over 4 million voters, when headquarters were opened at the Hotel Astor.

Hotels and restaurants, railroads, churches, radio, theatres and motion pictures, banks, neighborhood stores, Government and municipal departments, department stores, subways, elevated and surface cars and many other mediums of advertising will be utilized. In New York City Mayor Hylan will be asked to issue a proclamation requesting all citizens to register and vote.

Messages were received at council headquarters from President Coolidge, General Pershing, John W. Davis, Governor Smith and Theodore Roosevelt, commending the organization for its work. The President's message said:

"It is always a satisfaction to know of the efforts of organizations that are devoting themselves to making elections truly representative of public opinion by getting out the largest possible vote.

"Every American citizen ought to be properly impressed with the duty of casting his ballot. There seems to be this year a quite impressive movement in all parts of the country to secure polling the largest possible vote and I am always gratified at every evidence that such efforts are being so earnestly pressed."

"Sacred Duty," Says Pershing.

General Pershing said:

"Enthusiastically approve the efforts of your organization to get out the voters, but regret I cannot be with you on Thursday, Oct. 9. To vote is a sacred duty of every citizen."

Thursday, Oct. 9, is the date originally set for a luncheon to be held by the council at the Hotel Astor. Owing to the inability of General Pershing to attend at that time the luncheon will be postponed until Oct. 30, the Thursday before election day. The council hopes to have Elihu Root and Will Rogers as speakers in addition to General Pershing. The police band has been invited to furnish music. All persons who have registered are invited at $2.50 a plate.

John W. Davis said: "I cannot too strongly emphasize my conviction, so frequently expressed in the past, that it is the absolute duty of every citizen to vote. The continued existence of American institutions depends upon the interest of Americans in their Government and there is no method for registering this interest other than the exercise of their rights of suffrage."

Governor Smith said: "The success of democratic government is largely dependent upon the interest the people themselves take in their Government. There is no better way of displaying that interest in the first instance than by performing the duty imposed upon every man and woman of expressing themselves through the ballot box.

Voting More Than a Privilege.

"It has been held, and wisely so, that voting is more than a privilege. It is a duty of every citizen. If every citizen were as insensible to his duty to the country as the man and woman who refuses to vote, it would be difficult to predict the consequences. Not all men are of equal influence, but certainly on election day the poorest man in the country is equal to the President when he stands before the ballot box. His vote counts just as much as does that of the most powerful and influential individual.

"Not to make it felt is, in effect, to say on the part of the men and women who refuse to register and vote that they are entirely willing that the choice be left to others to make, as they lack sufficient interest in the welfare of the country to take part in the selection of its high officers."

Theodore Roosevelt said: "You can be of real service by making sure that every voter is properly registered on registration day and is then brought to the polls on election day."

The following resolution was adopted at the council meeting:

"We, the undersigned, as individuals and representing the various organizations attached to our names, believing in the principles of government of the people, for the people and by the people, realize that this fundamental of our nation cannot be maintained unless our people fulfill their solemn obligations as citizens at the polls.

"We therefore urge, irrespective of party, that every loyal American man and woman eligible to do so register and vote in the coming election, so that we may truly carry on the torch passed on to us and keep the faith with those who have made the eternal sacrifice that we might enjoy peace, contentment and unlimited opportunity.

"Any American who is eligible and does not register and vote fails in a solemn duty to the nation."

ROOSEVELT OPENS UP-STATE CAMPAIGN

Wants Votes for Himself, Not for Father's Name, He Tells Crowds.

3 POUGHKEEPSIE SPEECHES

He Makes Six Stops and Sounds "Coolidge and Common Sense" Slogan.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt completed his first day of campaigning up-State with three appearances in Poughkeepsie tonight. He was originally scheduled to appear only at a meeting at the Stratford Theatre; but that house, seating 1,600 persons, was unable to hold all who wished to hear him, so the Masonic Temple across the street was pressed into service. This, too, was filled, and the candidate spoke to both gatherings.

In addition to these two appearances, he also spoke before the State Convention of the Parent-Teachers' Association, in session at the Nelson House.

At the Stratford Theatre meeting, over which Senator J. Griswold Webb presided, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt made her first speech of the campaign.

The audience rose when she was presented, and when quiet was restored she made what is considered here a model speech for wives whose husbands are running for office. Her speech in its entirety was as follows:

"Think you very much, indeed, but I think I shall leave the speaking for the family to my husband."

A characteristically Rooseveltian touch was the Colonel's acquirement somewhere within a few minutes after striking Poughkeepsie of a young man who had been a machine gunner in his division in France. For the rest of the evening William Jackson followed the candidate around and he introduced him to the audience at the Stratford Theatre at the end of his speech.

Members of Colonel Roosevelt's party were somewhat upset by one incident during the day. This occurred at Beacon, where Mrs. Grace Van Namee, one of the speakers, made her début for the trip.

Up to the time of the stop at Beacon for the last of the daytime meetings Colonel Roosevelt had done all the speaking himself. He had adhered rigidly to his policy of not mentioning Governor Smith either by direction or implication.

Mrs. Van Namee, however, had no such inhibition. She was telling the audience why women would, in her opinion, support the Republican ticket.

"They have analyzed the candidates in this election," she said, "and can any thinking woman hesitate on comparing the candidates for Governor of the State of New York? The Democratic candidate, as I see him before my mind's eye, his hat cocked on one side, a big black cigar in his mouth, talking about the 'treat 'em rough method'—compare him with the man who is to speak to you today, the product of our American home and American breeding and the highest ideals we have to offer."

One of the officials emphasized to newspaper men that there was no responsibility on Colonel Roosevelt's part for what had been said.

At this meeting Colonel Roosevelt touched on the "son of his father" issue. "Of course I honor and respect and look up to my father," he said. "Of course I do my level best to live up to the ideals he personified in this country. But I do not want any of you to vote for me on account of who my father was. We were brought up in my family on an old and homely proverb, but an almighty good one, and that was this: 'Every tub must stand on its own bottom.' I want you to vote for me on that basis and on that alone, and I want you all to vote for me."

At this meeting Mrs. Roosevelt was with him on the motor truck that served as a platform, and in the beginning of his speech he said his introducers had left out one thing which he was going to add himself, namely, that he was the father of four children. Then, pointing to Mrs. Roosevelt, he added, while the crowd laughed:

Observers on the train agreed that, with the possible exception of Yonkers, the crowds that turned out at the six stops to hear the Colonel on his first day were reasonably large for the towns they represented. In most of them the candidate was competing with play-by-play bulletin boards for the world series.

The first stop was at Yonkers, where the candidate went some distance from the railroad station to speak. His speech was in the main the one he has delivered in all his campaigning so far, upholding "Coolidge and common sense," arguing that the tariff law is the best protection for the standard of living of the American workman and attacking the extravagance in the Democratic Party, State and national. The same speech in its essential details was adhered to throughout the day. There were, however, departures which gave variety.

At Ossining the Colonel got the only heckling of the day. He spoke from a motor truck drawn up beside the railroad station, and at a distance of about a hundred yards he was faced by a hotel. From a corner of the first floor porch of this hostelry a woman kept up all through his speech a running fire of "There's the Democratic Party!" and "Hurrah for Al Smith!" punctuated by roars of laughter.

She had the voice of a contralto in Wagnerian music drama and had no difficulty in making herself heard. Now and then she was assisted by a tall and middle-aged tenor who wandered unsteadily in and out of the line of parked cars loudly wishing luck to Al Smith. A policeman silenced him but the woman remained unmuzzled.

OWEN D. YOUNG IN LONDON.

Reparations Agent General Sees Premier and Chancellor of Exchequer

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Owen D. Young, temporary Agent General for Reparation Payments under the Dawes program, conferred with Premier MacDonald and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Snowden, at the Prime Minister's official resident in Downing Street this morning.

The negotiations, in connection with the projected German loan of $200,000,000, are expected to take a step in advance with the return to London from Berlin today of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, President of the Reichsbank, and Finance Minister Luther.

Representatives of Belgian banking interests conferred with Governor Norman of the Bank of England over the week-end regarding Belgian participation in the loan, and it is hoped the final details for the issue will be settled in a few days.

Danlos Grand Duke Cyril Will Come Here.

George V. Golokhvastoff, former Captain in the Russian Imperial Guard, who now signs himself "Military Representative of his Highness Grand Duke Cyril of Russia in the United States," writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES denying the rumor in Czarist circles in Paris that the Grand Duke contemplates a visit to America. This rumor was printed in a Paris dispatch dated Oct. 1. Captain Golokhvastoff cites a cable dispatch from Boris Brasol, his Highness's political representative in this country, who is now in Europe. The Paris gossip was that certain American capitalists had undertaken to finance the Grand Duke's cause and that the projected visit was for the purpose of consulting them.

COURT LIMITATION ASSAILED BY BAR

Lawyers Call La Follette Proposals a First Step Toward Bolshevism and Chaos.

URGE ELECTION OF COOLIDGE

Assert Constitutional Changes Would Imperil Religious Liberty, Freedom of Press and Other Rights.

The proposal made by Senator Robert M. La Follette and his third party to limit the powers of the Supreme Court of the United States is merely a renewal of a conflict that raged bitterly at the time the United States Constitution was adopted, according to an open letter made public yesterday by a large group of lawyers who have formed a Coolidge-Dawes Campaign Committee.

William C. Breed is Chairman of the Lawyers' Committee; Paul D. Cravath and former Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer are Chairmen of special committees.

The letter cites a clause in the La Follette platform which pledges the third party to Constitutional amendments providing for Congressional review and veto of United States Supreme Court decisions and the election of Federal Judges, who under the present system are appointed for life, and then goes on to say:

The far-reaching effect of such proposed amendments is not appreciated by the public.

The taking away from the Supreme Court of the power to finally declare acts of Congress unconstitutional would make possible an invasion of the fundamental rights, privileges and liberties now guaranteed by our Constitution, and would destroy the balance of power between the legislative, executive and judicial branches, which is essential to our form of Government.

The election of Federal Judges, including Justices of the Supreme Court, for terms not to exceed ten years, would make that body the subject of recurring political contest and destroy the independence of our judiciary.

The Danger of the Situation.

"Although the proposer of these doctrines has small chance of becoming President, the failure of Coolidge and Dawes to receive a majority in the Electoral College would undoubtedly lead to the election of the next President by a Congress selected two to six years ago, rather than by vote of the people on Nov. 4, and might result in placing a man at the head of our Government as Acting President, who would support the doctrines embodied in these proposals.

"The time to defend a principle is when it is first questioned.

"The most effective way for a lawyer to support our Constitution and preserve the independence of our judiciary is not only to vote but also actively to work for the election of Coolidge and Dawes."

In a supplement statement William C. Breed, Chairman of the committee, said: "I believe there is a greater responsibility resting upon the legal profession in this campaign than in any other campaign in recent years.

"People do not understand the seriousness of the issues involved. The Constitution is not a protection to the majority, so much as it is to the minority.

"If the power to override the determination of the Supreme Court on constitutional rights and liberties is to be given to Congress what will become of such rights as those of religious liberty, freedom of press, right of assembly and rights of property?

"We are fighting over again in this campaign the same questions which were fought in the original Constitutional Convention. The Constitution was framed as a curb upon the majority and a protection for the minority against acts of aggression by the legislative and executive branches of our Government.

"First Step Toward Bolshevism."

"The La Follette platform specifically advocates a Constitutional amendment, providing that Congress may by enacting a statute make it effective over a decision of the Supreme Court.

"Such proposals as that the Government go into business with all the power created by the appointment of millions of officials and employes only tend to emphasize the danger that would be involved in giving this Congressional majority the supreme authority.

"Believers in our democracy who stop to think of the menace involved in a change in our form of Government, which is the real thing proposed in this campaign, ought never to vote for such an experiment.

"The La Follette attack upon our Constitution and the Supreme Court is but the first step toward Socialism, Bolshevism and chaos. It would be the death knell to the stability of our institutions and to the prosperity and happiness of millions of workers, honest Americans."

GOV. BRYAN REPORTS GAINS.

Declares Democrats Will Carry All Middle West States.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 6.—Governor Bryan, Democratic Vice Presidential candidate, told newspaper men today after a tour of Kansas and Southwestern Nebraska, that he had found the Republicans "very much discouraged, with unrest spreading throughout the rank and file of the party, not only in cities and towns, but in the country districts."

The Democrats, he said, "were constantly drawing support from the Republicans and the Independents," with every indication showing the trend will increase from now until election day.

"The Democratic Party," he added, "will carry all the agricultural States of the Middle West."

CALLS ON NEGROES TO BACK LA FOLLETTE

Bishop John Hurst Assails President Coolidge for His Silence on the Klan.

DENOUNCES DEMOCRATS, TOO

Charges Their Party Has Long Been That of the Klan, Disfranchisement and Lynching.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—President Coolidge's failure to speak out in this campaign on the subject of the Ku Klux Klan is made the subject of attack in an interview with Bishop John Hurst of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a negro leader, given out at the La Follette Headquarters today, in which Bishop Hurst urged the members of his race to support the La Follette independent candidacy.

Bishop Hurst, who is associated with a number of institutions maintained for the education of the negro, charged that "the Democratic Party had long been the party of the Ku Klux Klan, the party of Jim Crow, disfranchisement and lynching." He declared that "Whatever Mr. Davis, the Democratic candidate, may state as to his personal opposition to the Klan, no colored man will imagine for a moment that he can in any sense wipe out or offset this party's record.

Bishop Hurst also charged that although the colored people of America had been faithful to the Republican Party for half a century, "They have received nothing in return but broken promises." He declared that the Republican Party was the "Klan party" in at least half a dozen northern States. Commenting on the failure of President Coolidge to denounce or discuss the Klan, Bishop Hurst said:

"The best we have been able to get from the white public, despite repeated requests not only by colored men of prominence but other Americans who rightfully object to the Klan on the ground of its fundamental un-Americanism, is a brief statement from the Lilly-White G. Bascom Slemp, Mr. Coolidge's secretary, to the effect that Mr. Coolidge is not a Klansman. How gratifying to learn that Mr. Coolidge does not put on a night shirt and a pillow case and join the night riders after supper! La Follette, on the other hand, is the only candidate who has come out vigorously against the Klan in words that no one can mistake."

Bishop Hurst assailed the Republicans in Congress for permitting a "handful of Southerners to filibuster the Anti-Lynching bill to death."

"In every way and from every standpoint the Progressive movement opens the door of hope to the colored Americans as at no time in a generation," he added. "It must be unmistakable to every colored American that there can be no hope for him politically, economically or spiritually under either the Republican or Democratic parties. I am unreservedly for the Progressive candidacy of Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler for President and Vice President of the United States.

La Follette headquarters announced today that it had just received a contribution from the Railroad Brotherhoods at Anchorage, Alaska. The contribution, amounting to $182, was accompanied by a letter, which said in part: "Just a little more to help Bob to the White House. We are all for him."

In a communication forwarded to central bodies, the Federation of Labor has requested that local officials begin an intensive drive at once in behalf of La Follette and for his candidates for the Senate and the House whose votes on measures of interest to organized labor justify support. It suggests that meetings be held in halls and theatres and that automobile crews be organized to cover every section.

COURT RULES AGAINST LA FOLLETTE ELECTORS

Louisiana Progressives Will Now Appeal to State Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 6.—The forces working in Louisiana in the interest of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket met a setback here tonight when Judge W. C. Jones in the District Court dismissed the proceedings brought to compel James J. Daily, Secretary of State, to print the Liberty Bell emblem and the names of the ten La Follette-Wheeler candidates for electors on the ballots for the coming State election.

The Progressives will appeal at once to the State Supreme Court.

The proceedings were brought by the Louisiana organization after the Secretary of State had refused to accept the nomination papers on the ground that they bore the names of only 933 certified registered voters, whereas the law required that they contain the names of more than 1,000. An additional list of 450 names which the Registrar of Orleans Parish had refused to certify was then presented, but the Secretary of State refused to consider it.

An action has been brought by the La Follette forces in the United States District Court alleging that the Louisiana election laws are in contravention of the Constitution of the United States in that they limit the right of suffrage. Argument in that case will be heard in New Orleans tomorrow.

SYNAGOGUES OPEN TONIGHT

Thousands to Celebrate Yom Kippur—Many Will Fast.

Thousands of Jews in this city will enter their synagogues and temples this evening to celebrate Yom Kippur, the most sacred of all holy days in the Jewish religious calendar. Many will abstain from all eating and drinking from sundown this evening to sundown tomorrow.

The Atonement Day services of the Central and Free Synagogues will be held this evening and throughout tomorrow. The Central Synagogue service, at Fifty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue, will begin at 6:20 and the Free Synagogue at 8 in the evening.

The theme of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise's sermon will be "The Open Door." In the morning the sermon will be preached by Rabbi S. E. Goldstein, and his subject will be "In the Valley of Judgment."

Temple Emanu-El has obtained Aeolian Hall for simultaneous services with those in the temple. The Rev. Dr. H. G. Enelow, one of the rabbis, will preach at Aeolian Hall this evening and he will conduct a memorial service there tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass, the other rabbi, will preach at Aeolian Hall tomorrow morning. While one rabbi is preaching at the temple the other will preach at the hall.

At Temple Israel, Ninety-first Street, near Broadway, this evening, Rabbi Ira F. Sanders will preach on "The Deathlessness of the Jew." Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock the Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris, the senior rabbi, will preach on "The Unknown Quantity in Life."

To Lovers of the Sky Who Are So Situated as to see the sunrise and sunset and the sight of the millions of stars illuminating the heavens on starlight nights, it is a privilege worthy of thankfulness.

Yet, all living within street walls or shut in by accidents, sickness, home duties, hospital or sunless workshops, may cultivate the habit of greeting the first sight of each morning's sun with gratitude for the big ball of light and heat necessary to the growth of grass, flowers, fruit, corn, wheat.

And the sun is also emblematic of the lamp provided to light our way through life.

Again the John Wanamaker Store proves its leadership in the world of fashion by presenting to America—

RANELAGH RED

In Fascinating Three-Piece Sets

FOR MISS 2 TO 6

Ranelagh red—that lovely geranium red tone that predominates everywhere at the exclusive Ranelagh Club in England. When our emissary saw it recently she immediately thought what a perfectly exquisite color it would be for children's fashions.

Imported wool suede cloth is the material we have chosen in which to present this glorious new shade to America in three-piece sets—the new mode's interpretation of the ensemble costume for the younger generation—for Miss 2 to 6. Stunning little coats, faultlessly tailored on very becoming lines and attractively trimmed with Australian opossum. Each little coat is complemented by a charming poke bonnet—it, too, is fur-trimmed—and a pair of well-cut drawer leggings.

AU QUATRIEME ANNOUNCES A PRESENTATION OF

Decorative Objects

Antique and Modern

At the same time as Au Quatrieme's great shipments of antique furniture from abroad, steadily since mid-August have been arriving tremendous shipments of exquisite decorative objects of every description. And especially of distinguished and beautiful things for table decoration. Ravishing little 18th Century marble temples—18th Century carved wood reliquaries—Etruscan vases—Waterford glass—two exquisite Renaissance fragments of marble horsemen—Staffordshire jugs and figures—Old Leeds plates—things whose very names enchant the mind as if with an echo or reflection of their surpassing loveliness. It is by all means an occasion which neither collector nor connoisseur can afford to overlook.

A Few of the Varied Examples and Groups Comprised in the Collection

A Sale for Miss 14 to 20 in the Diana Salon

COATS CAPES WRAPS

For Daytime and Evening

Similar to those which have been selling in our Diana Salon at $185 to $395 ..... $155

If you had gone to Paris to choose your winter coat, you could have had no better choice. If you have shopped around town for a fur-trimmed coat, we are quite sure that nowhere have you seen so many beautiful models in one collection. And no matter where you have been, we know that coats of this type have been in most instances twice as much and more in price. For this is a collection of individual models—the

Samples of a Leading New York Maker

Paris copies and adaptations—Lanvin, Patou, Chanel, Worth, Aviotty, Rolande, Bernard, Jenny, Berthe, Miler Soeurs, Paquin and Drecoll. And every model here is a beautiful expression of its originator's distinctive genius.

The silhouettes—That the circular flare is the next important line is clearly indicated in these models. The very straight wrap-around coat—still the choice of many smart women—is here in beautiful interpretations, and for evenings the big loose wrappy coats or the cape which fits snugly at the shoulders and takes on gracious fullness as it reaches the hem.

The furs—Moleskin, Hudson seal (dyed muskrat), nutria, mink and caracul are the flat furs. These are perfect for the new large Directoire collar, the cape back coats, the large muff-like cuffs and the new small flat collar of which every one is talking. Natural lynx, natural skunk, and fox give a luxurious air to many coats.

The woolens—The new suede velours and the important kashmir duvetyn weaves which have such marvelous warmth for their inconsequential weight. Velvets, brocades and metal lames for evening. Second Floor, Old Building

28 ARE INDICTED IN $1,000,000 FRAUD

Federal Prosecutor Says Gang Swindled Stores All Over the Country.

GIVES DETAILS OF SCHEME

Eleven of the Defendants Are Held in Bail and Others Are Expected to Plead Today.

Twenty-eight men were indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury on a charge of swindling commercial houses throughout the United States out of more than $1,000,000 worth of goods in the last eighteen months. The accused, according to postal officials, operated at different points, remaining in one location only long enough to obtain large quantities of goods.

Federal Prosecutor Garrett W. Cotter, who presented the evidence to the Grand Jury, said that the schemes of the indicted men were so cunningly devised and so swiftly executed that it took Postal Inspectors Boyle and Allen nearly a year to obtain sufficient evidence to warrant an indictment.

The ringleaders, according to Mr. Cotter, were Jacob Lerner, Isidore Horowitz, Alfred Moscow, Walter Fox and Joseph Greenberg. These five, he said, having obtained a "banker" received from him money enough to buy out the business of a reputable dealer, paying as little as possible on account. Once in possession of the goods, a quick auction sale was arranged, all the goods were sold, and the proceeds were used in making a payment on the balance due for the business.

No more was paid than just enough to guarantee that the new owners would not be disturbed in carrying out their scheme. This was to order from various wholesale concerns large quantities of goods dealt in by the original owner and to dispose of them in a way to assure the largest return. Enough of the property was turned over to the "banker" to guarantee him a 10 per cent profit on the money advanced by him. If this was not acceptable all the goods would be sold and the "banker" would receive his profit in cash. Then the men would drop out of sight, leaving the business to drift into bankruptcy.

The Federal prosecutor said that apparently operating one of these schemes at a time was considered too slow, for before long a number of them would be under way at the same time. Part of the plan was to deposit a substantial sum in a bank, and when an unusually large quantity of goods was ordered from some concern in a distant city the bank was named as a reference. But this, it was said, was rarely necessary, because the original owners of the purchased business were well rated, and orders bearing their names were readily honored.

This scheme, Mr. Cotter said, was sometimes varied by the old one of ordering goods on credit in the name of some firm in good standing and then sending the goods to storage, where they remained until they could be sold.

Some of the names used by the gang in their activities were Newmarket Trading Company, Inc.; J. C. Friedman & Co., National Household Supply Company, Alberta Apparel Company, Champion Tool Company, Capital Jobbing Company and Manhattan Merchandise Company. Several of the firms whose names were used are now in bankruptcy because of the illegal use of their names.

The charge against the men is using the mails for fraudulent purposes. There are nine counts in the indictment charging swindling of dealers in jewelry, furniture, medical supplies, electrical appliances and clothing.

Eleven of the defendants, including the five mentioned, were arraigned in court and held in bail ranging from $1,500 to $7,500. The others are expected to plead today or tomorrow.

SHAW CHIDES BULGARS OFFENDED BY HIS PLAY

If They Are Civilized They Will Laugh Like the Rest of the World, He Says.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Having heard that his play "Arms and the Man," the scene of which is laid in Bulgaria, had angered Bulgarian students here on the occasion of its recent revival because they considered it insulting to their native land, George Bernard Shaw has just written to the editor of the Berliner Tageblatt a letter wherein he takes the students to task for their sensitiveness and admonishes them to laugh with the rest of the world at his drama.

He says that a dramatist's duty is to scourge the selfesteem of his fellow-countrymen, as Aristophanes did with the Athenians, Molière with the French, Ibsen with the Norwegians, Synge with the Irish and Shaw himself with the Irish, English and the inhabitants of the world in general.

"This means that a comedy is possible only in a highly civilized country," continues Shaw, "since in a barbarous land the people cannot tolerate having their foibles ridiculed."

Civilized Bulgarians, Shaw goes on, must delight in the parading of their weaknesses in "Arms and the Man," whereas barbarous Bulgarians must be just as barbarous as the Irish fell a few years ago toward Synge's "Playboy of the Western World," which they took as an insult to Ireland.

Shaw urges the incensed Bulgarians to be calm and applaud his play, as English and Americans do, even though they would rather shoot the playwright "just as many people would like to do in England and America."

"If the Bulgarian students, with my help, can develop their sense of humor, there will not be any further reason for worry," says Shaw in conclusion.

they do had they a majority in the House of Commons and could defy the Liberals and Conservatives to do anything else.

The Government was appealing to the country for a free hand to be used by its extremists, he said.

Turning to the Russian treaty, Mr. Lloyd George asserted that for a country like Britain, at a time when trade was bad, when it had not enough to develop its own empire and to develop things at home, to advance tens of millions of money to a country where there was no guarantee the money would ever come back was a monstrous proposition. Britain was already bearing a debt of £1,000,000,000 to the United States for other peoples, including Russia.

A Voice—Who made the debt?

Would the trade unions resumed Mr. Lloyd George, advance money from their funds to Russia? If not, what right had they to ask British taxpayers to do so? The same gang of extremists who had bullied them into interfering with justice in the Communist prosecution, had bullied them into this guarantee to Russia.

Arthur Ponsonby, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, speaking at Sheffield, denounced Mr. Lloyd George as the greatest generator of hot air ever known in political life, and as "the acts as a sort of agitator, but with this curious effect, that the result of his hot air is to give his followers cold feet."

RHODE ISLAND COURT DROPS BOMB CASES

STATE WITNESS IS GONE

Prosecution Admitted It Could Not Proceed Without Thomas Lally and Sought Delay.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 6.—Judge J. Jerome Hahn in Superior Court today dismissed "for lack of prosecution" the indictments against William C. Pelkey, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, William (Toots) Murray, and John T. Toomey, who were charged with conspiracy to plant liquid bromine in the State Senate Chamber during a Democratic filibuster June 19.

The Judge's action was taken after Assistant Attorney General George Hurley had informed the Court that Thomas Lally of Brooklyn, N. Y., a leading witness for the State, was missing, and had moved for a continuance of two days, or until next week. Mr. Hurley said that if a continuance were not granted the State would be unable to proceed.

The Judge, after deliberating for an hour, said that when the case was set for trial it was expressly stipulated that the only reason on which a motion for postponement beyond Oct. 6 might be based would be the illness of the defendants. The defendants had appeared in court today ready for trial, and in opposing the motion they were within their rights, the Judge declared.

"The indictments may be dismissed and the defendants discharged," the court directed.

Counsel for Mr. Murray asked the Court to proceed to impanel a jury so that the defendants might be acquitted by a jury. The Judge said he had no power to do so.

"This case is dismissed for lack of prosecution," he said. "The Court cannot impanel a jury unless the State calls the case for trial. As the State has not done this, I am without power to call a jury here."

Mr. Hurley asked that the State be allowed to reserve such rights to exceptions as it might have. The Court directed that this be entered in the record. It was understood that the Attorney General's department was considering bringing the case before another Grand Jury with a request for indictments on which the defendants might be brought to trial when the missing witness has been found. No announcement was made, however, except the statement that the department was surprised at the Court's refusal to allow a two-day continuance in an important case.

Mr. Lally was one of two witnesses who swore that Mr. Murray had told him of the alleged bromine gas conspiracy, implicating Mr. Pelkey and Mr. Toomey. Mr. Hurley told the Court that his "contact representative" in New York had been constantly in touch with the witness in Brooklyn since he left the State in August. Last Thursday Lally intended to take a Friday morning train for Providence, but later reported that he would depart Friday afternoon.

The New
CHICKERING HALL
27 West Fifty-Seventh Street, opened tomorrow as a place of service to all who love music. It is the hope of Chickering & Sons that you may pay them a visit tomorrow and permit them to welcome you to their new home. There will be informal music by distinguished artists.

Announcing the opening of the new CHICKERING HALL

WHEN CHICKERING HALL opens its doors to the public tomorrow, the event may well be regarded as a thing somewhat apart from the daily business life of the city. And this is so for several reasons.

Throughout the civilized world, many successive generations have regarded Chickering as more than a mere business, as something more even than the supreme piano—the instrument chosen for their personal use by the great masters from Jenny Lind and the immortal Liszt of other years to the tremendous Lhévinne and the exquisite Dohnányi of our own day.

For Chickering is not only America's oldest and most distinguished piano, but its career has made musical history for one hundred years. The epoch-making invention of Jonas Chickering, founder of the house, that made all modern pianos possible, has resulted in the piano becoming the universal musical instrument that it is the world over.

That Chickering is regarded in America as something akin to a national institution was shown last year when great musicians, musical organizations, statesmen and men and women from every walk of life initiated the Jonas Chickering Centennial Celebration as a nation-wide observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the house of Chickering.

A Significant Century

Since 1823 Chickering & Sons have been identified with every new step in musical progress. The history of the house parallels the musical history of the nation. Chickering & Sons were first to bring to America the great pianists of the old world, and also sent to Europe the first American students to study music in foreign lands.

The earliest hearing of great orchestras and choral works on the American stage was made possible by Chickering. The house has maintained concert halls in several cities, which have been a dominant factor in developing the musical taste of our people.

The story of the older Chickering Hall with its famous auditorium, which stood at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighteenth Street, is a well-nigh complete history of the musical activities of New York during the years when it was the center of the musical life of our city.

In the new Chickering Hall is a concert room where will take place events of musical significance requiring intimate surroundings. Yet even more than the prestige of Chickering as leader in the tradition of musical progress is the feeling for the instrument itself. The Chickering has sung its way into the hearts of our people. It is the best loved of all pianos. Fragrant memories and fond associations cluster about it in countless families who for generations have had and will have only the Chickering.

The Chickering is built at Boston in the factory which was, when completed in 1855, the largest structure in America, except the Capitol at Washington. Many of the workmen have been with us for two generations, and their fathers before them. There are no finer craftsmen in the world, no men who take deeper pride in their product—the highest attainment in the high art of piano-making. The tradition of the family persists as only in New England it does persist.

Those men build well but never hurriedly. They are never satisfied that new standards of perfection cannot be attained. The output of Chickering is limited, and the price is necessarily not low.

The House Where Music Is

Every model and period design of Chickering is displayed at Chickering Hall, and also the Chickering with the incomparable Ampico, which re-enacts with utmost fidelity the actual playing of the world's greatest artists.

Chickering Hall is intended as a place of service to all who love music. People of every degree of income will find here pianos suited to their means. Each instrument has been chosen as pre-eminent in its class and each is offered unreservedly by Chickering & Sons.

At Chickering Hall, tomorrow, a part of our welcome will be informal music by important artists. You are cordially invited to come in and have your favorite pieces played by your favorite artists on the Ampico. We shall look forward to seeing you.

THE OLD CHICKERING HALL
This famous building, third of the New York homes of Chickering & Sons, which stood at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighteenth Street, was the center of the musical life of the city for many years.

A PLACE FOR INTIMATE MUSICAL GATHERINGS

THE concert room in the new Chickering Hall has been made purposely of limited seating capacity. It is the plan of Chickering & Sons to make this salon available for intimate recitals and discussions of a significant character pertaining to contemporary developments in music.

Many of the more important musical events of the coming season will take place here. Announcements will be made through the musical columns of the newspapers.

PLEAD TO EQUALIZE RAIL AND SEA RATES

Counsel for New York and New England Ports Ask Agreement in National Interest.

WOULD END SECTIONAL WAR

Representatives of Roads and Water Lines, East and West, Confer on Differential Cases.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Lawyers, traffic representatives and steamship men from New England, New York, the South Atlantic States, the Gulf States and the Middle West met in Washington this afternoon to discuss from a national viewpoint the so-called port differential cases now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission and the United States Shipping Board.

In the forefront of the meeting were Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for the Port of New York Authority, and Wilbur Larce Jr., counsel for the New England ports. They had suggested the conference to bring about a meeting of minds and to arrive at a common principle upon which the various sections of the country could stand in the proceedings.

The situation was presented that New York City, the greatest port on the Atlantic Coast, was supported by practically all the other harbors on that coast in an endeavor to bring about an equalization of rail and ocean rates so that all would be upon the same basis.

It was pointed out that over a period of many years the various ports and the several sections have been almost constantly fighting each other for the purpose of obtaining rate advantages or removing rate disadvantages. It is believed that this policy will be completely changed and that henceforth there will be an agreement in the common interest.

There are now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission several cases in which the New England ports seek more favorable rates on export and import commerce and several similar proceedings filed by the South Atlantic ports. Before the Shipping Board there are pending several consolidated cases filed on behalf of Charleston, Jacksonville and Norfolk bringing into issue the propriety of the ocean differentials.

Mr. Cohen and Mr. Larce proposed at today's meeting that, in the national interest, the several sections should agree, if possible, upon a principle which would bring to an end these differential rate wars, and they suggested as the only practicable method an equalization of both rail and ocean rates.

Reference was made to the fact that the principle of equalization has already been endorsed by the New England ports, the New England railroads, the Port of New York Authority, the Traffic Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, many Southern ports and many Western shippers, and in certain public expressions by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Shipping Board.

Mr. Cohen and Mr. Larce in expressing the view of the Port Authority made this joint statement:

"The Shipping Board and the Interstate Commerce Commission are now dealing separately with these problems. We fear that decisions may be made, not on the basis of one unified principle, but on the basis of separate and piecemeal determination.

"We feel strongly that the way out is to have the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Shipping Board make their determinations after joint consideration.

"The law not only authorizes this but contemplates that it shall be done. This is the purpose of the petitions filed by the Port Authority and the New England ports for joint consideration of the differential cases by the two tribunals."

WHITMAN PRESENTS ANDERSON'S APPEAL

Former Governor Tells Court Many Errors Were Made in Dry League Leader's Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Former Governor Charles S. Whitman argued before the Court of Appeals today the appeal of William H. Anderson, formerly of the Anti-Saloon League, now in Sing Sing serving a sentence of from one to two years for forgery. Joab H. Banton, District Attorney of New York, opposed the appeal.

Mr. Whitman argued that many technical errors had been made in the trial, the principal one being that the intent to defraud or that the entries were capable of defrauding were not essential to convict under the indictment.

Mr. Anderson, as Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, employed C. Bertsel Phillips as his assistant to solicit subscriptions for the league at an annual salary of $7,500—provided he collected $50,000—and commission of 10 per cent. on any excess of $50,000. According to the evidence, Anderson's agreement with Phillips, however, was for a commission of 20 per cent. on $25,000 and 10 per cent. in excess of that sum; and should his commissions exceed $10,000 a year—the amount of his own salary—he was to divide the excess commissions with Anderson. The written salary contract was stated to be for the purpose of "fooling the Rockefellers," who refused to make contributions to any cause paying commissions on gifts.

In 1921 Phillips earned in excess of $18,000 in commissions, and Anderson directed William M. Pollock, Assistant Treasurer of the league, to draw league checks for $2,500 and $1,375, payable to him, and enter them on the books as a payment of salary and traveling expenses to Phillips, which was done by Mary Hill, a stenographer.

Phillips objected to having the books of the league show salary payments to him of $18,000 on which he was required to pay an income tax, and the false entry was made to reduce his apparent earnings.

Phillips was discharged by Anderson April 30, 1922, and he then made a complaint to District Attorney Banton that Anderson was extorting money from him.

NURSES BLAME DR. HIRSCH.

He Says, However, That His Entire Salary Is Spent on His Work.

Two more nurses from Bellevue Hospital testified yesterday at the hearing on conditions in public hospitals in this city, which is being conducted by Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield. They corroborated the testimony of Miss Edna S. Steiger, who nursed Mayor Hylan at Saratoga and later became a hospital investigator for Hirshfield, that X-ray treatment at Bellevue had been hampered by frequent absences of Isaac Seth Hirsch, head of the X-ray department.

Miss Anna Robbins testified that Dr. Hirsch usually came in at 11 o'clock in the morning and left between 1 and 4 o'clock. Mrs. Mary Bryson, also a nurse, gave similar testimony.

Commissioner Hirshfield said he wanted it understood that his inquiry did not reflect on Dr. John J. McGrath, President of the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, and that he did not want to have the public get the impression that the public hospitals were bad, as poor conditions had been found only in a few instances.

After the hearing Dr. Hirsch, who had not been called to the stand, said that while he received $3,500 a year from the city, he paid an assistant out of this sum and made other expenditures which consumed the entire salary and left him nothing in the way of remuneration from the city position he had held for fourteen years.

Dr. Hirsch said that 54,000 treatments were given in his department last year and that the department was considered as good for its work as any in the world.

The next hearing [illegible] N. Y., Oct. 15.

Piratical Real Estate

Some faults of the owner affect the title to his real estate and some do not and it takes an expert to know which is which.

Captain Kidd, the famous pirate, once owned real estate in New York and we have guaranteed the title to his holdings to later purchasers.

In searching the title we did not need to know whether he had bought the property, inherited it, or stolen the money with which he bought it.

If, however, there had been an error in the deed so that he did not get good title or did not give good title when he sold, that would have been another question.

This is what you come to us to find out about when you buy real estate.

What you should know about Carbona Cleaning Fluid

SUGGESTIONS THAT ARE "HELPFUL NOT BOASTFUL"

How to Avoid "Rings" Never rub in circles. Use a gentle sweeping motion, raising your hand at the end of each stroke after passing the edge of the spot so as to blend the cleaned spot with the rest of the material. Be sure to place a clean white cloth or blotter under the Grease Spot to carry away the grease which Carbona dissolves—otherwise the grease spreads to the outer edges and hardens again, leaving a "ring."

Wearing Apparel Edges All edges of wearing apparel that touch the body accumulate grease. Remove it with Carbona. Coat collars and cuff edges that come in contact with white linens should be cleaned frequently by going over the edges with a cloth or sponge saturated with Carbona Cleaning Fluid.

Removes Chewing Gum from Carpets, Rugs, Upholstery, Clothing, Shoes, Floors, etc., pour Carbona on the Chewing Gum, and permit it to soak thoroughly. It can then be lifted off with the dull edge of a knife. If the Chewing Gum is thinly spread, it can be quickly removed by rubbing it with a cloth well saturated with Carbona. Cannot injure fabric or color.

Kid Gloves Grease and soil are quickly removed by rubbing the glove lightly, while on the hand, with a clean white cloth or sponge saturated with Carbona. They can be worn immediately as Carbona Cleaning Fluid dries instantly and leaves no odor.

Automobile Upholstery Removes grease and oil spots from Automobile Upholstery. Keeps the upholstery clean and like new.

Moths Feed on Grease Spots You can be certain the holes that have been eaten through are the Grease Spots. Keep all fabrics free from Grease Spots with Carbona Cleaning Fluid. Carbona makes it so easy to remove Grease Spots from all wearing apparel, rugs, etc., that there is no excuse for not taking this simple precaution at all times. Read the directions printed on the label of the bottle.

Sewing Machines Carbona Cleaning Fluid dissolves the clogging Grease and gummy old oil that slows down sewing machines and prevents easy running. Pour into every oil and friction point. This dissolves and carries away all gummed oil, grease and dirt. Dries instantly without wiping and leaves parts ready for clean oil. (Used successfully in factories for cleaning all light machinery.)

Carpets, Rugs and Upholstery Take out the unsightly Grease Spots with Carbona Cleaning Fluid. They gather dust and invite germs. By going over the entire surface, a carpet, rug or any fabric can be made to look like new.

Evening Slippers Kid, silk, satin, velvet, and brocade slippers can be kept clean and fresh for all occasions by simply rubbing them lightly with a clean white cloth dipped in Carbona Cleaning Fluid. They can be worn immediately as Carbona dries instantly and leaves no odor.

Neckties Keep them clean and fresh by going over the entire surface with a cloth saturated with Carbona Cleaning Fluid. Gives further usefulness to your favorite necktie.

Removing Adhesive Plaster Tape Carbona will quickly and easily remove Adhesive Plaster Tape from the skin, and it will completely remove all of the gummy substance that may remain on the skin after the plaster is detached. Eminent Surgeons recommend it. Saturate a cloth or absorbent cotton with Carbona and thoroughly soak the edges of the plaster, which will loosen it, permitting the Carbona to be applied further under the plaster, until it is wholly detached. Gentle rubbing will remove the sticky substance which may remain on the skin.

Typewriter Type Clean the type faces in the usual way with a cloth saturated with Carbona. Takes away the dirt and dust that clog the letters and makes the typing clear. Dries instantly without wiping.

our enthusiasm takes a practical form, that we extend the helping hand to all and not merely to some. So we have the Red Cross, to capitalize and dedicate the finest, the most appealing attribute of our human nature, charity.

Chartered by Congress to relieve and prevent suffering "at home and abroad, in war and in peace," the Red Cross has become part of our national life. Responding with splendid devotion to relieve the suffering of the greatest of wars, it goes with us now in times of peace—of peace, I fervently hope, not to be broken. Its mission now is not so trying, but its scope is broad and will broaden with the years.

The Red Cross idea will develop as mankind develops. The ideals underlying civilization are the ideals of brotherly love, of tolerance, of kindliness, of charity. Any departure from these is a reversion to a lower nature, to barbarism and darkness. The beauty of life lies in meeting whatever destiny awaits us, trusting one another, helping one another.

I do not recall what sage it was who said that we keep only what we give. Perhaps it has been said, in different forms, by many. But whoever first enunciated that great truth had thought long and deeply; he knew life. He knew the temporary, transient nature of material things. He knew the longing of man for the light.

A spiritual impulse of this kind is struggling for outlet in every human heart. It needs only some form of practical expression. I can think of no better medium than the Red Cross for its many blessings, there never exists the danger of helping the undeserving, or making the weak weaker.

It does not pauperize. But it does give prompt and adequate help during the emergency period to those afflicted by circumstances over which the will of the individual has no control.

Recalls Aid to Japan.

One of the greatest needs confronting civilization is just this kind of practical idealism, sensitive to duty, alert and ready to make the sacrifice necessary to relieve suffering and pave the way to a return of normal and happier things. Only a few days after I began to discharge the trust imposed upon me by the highest office in the land I was to have a mighty example of the unselfish sympathy of our people. Its manifestation ever will remain with me.

The great and friendly nation of Japan had been stricken by one of the most appalling catastrophes in the history of man. According to estimates, more than 400,000 people were killed. Some of its richest and most populous areas were devastated. Great cities were laid in ruins.

No better example of the confidence of the American people in their Red Cross could be had than the lavish response given its appeal for funds to help Japan. Like an army, the thousands of Red Cross chapters throughout the land mobilized to receive and direct the charity of our nation.

As President of the United States and President of the American Red Cross I issued an appeal for $5,000,000. More than $11,000,000 was given. The Red Cross had the organization capable of turning this great overflowing of the sympathy of the nation to the best account. In addition to its own contribution, the Red Cross bore the burden and expense of administration.

It insured a maximum of relief at the minimum of outlay. The gratitude of a great nation, disclosed in manifold forms, more than repaid the splendid response of our people directed through this organization. Philosophers and historians may record this as marking a new era in the relationship between nations.

Our action in aiding the fine courage of the Japanese people to assert itself and start anew was reminiscent of the magnitude of Red Cross operations during the war. I hope that the Red Cross always will be equipped to respond to such appeal from other lands.

What It Could Do if War Ceased.

It is hard to avoid the temptation to speculate on the possible services of our humane and charitable agencies if they did not have to bear any of the burdens that are imposed by war. In a truly civilized world, where the costs of armament, of pensions, of fortifications, were not required to be borne; where neither the spiritual nor the physical suffering which war involves were inflicted; where resources could be used to promote, not to destroy, happiness—in such a world what mighty works could be accomplished under the leadership of the Red Cross spirit! Poverty, ignorance, prejudice and all uncharitableness might be completely relieved and remedied.

It is toward such an ideal that the race is now yearning and striving. It is making progress. The thought of ridding society of the very institution of war has seized powerfully on the minds of men. We shall not get it done by some magic form, in some inspired moment. But it is going to be done because men and women more and more demand it. We are making more progress in this direction than we yet realize.

But meantime the practical works for relief and succor must go on in the old ways. To these the Red Cross is devoted. Its work expands from year to year. Without the waste of war it is yet able constantly to broaden its usefulness.

Of the willingness of the American people to stand behind their Red Cross there can be no longer any doubt. The spirit of sacrifice can never be demobilized. I can think of no other single medium better able to translate into results our deep regard for the interests of humanity.

It is with genuine satisfaction that I welcome you here to this convention and set as your presiding officer.

From its inception the Red Cross had made history in the fulfillment of humanitarian ideals. Our country is proud of its record. Its realization is one of the ideals of our forefathers. It represents the truly American way of organized efficiency, practical humanity and inspired charity. It is a strong support of the Government, a reliable guarantee of the continuing progress of civilization. It shows the way to a more complete realization of truth and justice through mercy.

Soldier Contradicts Hines.

Brig. Gen. Hines, Director of the Veterans' Bureau, followed the President and told of the accomplishments of the Government in caring for the sick and wounded in the World War.

He said that of 98,000 men who had been restored 38,000 had been put back into civil life in better positions than they had before the war.

While he was telling of the compensation given to the wounded he was interrupted by a man sitting in the back of the hall. The interruptor, Nikola Sesum, said:

"The Government is not doing it, I know, I am only getting $25 a month."

The ex-soldier was led from the hall and sent to Gallinger Hospital for observation as to his sanity. He made a protest and quietly left the building. He informed the police that he had been badly wounded in the war and had been a patient at several Government hospitals, from which he had been discharged although physically unable to work. He said his compensation of $25 a month was insufficient to keep him.

PADLOCKED WOMAN STILL HOLDS STUDIO

FRIENDS BRING IN MEALS

Lawyer Advises Occupant to Guard Art Objects and Keep Business Going—Locks Changed.

Miss Helene M. R. White, a sculptor, who on Saturday night became a voluntary prisoner in the studio of the Consignment Arts, Inc., on the first floor of the Gainsborough Studio Building, 222 West Fifty-ninth Street, with only a meagre food supply, was still in possession of the studio yesterday and planned to stay right on and conduct the business.

She is doing this on the advice of her lawyers, Williams & Urbach of 285 Broadway. They said Miss White is there also to guard art objects valued at $500,000.

It was stated also that an effort was being made to settle the matter out of court, and, if that failed within the next few days, legal proceedings would be started against Miss White's associate in the business, Paul C. Leatherman.

"We have advised Miss White to stay at the studio and go on with the business without Mr. Leatherman, or with him if he chooses," said Mr. Urbach. "Whether the doors are locked or unlocked, she will not leave the premises. The old padlocks have been removed and new ones put on, but Miss White has no keys to these new locks."

Miss White, who had to live on short rations Sunday because the restaurant in the building was closed, did not lack food after her friends read yesterday of her plight. She sleeps on a 17th century brocaded couch.

An exhibition of Spanish pictures was in progress yesterday at the studio. Mr. Leatherman would not divulge his plans for ejecting Miss White. He contends that the agreement he entered into with the sculptor was not one of partnership, as asserted by her, and that, as he holds a lease of the premises, he is within his rights in ejecting her.

FREED IN WHIPPING CASE.

Actress Who Lashed Publicity Man Gets Suspended Sentence.

Miss Vera Milne Hall, actress, was released on a suspended sentence by Justices Edwards, Murphy and Kelly yesterday on her conviction in Special Sessions of striking with a dog lash Edward F. Hurley, a motion picture publicity agent, in his office at 35 West Forty-fifth Street on Sept. 8 last. The actress admitted that she had applied the lash, but declared that she did so through excitement when Hurley refused to retract stories which she alleged he told reflecting on her character.

Mrs. Marian Hurley, wife of the complainant against Miss Hall, testified that she entered Hurley's office with the girl. She said that when her husband refused to retract the statements attributed to him he advanced toward Miss Hall and tried to grab the little dog whip.

Hurley testified that when the girl demanded that he retract the statements he told her that she knew he had not made them. Then, he added, Miss Hall drew the whip from her pocket and struck him four times on the neck and back with it. Kenneth Reid, an employe, he testified, took the whip from the girl. He also testified that divorce proceedings were in progress between his wife and him and that Mrs. Hurley had attached an affidavit to the papers in which Miss Hall is mentioned as a witness for her. He denied that he had called Miss Hall "a disappointed sap." Reid corroborated Hurley's testimony.

FRESHMAN RULES DROPPED.

The long-projected abolition of freshman rules at City College, by which first-year students were compelled to wear skull-caps and otherwise act with humility, finally went into effect this term. In his announcement declaring the rules at an end, S. Sorkin, President of the "Frosh Soph Committee," declared they were out of place at City College, where there were no dormitories and practically no campus life. As a substitute, various athletic contests will be held to continue the tradition of the antagonism between the freshmen and sophomores.

In a letter commending the action of the committee, President Sidney E. Mezes writes that the rules were relics "of the days when City College was in its swaddling clothes."

You should know that you may have your Pro-phy-lac-tic with hard, medium, or soft bristles. You use it on your gums as well as your teeth—and there are different conditions in different mouths. So ask for the degree of stiffness you like the best. Whatever degree you use, always have one in good condition. Springy bristles shaped scientifically are what do the work.

The world's standard tooth brush comes in three degrees of stiffness

These markings of bristles as hard, medium, or soft are dependable—so that you may rely on the kind you like. This feature is one of eight originated by Pro-phy-lac-tic. The other seven are:

3 The curved handle with the tapered and beveled end, which enables the Pro-phy-lac-tic to get behind the teeth and clean all teeth—originated by the Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush.

4 The use of a symbol to mark each brush, so that every individual may know his own Pro-phy-lac-tic—originated by the Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush.

7 Made in America by Americans—originated by the Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush. Now sold in every civilized community on earth. Record Crowd for Polo Grounds Sees Giants Defeat Senators, 6-4, in Third Game

Theoretically, Mayor John F. Hylan threw out the first ball yesterday, but actually he posed only for the camera men. There was something of the same spirit in the baseball produced for the occasion. It was a little less than real baseball—in every respect far below the high mark set by the first two games.

Few world's series games have seen poorer pitching. The Senators used four and so did the Giants, three of them appearing for brief periods in the fatal ninth. Reading from right to left, the Washington hurlers were Fred Marberry, Allen Russell, Joe Martina and Byron Speece. Hugh McQuillan, McGraw's first choice, was followed by three added starters, Bill Ryan, Claude Jonnard and John Watson. The hitting was not vast, but there were many bases on balls, and under the strain of one bad situation after another the fielding became disjointed and loose. Travis Jackson's failure to catch a fly ball in the ninth almost cost the Giants the ball game. There were other mistakes, mental and manual, and the fine, crisp, craftsmanlike touches of the two other games were missing.

Except on the part of Frisch. The difference between victory and defeat was Frisch. New York's pitchers certainly were not any better than Washington's, and there were just as many visiting runners crowding the bases and waiting to be knocked home. But New York had a Frisch. Twice, by superb running catches, by true desperation added to great speed, he turned back a rising Washington attack and saved the Giants.

Frisch Really Wins the Game.

Frisch wasn't exactly the whole team, but he managed to play second and first base and centre field and right field, and, to boot, acted as captain and directing genius of the whole concern. With the aid of Ryan, who hit the first home run of his major league career and the first ever hit by a National League pitcher in a world's series, Frisch managed to win the ball game.

He made two great catches with two crippled hands. Starting the series with a finger on his right hand badly swollen and sprained, he met with another accident in Washington. The door of an automobile closed against Frisch's left hand and one of his fingers was painfully jammed.

Goose Goslin, the Babe Ruth of the Potomac, was the victim of Frankie's two marvelous catches, which gave Goslin a just grievance to nurse last night. In the fourth McQuillan walked Rice, the first batter, and Goslin, driven relentlessly to the fly to centre, Kelly was far back and slow to come up, so Frisch had to make the catch himself. He seemed to have no chance at all. The ball wasn't a short one by any contrary, it was really in right field territory. Before Frisch had gone ten feet his cap flew off. With his head bare and his hands stretched before him, the Pride of Polo Grounds ran and ran, and the ball kept dropping. At the last second Frisch flung out both hands and with his back to the plate caught the ball.

No grand stand spectator could see the catch, but the shout which went up was evidence enough.

Judge followed with a two-bagger and McQuillan, later in the inning, was yanked in favor of Ryan. If the Goslin fly had fallen safe, the Senators would probably have won.

Goslin came to bat again in the fifth and this time he decided to fool Frisch by smacking one to right, behind first base. Frisch had less of a sprint to make but a lower fly to handle, and his snap catch was the finer. Again he went out like a greyhound and again he captured a ball that was falling like a plummet—his arms outstretched, his feet flashing over the grass but, this time, his cap on his head.

Frisch rushed to the rescue again in the seventh when the Senators got men to first and second with one out. Goslin again was at bat, and you can guess most of the rest. Goose, resorting to the deeper strategy, hit the ball on the ground, but that didn't fool Frisch. He skimmed over to a spot closer to first than second and made a pretty running stop with both hands. Goslin quit in disgust. Four times a victim of Frisch, including an easy grounder in the first, Goose bunted in the ninth and the ball rolled to third, which was the only spot not reached by Frankie during the afternoon. The bunt was considered a moral victory for Goslin.

Ryan's Homer a Long One.

Ryan's homer came in the fourth and was no fragile clout. When Bill finally hit a four-bagger, he made it a good one. The ball soared rapidly for the upper right field stand and landed well back. Moreover, it added a valuable run and made the score 4-2 in favor of the Giants. The National League champions tallied again in the sixth when Ralph Miller, the substitute third baseman, let Gowdy's thrust get through him and Lindstrom doubled to right.

It looked bad for the Senators, but to the eternal credit of Washington let it be said that their heads were up even when a whole pitching staff was collapsing around their ears. Three runs behind, they went into the ninth to do or die. Appropriately enough, Bucky Harris led the charge. He hoisted a fly to left centre and Jackson, running out and interfering with Kelly, missed the ball after a wild stab. Kelly could have had the sphere if not molested.

After Rice had popped to Lindstrom, Goslin bunted safely and Harris hastened to second. Judge punched a single to right and filled the bases. This was enough punishment in one day for Ryan. The home run pride of Worcester, Mass., retreated to the clubhouse, there to join four fellow-flingers in silent contemplation, and Jonnard was summoned from the bull pen.

Claude threw one strike and four balls at Bluege, forcing Harris over the plate and putting the Senators only two runs behind. There was one out and the tying marker was on second. A single would have tied the score and probably have ruined the Giants.

Watson Nips the Rally.

So out went Jonnard. It was no place for pitchers who couldn't propel the ball over the plate. McGraw had Barnes and Watson warming up. Barnes started out of the bullpen first but was waved back and Watson strolled to the front. Strolled is a literal description. John wasn't excited. Of course, the bases were full and 50,000 were shouting like madmen and the game hung in the balance. But John saw no reason why he shouldn't saunter. The more mercurial Frisch yelled impatiently at him and as a concession Watson broke into what was a dog trot for him.

But he wasn't the least bit disturbed. Finishing up his run, he took the ball, gazed solemnly and impassively at Hank Gowdy, wound up easily and put the Senators in their places. One ball to Ralph Miller, and then the batter lifted an easy foul to Lindstrom. A ball to Muddy Ruel, then two sharply curving strikes that flecked the plate. Ruel fouled the next one, and a curve outside made it two and two. Watson blinked again in a stolid sort of way, wound up and threw, and Ruel hit the peanut of grounders to Lindstrom, who stepped on third, forced Judge and ended the game.

Frisch may have been Winged Mercury, but Watson with his dog trot was the man of the hour—that hour, at any rate.

McQuillan and Marberry got safely through the first inning, but the Giants slugged "Firpo" in the second and had him staggering. Terry opened with a single to right, and Wilson struck out. However, when Jackson grounded to Bluege, the latter's throw was bad and pulled Harris off second, Terry being safe. It was scored as an error for Harris, which didn't seem right.

Then Rice struck came Gowdy's line hit to it, which scored Terry and moved Jackson to third. Gowdy tried for second, but Goslin's excellent throw nailed him, making two out. Marberry, losing all vestige of control, uncorked a wild pitch on which Jackson ran in, and then walked Lindstrom and hit Frisch, filling the bases again. Young was called out on strikes and temporarily Marberry was safe.

Marberry Is Removed.

In the third the Giants made it 3 to 2 on singles by Kelly and Terry and a double play, during which Kelly scored. Marberry had been tapped for five hits and three runs in three innings, and he was patently over his head, no matter how good a relief pitcher he might be. Harris, therefore, relieved him in the fourth by sending Tate up to bat for the big, swarthy Texan.

Before Tate's appearance, though, there had been plenty of happenings. McQuillan walked Rice at the outset of the round, and after Frisch had robbed Goslin of a hit, Judge doubled inside third base, advancing Rice to third. Bluege's walk filled the bases, and Miller's solid smash which Wilson caught in left drove in Rice over the plate. When McQuillan passed Ruel to fill the bases, he was recalled by McGraw, and Ryan went in. Tate batted for Marberry and also drew a walk, forcing Judge in with a second run. Ryan steadied down and Liebold fouled to Wilson.

Ryan had been only a fair relief pitcher but as a batsman he helped the cause immensely with his homer in the fourth, the first hit off Russell. In the fifth Frisch's second great catch balked the Senators, and the Giants couldn't move Russell. Ryan had two out in the sixth when Miller singled. Ruel drove a short fly to right and Young, the Texan, came in for it, snared the ball at his shoetops, fell and rolled, but still kept the ball. Once more Ryan was saved.

Encouraged by the turn of events, the Giants invaded Russell again in the same inning and coined another run. A grounder from Gowdy's bat seeped through Miller, and Ryan followed with a neat sacrifice bunt on which Gowdy hustled to second. Lindstrom could and did hit. His short fly drifted over Judge's head and landed on right field sod where no Senator was, while Gowdy scored and Lindstrom went to second. The combined efforts of Frisch and Young couldn't move him further, the first popping out, the second grounding to Harris.

The eighth saw a none too steady Ryan wavering again. All that Bill seemed to have was a slow ball cleverly delivered and a curve not up to the usual Ryan standard, but usually deceptive. Ryan's control was nothing to speak of at all. He was pitching many high balls and getting into holes. When Bluege singled in the eighth with one out Ryan lost his poise and walked Miller. He barely got the ball over for Ruel, and the count was three and two when the Washington catcher rolled a grounder which Jackson ferried to first in plenty of time. On the play Bluege and Miller moved up a base, and Harris told Shirley, his young reserve first baseman, to bat for Joe Martina, who had relieved Russell when McNeely hit in place of the pitcher in the seventh.

Lindstrom Fumbles.

Shirley's effort was a grounder, to Lindstrom's left and bouncing trickily. Jackson probably could have attended to it, but Lindstrom went over for it and fumbled, losing the batter at first and the runner at the plate, who scored. It was called a single by the official scorers.

Liebold, the next man up, made the mistake of slamming the ball in Frisch's direction, and Frank, coming up with the ball, tossed Nemo out at Terry's station to retire the side.

Speece, a new pitcher at the capital this year, was Harris's next selection, and the Giants took the run back in their section of the Washington. The overalert grandstand managers criticised Harris for not sending Mogridge or Zahniser, better pitchers, to the hill for the eighth when the visitors were only two runs to the rear.

Speece's hit was the signal for Jackson's first hit of the series, a bunt which dribbled down the third-base line and was unplayable by Speece. Even though Catcher Ruel diagnosed the New York strategy and called for a pitchout, Jackson stole second, Ruel's throw being so high that Bluege couldn't hold it even after a leap upward. Gowdy's single to right was fast and Rice fielded it cleanly, so Jennings, coaching at third, held Jackson at that bag. Ryan, who had batted in one run, batted in another when he slashed a grounder off Speece's glove into the infield. Speece flung him out, but Jackson came over with a run and Gowdy negotiated second safely.

A long fly by Lindstrom sent Sergeant Hank to third, after which McGraw tried the squeeze play. With anybody else but Gowdy on third, Frisch's splendid bunt would have turned the trick, but Hank was running with more earnestness than speed and was nipped in a close play, Speece to Ruel.

Despite the out, the scorers allowed Frisch a hit on the grounds that there was no chance to retire him at first, and there was no force play at the plate, Gowdy not being compelled to run.

On the day's evidence it appears that the Giants' pitching is none too steady, but that it is better than Washington's. New York made eleven hits and the Capital folks, six. Two Senator twirlers have started a game, but not finished it, whereas both Nehf and Bentley worked complete games. Peckinpaugh's injury, if it keeps him out, will be a serious blow. Harris has no pitcher today who shapes up in advance as being the equal of Barnes.

As was the case yesterday, the Senators' fighting spirit is the one asset which may carry them through. Yet they did not seem to have the same tremendous attack that the Giants possess. If the series comes down to a case of indifferent pitching and slam-bang hitting the National League team will be at a distinct advantage. Dogged determination is something, but not everything.

The crowd was sprightlier than the Washington throngs, but the program of ceremonies before the game was not to be compared with the gorgeous proceedings at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

The Capital knows how to do this better, and besides they had more to do. It being the third game and the fourth world series in this city, the New York management went about the traditional ritual on a modest scale.

Band Leads Mayor Hylan In.

There was a band, but that was about all until the Mayor came on the field to receive the tribute of the populace. Ten minutes before game time trained New Yorkers began peering in the direction of the big gate in centre field, and before long it opened to admit Mr. Hylan and a large convoy. The band was at the head of the procession and the Mayor came next, completely surrounded by Police Sergeants and dignitaries. They marched across the field and down the first base side of the stand, and the Mayor doffed his hat frequently.

But somehow the applause didn't seem to have the swing to it. It was something less than deafening. After reaching his box Mr. Hylan moved into it, and the band then struck up "The Star Spangled Banner." Later the photographers caught the Mayor posed with his arm drawn back and a new ball in his hand, but Mr. Hylan didn't follow the eminent example of Mr. Coolidge and make a real toss.

By that time nearly every seat was filled. The only empty chairs were in the highest and furthest part of the grand stand, and there couldn't have been more than a score of these. In the graceful horseshoe of the Polo grounds the throng made a striking and imposing spectacle, and there was no doubt even then about it being a record gathering.

The Game by Innings.

First Inning.

SENATORS—McQuillan's first pitch to Nemo Liebold, the Washington lead-off man, was called a strike by Umpire Dinneen. The next two were balls and the next was a strike, after which he went out on a grounder to Frisch. The crowd gave Manager Stanley Harris a big hand when he stepped to the plate. The first pitch was a called strike, the next two were balls, then followed a foul strike. Harris finally went out on a fly to Ross Young in right field. After the count had reach three and two with Sam Rice at the bat, the Washington right fielder drew a pass. Before pitching to Goslin, the next batter, McQuillan made an unsuccessful attempt to catch Rice off first base. McQuillan also made two other attempts to pick Rice off, but failed both times. Goslin then hit a hard grounder to Frisch for the third out. No runs. No hits. No errors.

GIANTS—After Marberry had pitched three balls to Lindstrom, the Giants' first batter, he burned over three strikes in a row. Lindstrom failed to offer at any of them. With the count at two balls and one strike, Frisch died on an easy fly to Goslin in left field. After taking one ball and one strike, Young shot a neat single to the left of Peckinpaugh. Kelly has two strikes on him and then passed out on an easy grounder to Harris after Young had started for second base on the hit-and-run play. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Second Inning.

SENATORS—After one strike had been called on Judge, the Washington first baseman shot a long foul along the right-field foul line. He then took two balls and followed these with a sharp single to the left of second base for the Senators' first hit of the game. Bluege took one ball and then bounced one to McQuillan, who converted it into a fast double play with the help of Frisch and Terry. Peckinpaugh, the next batter, hit one down to Lindstrom, who fumbled but recovered the ball in time to get his man at first. No runs. One hit. No errors.

GIANTS—Terry hit the first pitched ball for a clean single to right field. Wilson struck out after the count had reached two strikes and one ball. Jackson hit the first ball to Bluege and, with a double play in sight, the Washington third baseman made a low throw to Harris at second base and the latter dropped the ball, both runners being safe. Gowdy picked out the first ball and cracked it to left for a single, on which Terry scored with the first run of the game. After throwing two balls to McQuillan, Marberry let loose with a wild pitch and Jackson completed the circuit from third base. McQuillan then drew a pass. Lindstrom also walked, moving McQuillan to second. With the count at two balls and two strikes, Frisch was hit with a pitched ball, filling the bases. Marberry pitched two balls to Young and then shot over three called strikes, retiring the side. Two runs. Two hits. One error.

Third Inning.

SENATORS—After Ruel had worked the count to three and two, he walked. Marberry forced the Washington catcher at second on a slow bounder to McQuillan. Terry made a good catch of Frisch's throw to first as the latter tried for a double play. Liebold went out on a fly to Wilson in left field. Harris was out when Terry made a fine running catch of his foul fly in front of the grandstand. No runs. No hits. No errors.

GIANTS—Roger Peckinpaugh was taken out of the game at this point because of a strained ligament in his leg. Ralph Miller was sent in to play third base for Washington and Bluege was shifted over to shortstop. Kelly singled to centre after the count had reached three and two. Terry bounced a single over Judge's head and into right field, Kelly taking third. Marberry deflected Wilson's hard bounder to Bluege, who turned it into a double play with the help of Harris and Judge. In the meantime Kelly scored with the Giants' third run. After one ball had been called on him, Jackson fanned on three successive pitches. One run. Two hits. No errors.

Fourth Inning.

SENATORS—Rice, leading off for Washington, walked on five pitched balls. Frisch made a marvelous running catch of Goslin's fly to centre field. Judge, who had made the Senators' only hit up to this point, again came through, this time with a two-bagger to left field. This hit put Rice on third base. Bluege walked after the count had reached three and two, and the bases were filled. Miller hit a hard smash to Wilson, and Rice scored after the catch. Judge was held at second base and Bluege at first. Ruel also drew a pass and the bases were filled again. McQuillan was taken from the box at this point, and Bill Ryan went in to pitch for the Giants. Tate was sent in to bat for Marberry. Tate also drew a pass, forcing Judge across the plate. The bases were still filled. Wilson made a nine-running catch of Liebold's fly near the left field foul line for the third out. Two runs. One hit. No errors.

GIANTS—Allan Russell was sent in to pitch for Washington. Gowdy went out on a fly to Liebold in centre field. With the count at one strike and two balls, Ryan hit one into the upper tier of the right-field stands for a home run. It was the first time that a National League pitcher ever hit for the circuit in a world's series. Rice made a great one-handed running catch of Lindstrom's fly against the right-field wall. Frisch picked out the first ball and smashed a sharp hit to centre for one base. Young also hit the first ball and went out on a fly to Goslin. One run. Two hits. No errors.

Fifth Inning.

SENATORS—With the count at three balls and two strikes, Harris went out on a short fly to Kelly in centre field. Rice passed out on a grounder to Frisch. Frisch robbed Goslin of another hit when he raced into right field and made a great catch of the Washington left fielder's Texas Leaguer. No runs. No hits. No errors.

GIANTS—Kelly lined a single to left after two strikes and three balls had been called on him. Terry went out on a high fly to Bluege at shortstop. Wilson forced Kelly at second on a slow grounder to Harris. Jackson passed out on a high fly to Miller. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Sixth Inning.

SENATORS—Judge, who had made the only two hits credited to the Senators up to this point, failed to come through this time and went out on an easy fly to Kelly in centre. Bluege fanned after the count had reached three balls and two strikes. Jackson knocked down Miller's smash near second base, but he failed to hold it and it went for a single. Young raced in and made a great catch of Ruel's short fly to right. No runs. One hit. No errors.

GIANTS—Gowdy was safe when his grounder went through Miller and into left field. Ryan bunted to Russell, who threw him out. Gowdy took second on the sacrifice. Lindstrom shot the ball along the right field foul line for two bases, Gowdy scoring. Ruel claimed that Lindstrom failed to touch first base on the hit, but the umpires paid no heed to him. Frisch went out on a foul fly to Miller. Harris made a nice play on Young's grounder and threw him out. One run. One hit. One error.

Seventh Inning.

SENATORS—McNeely batted for Russell and went out on a fly to Wilson in left field. Liebold drew a base on balls after the count had reached three and two. Harris was called out on strikes. Rice's grounder near second went for a single, advancing Liebold to the midway. Frisch made a splendid stop of Goslin's grounder and threw him out. No runs. One hit. No errors.

GIANTS—Martina was sent in to pitch for the Senators. Kelly was called out on strikes. Ruel made a nice catch of Terry's foul fly in front of the Giants' dugout. Wilson went out on a fly to Goslin in left field. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Eighth Inning.

SENATORS—Judge hit the first ball for a grounder to Terry, who made the putout unassisted. After one ball had been called on him, Bluege shot a single to left. Miller drew a base on balls, putting Bluege on second. With the count at three and two and the runners in motion, Ruel hit to Jackson, who threw him out at first, Bluege taking third and Miller moving to second. Shirley was sent in to bat for Martina. Lindstrom ran over in front of Jackson and fumbled Shirley's grounder. It went for a single and Bluege scored, while Miller took third. Liebold grounded to Frisch for the third out. One run. Two hits. No errors.

GIANTS—Speece was sent in to pitch for the Senators. Jackson beat out a slow roller toward third base. With Gowdy at the bat, Jackson stole second, aided by a high throw by Ruel. Gowdy shot a single to right and Jackson was held at third when Rice made a fine throw to the plate. Speece knocked down Ryan's hard smash and threw him out, Jackson scored and Gowdy took second on the play. Lindstrom hit a long fly to Liebold in centre and Gowdy took third after the catch. Frisch made a perfect bunt toward third, but Speece pounced on the ball and threw Gowdy out at the plate. The official scorer gave Frisch credit for a hit on the theory that he would have beaten it out and that Gowdy was not forced to run. One run. Three hits. No errors.

Ninth Inning.

SENATORS—A Texas leaguer by Harris to centre field fell safe among Kelly, Wilson and Jackson. Rice died on a pop fly to Lindstrom. Goslin beat out a bunt to Ryan, Harris taking second. Judge shot a single to right for his third hit of the game, filling the bases. Jonnard was sent into the box to replace Ryan, and Southworth was sent to centre field to replace Kelly. Jonnard walked Bluege and forced Harris across the plate. Watson was then sent in to replace Jonnard in the box for the Giants. Miller went out on a foul fly to Lindstrom. After the count had reached 2 and 2, Ruel hit to Lindstrom, who stepped on third, forcing Judge for the final out of the game. One run. Three hits. No errors.

GIANTS WIN CHEERS FROM HOSTILE FANS

FRISCH'S PLAY TURNS TIDE

Applause Thunders Across Diamond After His Sensational Catches Off Goslin—Young Gains Glory.

The Giants really scored two victories yesterday. They took the third game of the world's series from the Senators and they won over thousands and thousands of hostile fans. Never before has a New York team appeared on its home grounds against a team from another city with fewer friends. When the game started there were some 60,000 persons crowded into the historic stadium that lies under the hanging rocks of Coogan's Bluffs, and of those there were probably 50,000 cheering madly for the visitors from the capital.

Whether this animosity was caused by the recent bribery scandal which caused the banishment of two Giants and involved three others with charges or whether it was because of the psychological popularity of the underdog is a matter which cannot be decided. Probably it was a combination of both.

Even before the scandal charges popped up to mar the perfection of the world's series the nation was pulling for Washington and Walter Johnson to win in the American League race, and that allegiance carried over into the world's series. There was no doubt that Washington was heavily backed when the teams took the field yesterday, but when the thrilling ninth inning was suddenly brought to an end, and even before, a great mass had sprung its affections and admiration to the Giants.

The fighting spirit, the miraculous fielding of Frisch and Young and the pluck in the pinch couldn't help but bring forth the plaudits of the multitude. Even the stanchest rooters who continued to cling to the Washington standard found a place in their hearts to admire the great work of McGraw's men and their rescue of four faltering pitchers.

Announcer Stirs Crowd.

The first outburst that indicated Washington's popularity in its enemy's stronghold came when the announcer bellowed forth the line-up for the day. After each name was announced a voice from the depths of the grandstands yelled back: "Where's O'Connell? What's O'Connell playing?"

There undoubtedly would have been more of this sort of comment had the game been less exciting, but in the tenseness of the battle all blots on the Giants' escutcheon and on the game itself were forgotten—as they were forgotten in Washington as soon as the series got under way.

Nevertheless, it was Washington which received the majority of the applause. There was a demonstration of admiration when Stanley Harris, the Senators' boy manager, came to the plate in the first inning. There was no such warm greeting for any of the Giant players. In the fourth inning, when the Senators started a rally that threatened to tie the score, the "Clap-clap-clap-clap-clap" that from time immemorial has meant the pleasure of the throng for a rally echoed and re-echoed across the sunlit field. In the last half of the same inning, when the Giants started a rally, the noise started again, but it was a feeble demonstration and soon died out.

When Frisch raced into centre field and miraculously pulled down Goslin's seemingly sure Texas leaguer he returned to the bench in silence. But a few minutes later, after Sam Rice made a gaining one-hand stab of Lindstrom's drive, he was forced to tip his cap as the applause thundered across the field.

Frisch Is Heartily Cheered.

Then came the turning point. Frisch duplicated his feat the next time Goslin came to the bat, and as he trotted in to the bench at the end of the inning the first real Giant cheer went up. The crowd was not completely won over, however, for as the Senators took their turn at the bat in the seventh a boiling sea of human forms bobbed up for the customary welcome and urge for the favorites—traditionally the home team. When the Giants came in for their seventh inning there was another uprising, but fewer paid homage to the National Leaguers than did to the representatives of the American circuit.

But the Giants wouldn't be denied, and as the innings went by and the situation grew more tense, the crowd was almost completely won over by the brilliant exhibition of the National League champions. Young made a semi-result catch that cut off a hit at an opportune moment. Frisch came in for still more glory when he scooped up a grounder that appeared headed for deep right field and thrown out the runner at first, and the rest of the team, fighting to the last to hold their lead, were elevated from a scorned and suspected group to a place in the sun where they stayed free from taints. The moral victory was as great as the physical triumph.

The crowd, which wedged itself into every available seat and overflowed into the aisles, was the largest that ever saw a game at the Polo Grounds. The paid attendance broke all previous records for the structure, 37,608 being the official count, while many other thousands were present in one capacity or another.

It was an orderly throng entering and departing, but once inside there were the usual sounds which issue from a great throng in the heat of battle. Boos mingled with cheers, low growls were heard throughout the contest, at times the noise rose to a piercing shriek in the thrill of a brilliant play.

Less Dignified Than Washington.

As compared to the crowds which saw the games in Washington, the assemblage at the Polo Grounds was noisier and less dignified. In the National Capital the stamp of dignity was placed on the proceedings by the presence of President Coolidge, Generals and Admirals, Senators and Congressmen, Ambassadors and Ministers from foreign lands and high officials from every department of the Government. In the Polo Grounds Mayor Hylan was the most important figure, although there were many other prominent persons in the crowd, hidden in the mass of humanity that was banked row upon row up into the darkness of the rafters.

Washington's contingent was led in its cheering by Al Jolson and Clark Griffith Jr., the Senators' bat boy and adopted son of the club's President. These two, the man from a box and the boy from the field, faced the stands and urged them to strain their lungs to back the visitors.

The Giants' cheer leader was a lone and persecuted person. He was seated behind the home plate, but was forced to leave his seat by two ushers and a policeman. Protesting he went, shouting as he stumbled down the aisle.

"I'm a Giant rooter, that's who I am. You're putting me out because I'm a Giant rooter." And he flopped down in a box to enjoy the rest of the game from one of the best locations in the entire structure.

RUPPERT A FAN, ANYWAY.

He Enthuses Over Series Even If Yanks Are Not Playing.

His disappointment over the failure of his team to win the American League pennant cannot dim the enthusiasm of Colonel Jake Ruppert, Yankee owner, for baseball.

The Colonel was a visitor last evening to the baseball writers' headquarters at the Hotel Commodore. When his presence became known a big cheer went up. It was a reception reminiscent of that which greeted the Yankee owner last year after his team had beaten the Giants in the World's Series, when Colonel Ruppert, in a short speech, impressed upon the writers the pleasure he felt, not so much over the victory of his team on that occasion but in the vindication of the ability of little Miller Huggins as a manager.

Responding to the cheer last evening, Colonel Ruppert said: "I can't make a speech such as I made last year about this time, although I would like to. But maybe I'll get the chance again next year."

New York Representative to Ask Congress To Place Baseball Under Federal Control

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Federal control of organized baseball was promised today by Representative Sol Bloom of New York as the best method of preventing the scandals in the national game that have shocked the sporting world. Mr. Bloom, who in his early days was a ball player in California, announced that when Congress reconvenes he will introduce a bill to create a Federal commission to replace a "voluntary, self-imposed dictatorship."

"The nation-wide interest in the world series now in progress, combined with the national chagrin that one of the participating teams is involved in a scandal, convinces me that the time has come when the Federal Government should take a supervisory interest in baseball," he said.

"Baseball is a matter of interstate commerce. The two major leagues, most of the minor leagues and all of the larger minor leagues are interstate affairs. Congress has power to regulate the interstate operation of railroads and the interstate movement of foodstuffs, medicines, &c.

"If Congress can do this it can regulate interstate baseball. The sport is a national pastime and it has taken such a hold on our people that the Government should provide some sort of regulation for the good of the sport itself as well as the protection of the public.

"Baseball magnates recognized the demand for some sort of super-regulation when Judge Landis was chosen as Czar, but the game is too big for one man to control. When Congress reconvenes I shall introduce a regulatory bill and I believe it will be enacted into a law."

M'GRAW IS PLEASED BUT NOT ENTHUSED

PLAYERS SUPPRESS JOY

Happy in Victory, but Fail to Show Unrestrained Jubilation They Did Last Year.

That second triumph of the Giants over the Senators was sweet to John J. McGraw, but there have been victories in the wonderful career of the Little Napoleon that have been much sweeter and that have produced greater enthusiasm in the gray-haired manager of the Giants.

Seen immediately following the game at a rendezvous under the grandstand where he would be away from the great crowds which, particularly at world series time, want to congratulate him, McGraw was not very much enthused about the victory his athletes had just scored over Bucky Harris's squad. He did not say so in just so many words, but McGraw's attitude indicated plainly that he was not satisfied with his ball club's work—that, like the thousands which witnessed it, he did not look upon the game as anything to rave about.

"There's not much for me to say," said McGraw. "I guess there's little for anybody to say. I'm pleased that my team won and that we have the upper hand again. For the same, however, there is nothing to say, except that Frisch stood out with his wonderful playing and contributed the greatest play of the game. Gowdy was great with the bat and so was Judge. That's all to talk about unless you want to go into the wretched pitching on both sides."

Unless he changes his plans to meet a strategic move from the opposition, McGraw will start Virgil Barnes in the box this afternoon when the teams line up for the fourth skirmish of the series. This arrangement will provide another day of rest for Art Nehf, the Giant southpaw who vanquished Walter Johnson in that memorable mound duel at Washington on the opening day. Nehf is expected to be the Giant hurling selection tomorrow.

Giants Repress Enthusiasm.

The scene in the clubhouse after the game was typical of a triumphant baseball club without being overemphasized. The players were a happy, carefree, joking lot. Yet there was not the jubilation, the unrestrained joy or spontaneous enthusiasm which was in evidence last year when the Giants were battling the Yankees and every winning game transformed the National League champions into so many schoolboys. This collection of diamond warriors appeared as much, if not more, determined, without an emphatic show of the celebration spirit. It was an atmosphere of repressed enthusiasm or excitement which pervaded the dressing quarters of the Giant club.

John Watson was hailed as the rescuer for his success in stemming the rushing Washington tide in the ninth, when the Senators, with a fourth run in and the bases crowded, threatened to break orith in a victorious rally. Watson's back and shoulders were red from the resounding slaps he received from his mates, and his good right arm must have been sore from the handshaking of his teammates, who appreciated the responsibility Watson shouldered when he entered the box after Claude Jonnard failed in the crisis. Jonnard keenly felt the sting of the disappointment he caused when he forced in a run on four pitched balls and was more than ordinarily quiet.

Another who was deep in the gloom of disappointment was Hugh McQuillan. The Astoria favorite was depressed over his failure, which he attributed to one day too much if idleness. "I laid off one day too long," said McQuillan. "I had a lot of 'stuff,' but just couldn't get it over. I was not up to my best form. I thought I was going to pitch the Sunday game and was all primed for the assignment. But I think the extra day interfered with my work."

Ryan Is Very Happy.

Rosy Bill Ryan was enthusiastic over his home-run drive, and jokingly called attention to the fact that he was responsible for the two runs which separated the Giants from their rivals when the skirmish ended. The players all were enthusiastic over the work of Frisch, but their enthusiasm was as nothing compared to that of Rogers Hornsby Jennings, McGraw's lieutenant.

When he was through applauding Frisch, Jennings, with a meaning wink of the eye, admitted that the Fordham Flash played as good a game around second as he did himself in the long age when he was covering second and predicted great things for Frisch. The popular Bronxite, with characteristic modesty, made little of his wonderful fielding. He was more inclined to discuss the improvement in the injured finger of his right hand and the absence of any great pain in the injury he sustained to a finger of the left hand in Washington the other night.

Guard Players from Fans.

The clubhouse, situated between the wings of the centrefield bleachers, was carefully guarded from the rabid fans who seek to greet the players after a game. The stairs leading to the clubhouse were guarded and only those whose credentials warranted their admission were permitted to pass the guardian of the stairs and another sentry at the clubhouse door. Many of the fans however, waited outside the grounds after the game for a glimpse of McGraw or their favorite player, and caused the only congestion noticed in emptying the park.

When Manager McGraw appeared on the way to his waiting automobile, a score of friends and admirers of the Giant leader from his birthplace in Truxton, Ill., stepped forward and showered him with congratulations. In the delegation was Harry Kenney, son of Bert Kenney, who managed the team with which McGraw made his baseball debut at Olean, N. Y. Ed Hopkins, a schoolmate and former fellow-player of McGraw, was there with his wife, as were Mr. and Mrs. John O'Conner, Ed Bosworth and William McGraw, a cousin of the Giant leader.

INJURY MAY KEEP PECKINPAUGH IDLE

HARRIS AND MEN GLOOMY

Keenly Disappointed by Defeat in Third Game—Expect to Even It Up Today.

The pendulum of victory again swung in the direction of the Giants yesterday and shadows of disappointment were thick over the clubhouse of the Senators. There was gloom in the dressing rooms of the defeated invaders—deep gloom that smothered all conversation—but not despair. The Senators were beaten, but in their own opinion, only for a day.

The first thought of each Washington player as he entered the dressing quarters, exhausted from the strain of three bitter struggles in as many days, seemed to be for his injured teammate, Roger Peckinpaugh. Perhaps in the mind of each was the thought, "What would Peck have done in the pinch?" The disabled shortstop had come through in both of the other games with a resounding double when it was needed, and most of his teammates hadn't forgotten it.

But it is very unlikely that Peckinpaugh will play today and he may not play again in the series. No one was able to tell how soon the big fellow would be able to take his place in the field again. Peck himself didn't know; Manager Harris didn't know, and Mike Martin, the trainer, didn't know. Time alone could tell, they all said.

The hit that won the second game of the series for Washington lost the services of Peckinpaugh for the same team. It developed that he had torn a muscle in his left thigh while speeding to second and watching Judge cross the plate with the winning run, in the ninth inning of Sunday's game. No one knew what had happened at the time. Peck said nothing when he came into the clubhouse at Griffith Field, joyous in victory. But when he arose yesterday morning he felt the pain keenly and reported his condition to Manager Harris. It was decided, however, that an injured Peck was better than no Peck at all, and he started the game yesterday, only to be forced to quit in the third inning.

Eager to Get Back Into Game.

He sat in the dressing room at the Polo Grounds with his chin cupped in his hands, staring vacantly into space. When asked about his condition he told what had happened and added, longingly:

"I don't know how long I will have to stay out. I may be back tomorrow and I may not be back again before the series is over. I felt a muscle tear yesterday, and you never can tell how long it takes for those things to heal."

Trainer Martin packed the injured thigh with ice for two hours after yesterday's game. "It's the only thing to do," said Mike. "He may come around into shape tonight. I can't tell how long it will take." Manager Harris was just as much in the dark. The whole room was in the dark for that matter, and hardly a voice was heard except when one of the players hunted irritably for a lost shoe or another recalled some play that might have gone differently.

"It was a tough one to lose," he said. "We had to be off our stride on the same day that they were, only we were further off. When a team has to use four pitchers it isn't very strong, and the Giants weren't very strong today. We were less so, however. Frisch's fielding at second was wonderful and three plays like he made today are seldom seen in one game. I give him all the glory and honor he deserves.

"We had opportunities and lost them. Some of them we lost because of the Giants' good work and some of them we lost because of our own failure to come through with hits when hits were needed most. The loss of Peckinpaugh was a heavy one and it cost us a lot of power, for he is one of the most dangerous hitters in a team on the club.

Still Has Faith in Marberry.

"We were weak in the box, as were the Giants. Marberry might have come through for us, and I think I did the right thing by leaving him in the box as long as I did. He is one of the best men we have—a wonderful pitcher. He had some tough breaks behind him and he ended up each inning going strong, two of them with strike-outs. He's a great pitcher and I have every confidence that he will come back strong the next time I use him. I fully intend to use him again before this series is over. Tomorrow it will be either Ogden or Mogridge, and I think we'll have better pitching than we had today.

"This club isn't beaten yet by a long way. We've given them a battle in both the games we have lost, and there isn't any doubt in my mind or in the minds of any of the other players that we're just as good as they are. Tomorrow is another game."

Near the door stood a player already in street clothes. He hadn't even put on a uniform. He was a youngster named Leffler, new to the big leagues, but a player who would have been valuable to the Washington Club yesterday. Four times during the latter part of the season he was called on to deliver as a pinch-hitter and three times he came through, once with a double that cleared loaded bases. However, Leffler joined the Senators too late in the season to be eligible for the world's series and he was helpless when his team-mates needed him most yesterday.

(The Associated Press).

The home run record of world's series competition is endangered. To date in this series five circuit smacks have been hit, breaking all records for three games up to 1923. In the series last year ten home runs were hit in the six games.

FLOWERS BARRED BY M'GRAW AS JINX

Many Other Baseball Notables at the Polo Grounds—Sidelights of the Third Game.

Just before the game yesterday a messenger arrived at the door of the Giants' clubhouse with a huge horseshoe of flowers addressed to Manager John J. McGraw. The flowers had been sent by admiring friends, but McGraw declined to have them brought onto the field.

"That's the surest jinx in baseball," said McGraw as he ordered that the flowers be kept in the clubhouse until after the game.

Stanley Harris of the Senators was not superstitious and accepted a floral horseshoe near the Senators' dugout before the game—and the Senators lost.

Judge Landis occupied a box along the third base line, about four boxes to the left of the Washington bench. His light hat always was in evidence, as the Judge's favorite pose during the game is to use the top of the concrete wall of the box for a chin rest. The only time he lifted his head was in the seventh inning when he "stretched."

A few seats from the Judge was Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, and Ed Barrows, business manager of the Yanks. The Colonel rooted hard for the Senators and said they had a great club. Barrow, however, seemed more interested in counting the gate. All he got out of it this year was the mental exercise. "Getting in shape for next season," he remarked.

When Fred Marberry came out to warm up there was a wild rush on the part of the camera men. The big Washington pitcher was surrounded on all sides, but he kept right on tossing the ball to Catcher Tate regardless of the bombardment. The league's leading rescue hurler did not find it necessary to call for any relief just then.

Ty Cobb was a busy man. He was near the top of the press section and between dictating to his assistant and passing hurried comment on the various plays he found little time to indulge in any friendly repartee with the crowd around him. Asked how the boys looked, he hastily remarked, "Great day for Frisch." That was unanimous.

"If the Giants ever decide to go out of baseball they'll have no trouble getting a job in a circus," remarked one Washington rooter after Frisch and Young made their sensational catches.

Babe Ruth was a busy individual exchanging felicitations with friends and other admirers before the game. At one time traffic was blocked for five minutes at the foot of the temporary press seats while the Babe and Emil Fuchs, President of the Braves, discussed baseball and the next world's series.

Christy Mathewson hurdled a couple of benches to find his seat in press row. The fans were not long in recognizing him and he received a hearty ovation. Matty removed his glasses and smiled.

Babe Ruth was called down in front of the Senators' field headquarters, and after greeting most of the Washington players he took his turn posing with various diamond stars. Dozens of cameras were worked overtime.

Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the comedians offered by the Griffith interests, staged their usual number. Their "slow motion" number was especially popular.

Four individuals wearing sombreros took possession of the field immediately after the game. They said they were here to root for every member of both teams who came from north of the Rio Grande and west of the Mississippi.

Jesse Burkett, famous major leaguer of the old days, was among those mingling with the boys in the press section. Naturally he was rooting for the Giants. "Mac's got a team that is capable of standing up against anything in the world," he said.

Mrs. Harry Sinclair deserted the races at Jamaica for a day to take in the opening game in New York. She occupied a box close to the Giants' dugout.

Al Jolson, who is a great friend of Walter Johnson and Bucky Harris, and also of John McGraw, rooted impartially and yesterday threw away his new hat when Ryan made his home run.

Mrs. Raymond T. Baker, the former Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, who never misses a world's series game if she can help it, was a box-holder.

SCOREBOARDS ATTRACT CROWDS OF GIANT FANS

Most of Rooting for Home Team, but Washington Plays Are Also Cheered.

With the world's series put down right in its own back yard, New York took a good deal more interest in the Fall baseball classic yesterday than on the two previous games, when the Giants and Senators battled in Washington. This was attested by the great throngs that packed around scoreboards throughout the city. A crowd which some estimated at 40,000, though it was probably much smaller, cheered the plays as they were thrown upon the scoreboard in Park Row.

At other scoreboards and wherever news of the game was flashed other big crowds gathered, and probably twice as many persons as saw the game itself stood in the warm sun and were content with the news that came flashing over the wires and onto the big boards.

Traffic in Park Row, Chambers Street and Broadway was blocked a good part of yesterday afternoon between 1:30 and 4:30 o'clock and the police had their hands full. In Cortlandt Street, Fulton Street, Greenwich Street and Nassau Street throngs listening in on radio loud speakers flashed from WEAF also blocked the way.

Subway lines were choked before and after the game and the Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated lines were hard pressed to care for the flow of traffic to and from the Polo Grounds. However, special trains soon took away the bulk of the crowd after the contest, and Interborough officials declared they had no more trouble handling the throngs than on Sunday during the regular season. Streets adjacent to the Polo Grounds, however, were congested with automobile traffic, and getting away from the vicinity of the Polo Grounds after the game was slow work.

Those who watched the bulletin boards yesterday showed a decided leaning toward the Giants, but the Senators did not lack for supporters. There was a great outburst in Park Row when Bill Ryan cracked out his home run.

Radio fans, it seems, got the greatest thrill out of the game that can be had without actually being on the scene. Yesterday they heard the announcer describe Frisch's thrilling plays and felt every surmise in the game vividly. The sound of Ryan's home run crash could be heard by thousands who were tuned in on private receiving sets.

GIANTS-SOX TEAMS SELECTED FOR TOUR

RICE TO PLAY FOR CHICAGO

Mostil, Falk, Robertson, Kamm, Ruel and Faber Also Among American Leaguers Chosen.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The list of players who will accompany the Chicago White Sox and the New York Giants on their world tour, starting the middle of the month, was announced here tonight by Norris (Tip) O'Neill, business manager in charge of the trip.

The world tour will be preceded by an exhibition game at Ottawa, Canada, Oct. 13, after which the teams will sail for Europe, where Dick Kinsella, representing the Giants, has mapped out an itinerary which provides for games in Ireland, England, Belgium and Italy.

The White Sox line-up will include Outfielders Mostil and Falk, Chicago, and Rice, Washington; Infielders Kamm, Morehart and Clancy, all of Chicago, and one other player to be selected; Catchers Ruel of Washington and Picinich of the Boston Red Sox, and Pitchers Faber, Robertson, Lyons and Foreman, all of Chicago. Ed Walsh, coach of the White Sox, will act as one of the umpires, and Manager Johnny Evers will be in charge of the Sox.

Those making the trip with the Giants include Infielders Groh, Jackson and Frisch, all of the Giants, and Mc-Innis of the Boston Braves; Outfielders Young and Irish Meusel of New York and Stengel of Boston; Pitchers Bentley, Jonnard and Nehf of the Giants and one other to be selected; Catchers Healine of Philadelphia and Gowdy of New York. Hugh Jennings, Giant coach, and Manager John McGraw will be in charge.

Others in the party will include Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox; J. Louis Comiskey and Mrs. Comiskey.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The White Sox remain Chicago champions, even if they did finish last in the 1924 American League race. Bowling over the Cubs today 5 to 3, the American League nine, led by Johnny Evers, retained their city title won last year from the National Leaguers.

It was the sixth game of the series, the Cubs having captured the first and fifth games solely on the pitching of Grover Alexander. In all the other contests the Sox pitching and attack were superior.

Hollis Thurston and Ted Lyons hurled the White Sox to victory today. Thurston was swept aside in the horrid Cub attack in the seventh inning, which fell a run short of tieing the score, and Lyons came on to windup the fray.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—By taking today's game, 10 to 1, the Orioles of the International League left St. Paul tonight leading in the little world's series, three game to one. St. Paul, champion of the American Association, was helpless before the speed, slow ball and curves of George Earnshaw, a right hander from Swarthmore College.

Earnshaw allowed only three hits. He struck out ten men and walked only one. The lone St. Paul run was the result of a homer into the bleachers by Koenig in the sixth. Connelly, Baltimore right fielder, made a desperate try for this ball, but it slipped off his glove and went into the stand.

Howard Merritt, the left hander who whitewashed Baltimore in the second game by allowing only three hits, started on the rubber for St. Paul. The Orioles jumped on him for four hits and three runs in the first inning. In the fifth Merritt was taken out for a pinch hitter and McQuaid and Roettger finished the game. The Orioles batted all three hurlers hard. Jacobs was Baltimore's batting star, with four singles, two of which were for home runs. Connelly made a home run into the bleachers.

RIVAL EASY VICTOR IN THE BELGRADE

WILSON'S WAMPEE SCORES

Rival, the Rancocas Stable's three-year-old colt by Thos. Cook-Picton's Pride, ran away from three others in the seventh running of the Belgrade Claiming Stakes at the Jamaica race course yesterday afternoon, winning the easiest kind of a victory and earning $2,450 for his owner. The colt carried 108 pounds, and with Laverne Fator in the saddle, ran the six furlongs in the fast time of 1:11 4-5, three-fifths of a second slower than the track record for the distance. Rival was the hot favorite, backed down to 2 to 5.

Wampee, R. T. Wilson Jr.'s three-year-old gelding, carried off the Exile Handicap for all ages at a mile and seventy yards, leading five others home in the fast time of 1:42 4-5. Marinelli had the mount and the son of Campfire and Orange Lilly packed 118 pounds. He opened at 10 to 1 and receded to 15 to 1 at post time.

An Indian Summer day brought out a large attendance. Two favorites rewarded their followers. Callahan scored a double by bringing Teton home first in the opening number and riding Ten Eyck to victory in the third race. Most of the races were rather easily won.

Scratches cut the field to four in the Belgrade Claiming Stakes and Rival made a runaway out of it. Laverne Fator took the chestnut colt out in front from the rise of the barrier and he was never in danger. Fator had him under stout restraint and he easily held Amor Patriae safely. The latter was the contender throughout, but Rival continued to draw away the further he went and finished with plenty in reserve.

Dry Moss in Money.

C. A. Stoneham's Dry Moon finished three-quarters of a length back of Amor Patriae and just nosed out Edward Arlington's Honfleur for the short end of the purse. Dry Moon was the second choice, closing at 4 to 1. He carried top weight of 115 pounds, giving five to the winner. The fractional times of the race were as follows: 0:23 2-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:11 4-5.

Five claims for Rival were deposited in the box and in the draw for the prize Sam Swinnburg Stable was successful, getting a bargain for $3,700.

Five ran for the Exile Handicap, with the Belair Stud's Flames the even-money favorite. The three-year-old son of Wrack and La Flambee was poorly handled by Fields, however, and he was never in the contention. Fields is not a smart boy at the post, and Flames was last to get in motion. He was taken wide during most of the journey and had no chance at the money.

Clarence Buxton's Missionary showed the way during the early part of the journey. Wampee was slow in finding his stride, but on the far turn he began to move up and came home with a fine burst of speed, getting up in the final jumps to beat Missionary by a head. J. C. Clare's Feysun, ran third all the way and was a length back at the finish. Jefferson Livingston's McAuliffe, which was up with the leaders most of the journey, weakened in the stretch. Missionary and Feysun carried top weight of 123 pounds. The fractional times of the race were as follows: 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:38 2-5, 1:42 2-5.

The Cherry Valley Purse, a dash of a mile and seventy yards for three-year-olds and upward, brought out half-a-dozen, with R. L. Gerry's four-year-old colt Cyclops the odds-on favorite. The winner was the Ancor Stable's three-year-old gelding Ten Eyck, by Ten Point-Eyelid, a maiden. Callahan had the mount and took the gelding to the front around the paddock turn and held the lead to the end, winning handily by nearly three lengths from Cyclops, the latter being six lengths in front of Mrs. U. S. Wishard's Polo Ground.

Cyclops was held back of the pace, but got into close quarters on the back stretch. He moved up around the turn, but was unable to get within striking distance of the leader under his top weight of 122 pounds. He was giving the winner twenty pounds and much weight to all the others. The race was run in the fast time of 1:42 3-5, two-fifths of a second slower than the track record for the distance.

The claiming event for all ages over the six-furlong course brought out thirteen, and they were away to a poor start with W. V. Casey's Fairlight left at the post. The race was an easy victory for P. M. Taylor's Reprisal, six-year-old gelding by Helmet-Bachelor Girl, which went into the lead soon after the rise of the barrier and constantly increased his advantage. At the end he was galloping to win by seven lengths from F. E. Kraft's Jyntee. The latter was rated off the pace in the early stages, but in turning for home went wide and lost ground that she could not recover. The old mare just lasted to take the place by a head from J. T. Meaney's Lucky Strike.

Teton Earns Brackets.

An even dozen maiden two-year-olds went to the post in the opening claiming race at five and a half furlongs, and W. R. Coe's Teton, a bay gelding by Over There-Terentia, was the one to graduate. Callahan held him behind the pace until the head of the stretch, where he sent him to the front, and the gelding drew away to win easily by nearly five lengths.

Mrs. W. M. Jefferds's Golden Broom filly Golden Locks set the early pace, hard pressed by P. S. F. Randolph's Royal Girl. The two had a terrific battle and raced themselves out, neither being in the money. M. J. Rate's Lord Vargrave came from in back in the stretch drive to take the place by a head from J. L. Price's Carthage, which was always well up.

Only four two-year-old fillies ran for the Dainty Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs. Mrs. V. Vivadou's Pleasant Memories was the odds-on favorite, but she used herself up racing down J. L. Holland's Gnome Girl. When it came to the stretch drive she tired and Mrs. F. A. Clark's Sweet Ann, bay daughter of Trap Rock and Wrackline, came up to beat her handily by three lengths.

ZEV READY TO START IN THIRD SPECIAL

Zev and Mad Play will be the reliance of the Rancocas stable for the third international special at a mile and a quarter, to be run at Latonia next Saturday. Both will be shipped this week in time to arrive a day or two before the race. It probably will not be known which will carry the white silks against Epinard and the other distance-running cracks of the United States until the day of the race.

The showing of both colts in the Continental Handicap on Saturday at Jamaica, when Zev ran at a terrific pace under his heavy burden of 127 pounds to hold off the lightly weighted Priscilla Ruley, so that his stable companion could come home to win in record-breaking time, was exceedingly pleasing to the Rancocas connections.

Zev had been gradually rounding back to the form that made him the greatest money winner of all time in his three-year-old year. The brown son of The Finn and Miss Kearney has been very slow to reach his best condition this year. It will be recalled that he was a sick horse during the Spring at Rancocas Farm, having been poisoned by an external application. For a long time Sam Hildreth had despaired of getting him back in shape. That the poison had gone through his system was apparent, but Hildreth persisted and tried several experiments, and has finally brought him around. It is now evident.

Injury Will Keep Black Gold Out of Third International

LATONIA, Oct. 6.—Black Gold has been definitely eliminated as an opponent of Epinard in the third international special here next Saturday. Mrs. R. M. Hoots's three-year-old son of Black Toney and Upsilt, winner of the Kentucky and other Spring derbies, came out of his recent race with an injured high forefoot that has not responded to treatment. A veterinary was called from Lexington and he stated his belief that the colt would be unable to race again this year.

CHILHOWEE BEATS WISE COUNSELLOR

VICTOR TIMED IN 1:42 4-5

Special to The New York Times.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 6.—Wise Counsellor, winner of the first international race at Belmont Park on Labor Day, was beaten this afternoon by the Gallaher Brothers' three-year-old colt Chilhowee, by Ballot—Bourbon Lass, in the race for the Versailles Purse over the course of a mile and a sixteenth. The race was at special weights, all carrying 115 pounds. Chilhowee set a new track record at 1:42 4-5 and beat F. A. Burton's chestnut son of Mentor and Rustle handily by a length.

Only three were named for the race, the other starter being J. N. Camden's three-year-old colt Graeme. The race was looked upon as a trial for International Special No. 3, which will be run here Saturday. Chilhowee and Wise Counsellor being regarded as formidable opponents of Epinard. Graeme is not eligible for that contest. Wise Counsellor was the 4-5-to-1 favorite, the winner being practically at 3 to 1, paying $5.80 to $2.

Wise Counsellor had the post position on the rail, with Chilhowee in the middle and Graeme on the outside. Wise Counsellor showed in front when the barrier rose on an excellent start, but Chilhowee moved into the lead with a rush. Garner held Chilhowee under double wrape for three-quarters of a mile, racing him along a couple of lengths in front of Wise Counsellor. O'Donnell also had Wise Counsellor under restraint during the early part of the race.

In the stretch O'Donnell called on Wise Counsellor and he closed a part of the distance, but he was not good enough to catch the winner, which held his opponent safely all during the last furlong to win well in hand. Graeme moved up with determination just before the stretch was reached, but tired at the end and was three lengths in back of Wise Counsellor at the wire.

The former record for the distance was established in June by Actuary, which ran the race in 1:43 flat, under 114 pounds. The fractional times of the races today were as follows: 0:23 2-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:11 3-5, 1:36 2-5, 1:42 4-5.

The defeat of Wise Counsellor at even weights tends to confirm the belief that he is a sprinter and will not be dangerous in the final international race under weight for age at a mile and a quarter. Chilhowee is certain to gain friends by his showing today, as his recent races have been run over a route. His three straight victories here were won at a mile, a furlong, a mile and a half, and a mile, respectively. At a mile and a half he took the measure of Gibion and Black Gold, and in that race he carried 118 pounds.

The summaries:

Bantamweights Will Clash at Ridgewood Grove Saturday.

Willie Darcy, West Side bantamweight, and Nat Pincus of Brooklyn, will furnish the action Saturday night in the stellar bout of six rounds at the Ridgewood Grove S. C., Brooklyn. Sergeant Sammy Baker, Army welterweight, and Charlie Picker, a service rival, have been matched for the semi-final of six rounds.

In three other six-round encounters the principals will be: Artie O'Leary vs. Young Angelo; Benny Tell vs. Lew Goldberg and Charley Varack vs. Harry Mulcahey. Mickey Marks and Joe Marino have been matched for the four-round preliminary.

RACING AT LAUREL WILL START TODAY

Epinard May Run in Two of Nine Stakes During Twenty-three-Day Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 6.—At Laurel Park tomorrow afternoon the Maryland State Fair, Inc., will open its Autumn meeting of twenty-three days. Nine stakes will be contested during the meeting and it is not unlikely that Pierre Wertheimer's great four-year-old colt Epinard will be a contender in two of them. Much will depend upon the result of the third international special at Latonia next Saturday. Pierre Wertheimer told President Spalding Jenkins in New York that he felt disposed to race his colt here provided he met no mishaps during or after his Latonia contract engagement.

If Epinard races here he will follow in the trial of illustrious predecessors, notably Hourless and Omar Khayyam, which met in 1917, and Eternal and Billy Kelley, which were matched a year later. The Hourless-Omar Khayyam match was the beginning of the largest turf crowds in Maryland. Hourless, with Frankie Robinson up, won handily over Omar Khayyam, which was piloted by Everett Haynes, who is riding Epinard in all of his engagements. Hourless ran the mile and a quarter in 2:02, which still stands as the track record.

Epinard is entered in the $25,000 Washington Handicap, which will be run on the last day of the meeting at a mile and a quarter, and is the big stake of the meeting. He may also be a starter in the $10,000 Laurel Stakes at a mile, which will be run on Saturday, Oct. 18.

Many improvements have been made at Laurel Park since the last meeting, not the least important of which is the completion of the new macadam road leading from Washington Boulevard to Laurel Park proper. This will relieve congestion for motorists and will be used exclusively by machines plying between Baltimore and the race track. The old road will be devoted to automobilists coming from Washington. The use of the two roads will greatly expedite the handling of the crowds, while there is available parking space for at least 1,000 more machines.

The entries for tomorrow are as follows:

EPINARD AND LADKIN HAVE STIFF TRIALS

French Colt Runs Mile in 1:42 1-5, and Belmont Star 1¼ Miles in 2:05 4-5.

MY OWN TO BE A STARTER

Grayson Horse Will Be Shipped for Third International Special Saturday at Latonia.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 6.—Pierre Wertheimer's Epinard and August Belmont's Ladkin, conqueror of the former in the Second International Special at Aqueduct, continued preparation for their engagements in the Third International to be run at Latonia Saturday by participating in fairly stiff trials over the Kentucky course this morning. Epinard worked one mile in 1:42 1-5, breezing and Ladkin turned the full International distance of one and a quarter miles in 2:05 4-5 unextended.

The trials were the only ones recorded for candidates for the race, and both horses attracted much attention as they whirled around the oval.

With Jockey Everett Haynes in the saddle and Diagram, one from the stable of August Belmont, to accompany him, Epinard ran the first quarter of a mile in 0:23 2-5, then went to the half in 0:46 1-5, five-eighths in 1:01, three-quarters in 1:13 and arrived at the end of eight furlongs in 1:42 1-5 with Haynes pulling stoutly.

Epinard's workout greatly impressed Trainer Eugene Leigh, who is expected to send the French four-year-olds over the one and one-quarter mile route at an exacting gait on Thursday.

Blind Play, a three-year-old of no mean ability, accompanied Ladkin for the first mile with Clyde Gordon guiding the latter. Ladkin's spin was remarkable because of the evenness with which the three-year-old son of Fair Play and Ladkin went over the journey. After negotiating the first quarter in 0:25, he arrived at the end of a half-mile in 0:48 1-5, completed three-quarters in 1:14 1-5, and was at the termination of a mile in 1:40 2-5. He then reflected his speediness, covering the remaining eighth final quarter in 0:22 2-5 to finish the one and one-quarter mile test in 2:05 4-5. Ladkin seemed to do better after Blind Play was taken off him at the end of the first mile.

Another tip advises Colonel Winn of his coming with candidates was Sam Hildreth, trainer of the horses of Harry Sinclair. Hildreth is bringing the three-year-old Mad Play, which neared the world's record for one and one-eighth miles in winning the Continental Handicap at Jamaica that Saturday, and Zev, champion three-year-old of 1923 and the leading money winning horse of all times.

As has already been announced, Everett Haynes will have the mount on Epinard in the big race here Saturday.

MAY SWIM IN AUSTRALIA.

Miss Wehselau and Weissmuller Are Asked to Compete There.

Swimming devotees of Australia will have a glimpse of two of America's foremost aquatic stars in action after the Christmas holidays, if present plans of the A. A. U. stars materialize. The Australian Swimming Association, through the Amateur Athletic Union, has extended an invitation to Miss Mariechen Wehselau of Honolulu and Johnny Weissmuller, Illinois A. C., to visit Australia for a series of competitions in New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland and possibly New Zealand. Miss Wehselau has already accepted the invitation and it is expected that Weissmuller will likewise accept.

BURBERRYS LONDON

Overcoats and Climate

WOOL worked in the moist climate of England retains certain important qualities which are lost in a drier, "metallic" climate. This is why the famous English fabrics of Burberry coats combine extremely light weight with great warmth.

Your Burberry is English made in every detail—the fabric woven on English looms, the tailoring done by expert workmen, and the design regulated by that sense of taste and proportion which has made the name Burberry synonymous with English overcoats in five continents.

A few weeks ago the latest shipment of Burberrys left England, and we now have a special selection of them ready to show you. You cannot buy a finer English overcoat—and the price is moderate.

MR. M'ELWYN SETS WORLD TROT MARK

OSCAWANA ALSO IS WINNER

Triumphs Over Field in 2:11 Trot and Crawford is First in 2:19 Event.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—W. H. L. McCourtnie's Mr. McElwyn, driven by Ben White, won the Kentucky Futurity in straight heats here today after breaking the world's record for the three-year-olds in the first heat in 2:02, won the second in 2:02½. The last half of the second mile was trotted in 59 seconds. The former world's mark was 2:02½.

Second in each heat and putting up a stubborn resistance was Guy Richard, driven by W. T. Crosier. Third went to Eria Guy, driven by Walter Cox.

Oscawana, heavy favorite, disposed of his field in the 2:11 trot without a great effort. John Spencer secured the place in the opening heat and Coasta Jay in the second.

The 2:19 trot at ⅝-mile heats proved a stubborn contest. Crawford, from the Murphy Stable, was best, but was hard pressed by Coleman in the first heat and still harder pressed by Peter Wooster in the second. Coleman choked upon being taken back out of a pocket in the second heat and fell, throwing Driver Crosier high in the air. He landed on his feet and was uninjured.

NATIONAL CUE PLAY WILL BE HELD HERE

Three of the national championship tournaments of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players are certain to be played in New York, according to the plans revealed at a special meeting of the governing body held last night at the Liederkranz Club, 111 East Fifty-eighth Street. Frederick Jones Jr., President of the organization, presided at the session. While the national schedule is still in the hands of the committee, together with a number of applications for each of the premier championships, the committee's work is nearing completion.

It is practically certain that the national Class A 18.2 balkline tourney will be held at the Crescent A. C. or at a Philadelphia club. The three-cushion championship for Class A players will go to the Amateur Billiard Club of New York. The Class C 18.2 balkline tournament will be held in this city, and the pocket billiard championship for Class A players may be held at the New York Athletic Club, although two important clubs elsewhere are rivals for it.

The Class B 18.2 balkline tournament is likely to shift to Boston this season. In that city George F. Slosson proposes to hold the first championship for amateurs at the new style of 18.2 balkline. Under the new system the small squares are omitted from the corners of the table.

While the tournament list for the coming season was discussed at the meeting, the main part of the deliberations was devoted to consideration of changes in the constitution and by-laws. The most important change is an addition to the amateur rule. It states:

"The amateur rule is to be interpreted as positively excluding from competition any player who receives compensation, commission or any emolument whatsoever from anybody, association, business organization or other enterprise of a billiard nature devoted in any way to the game."

The other changes provide for the broadening of the scope of the Executive Committee and for the addition of all former presidents and chairmen of the Executive Committee as members of the Official Board.

Burnbrook to Box Harmon at Opening Show Oct. 14.

Its first boxing show canceled because of the inability of Eddie Burnbrook to obtain a furlough from his army duties at Camp Holabird, Md., the Pioneer A. C. management has arranged a card of three ten-round bouts for its opening show of the season, to be held Oct. 14. Burnbrook will engage Willie Harmon, east side welterweight, in the main bout. In the semi-final contest Frankie Fasano and Jimmy Russo, local bantamweight rivals, will be the principals.

The other ten-round battle will be between Sammy Bienfeld, east side flyweight, and Jimmy Breslin of the west side. Two four-round bouts also have been arranged. In these the principals will be Mickey Satnick vs. Johnny Filucci and Irving Shapiro vs. Henry Goldberg.

BILLIARD RESULTS.

Willie Hoppe, world's 18.2 balkline titleholder, defeated Eric Hagenlacher, champion of Germany, in the first block of their series of three-cushion exhibitions at the Fourteenth Street Academy last night. The score was 50 to 22. Hoppe went out in forty innings for an average of better than one. He made a high run of 7. Hagenlacher's high run was 3. They will play again tonight at the same academy.

Manny Lesterr defeated Arthur Howard in the Greater New York three-cushion tournament at the Hoppe Academy last night, 35 to 23, in sixty innings. He made the high run of the game, 4. In a second game Harry Rose was the winner over William Blumenthal at 35 to 21 in fifty-two innings. He made a run of 3, while Blumenthal's high run was 4.

George La Rue and Joe O'Sullivan won the two games played in the handicap three-cushion tournament at Doyle's Academy last night. La Rue defeated William Adams, 50 to 32, making a run of 6. Adams's high run was 4. O'Sullivan was the winner over Herman McCabe 50 to 20, making a high run of 3.

Miss Katherine Heywood defeated her husband, Ary Bos, champion of Holland, in an exhibition 18.2 balkline match at the Billiard Academy last night by the score of 150 to 124. She went out in ten innings and made a high run of 45. Bos's high run was 20.

May Change Walker Cup Match With British to Biennial Event

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Partly as a result of the lack of interest and partly because of the tremendous expense involved, the conditions governing the international golf matches for the Walker Cup will be changed within the coming year. Officials of the U. S. G. A., while here for the national amateur championship, stated that in all probability the matches would be made biennial hereafter, which means that there is scant likelihood that an American team will be sent to Great Britain next Spring. It is believed that the change will be welcomed by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, for difficulties have been experienced by the British in 1922 and this year in raising funds to send a team to America.

MRS. SOHST TAKES WEST SIDE TITLE

Mrs. Theodora Sohst won the women's championship of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills yesterday, defeating Miss Carolin Winn in the final round. The match went to three sets and was decided in Mrs. Sohst's favor at 1—6, 6—4, 6—2, after she had been completely outplayed in the first set.

When Miss Winn ran through this set at 6—1 she looked to be the winner in summary fashion, but Mrs. Sohst showed a marked change of form in the second set and went straight on to victory. Her forehand drives were sent deep into her opponent's territory, forcing Miss Winn to make errors and keeping her working hard to get to the ball, with the result that she failed to stand up under the play as well as did Mrs. Sohst. There were many good rallies in the second and third sets, in which both women drove the ball low across the net with splendid control, but as a rule Mrs. Sohst prevailed in these exchanges through her steadiness or her ability to work her opponent off the court for a finishing shot.

The Class B championship of the club was won by Miss Chappell. She defeated Mrs. Campbell in the final round and, like Mrs. Sohst, dropped the first set before hitting her stride. The score was 2—6, 6—3, 6—4.

BILLIARD STARS AGREE.

Hoppe and De Oro Will Meet in 600-Point Three-Cushion Match.

It was announced yesterday that the three-cushion billiard match, scheduled to be played next week between Willie Hoppe, the world's balkline champion, and Alfred De Oro, former world's three-cushion and pocket billiard champion at the Strand Academy will be at 600 points, to be played in twelve blocks of fifty points each. Charles S. Kline of the Strand, promoter of the match, said that as a result of a conference between Hoppe and De Oro yesterday morning everything had been settled and that the match would start next Monday afternoon.

A purse of $1,000 has been offered by Promoter Kline while each player has posted a side bet of $500, which will make the match worth $2,000 to the winner. The players also will share in the gate receipts to be divided on the basis of 75 per cent. to the winner and 25 per cent to the loser.

Hoppe has been having great success since he took up three cushions. He has not lost a game since he started his work last June. At present he is engaged in playing a 200-point match with Erich Hagenlacher, balkline champion of Germany. Hoppe then will start to prepare for his match against De Oro, which will end on the night of Oct. 18. Following this engagement, Hoppe plans to leave for Chicago to complete his training for his match against Augie Kieckhefer, which likely will start the last week of this month.

A number of the leading billiard players in this section will take part in a special billiard program at the McKinley Square Billiard Academy, located at 171st Street and Broadway, on Friday night. Chris Nagle, one of the leading authorities in the country on ivory, is the owner of the new academy. Among the stars who are to entertain are Willie Hoppe, Ralph Greenleaf, Erich Hagenlacher, Albert Cutler and Tadao Suganuma.

The complete list of players and franchises in both the National Championship Pocket Billiard and Three-Cusion Leagues will be announced in a few days, it was learned yesterday. The season in each league is scheduled to open about Oct. 20, and everything is in readiness. It was stated by officials of both leagues. New York will have three franchises in the Pocket Billiard League and one in the Three-Cushion. Robert Cannefax, the three-cushion champion, will represent the Strand Academy in the Three-Cushion League, while Frank Taberski, a former pocket billiard champion, will play for the Fourteenth Street Academy in the Pocket Billiard League. The other pocket billiard stars are Joseph Concannon, who will represent the Recreation Academy, in Brooklyn, and Charles Harmon, who will play for Lawler Brothers' Academy, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue.

FLETCHER TO SWIM ABROAD.

With his application for permission to participate in amateur contests abroad approved by the Amateur Athletic Union and holding the necessary credentials to enable him to compete abroad, Charles Fletcher, star breast stroke swimmer of Stanford University and holder of American records in the breast stroke style of swimming, has embarked on an extended visit to Europe. Fletcher plans to remain abroad for several years, competing in events in France, Italy, England and possibly in Germany and the Scandinavian countries.

MACFARLANE TAKES WESTCHESTER TITLE

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Steadiness, a virtue which he possesses in a greater amount than almost any other golf professional in the country, earned Willie Macfarlane, chief golf mentor at the Oak Ridge Club, the Westchester County open championship today. At the end of two eighteen-hole rounds over the double layout of the Winged Foot golf club, Macfarlane's total was 144, a score that delivered to him the district honors with four strokes to spare. The Oak Ridge star got away to a flying start with a brilliant 70, two under par figures, over the west course of the Mercury Foot golfing grounds, and he returned a 74 over the east course in the afternoon.

Macfarlane's biggest rival, Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge, was obliged to take second honors, the young homebred requiring two more strokes than Macfarlane in the morning round and the same number in the afternoon. Farrell topped A. J. Reith, the young Englishman who came to America within the last two years as assistant at Wykagyl, by two shots, and the latter was a stroke ahead of Joe Turnesa, young Fairview assistant.

All in all the day was a bad one for the crowned heads who adorn the Westchester district. George McLean of Grassy Sprain, the defending champion, finished far down in the list with a total of 158.

Brady Off Form.

Even worse off were Mike Brady, the Winged Foot professional, who holds the metropolitan open championship, which he won only a few weeks ago at the Engineers' Club, and Gene Sarazen, whose titles have all evaporated within the past few months. Brady and Sarazen both finished with totals of 160. All three failures were traceable to poor putting.

Macfarlane was the acme of steadiness. Not once on the entire two rounds did he take more than five strokes on any one hole. Willie got away to a good start. He scored a par 4 on the 440-yard first hole and followed it up with a birdie 3 on the second and then rolled off an uninterrupted string of pars to the turn for a 36.

Coming in he scored a par on every hole except the 385-yard fourteenth, where he got on the green in a drive and an iron and sank a fourteen-foot putt for a birdie 3. He finished the nine in 35 for a total of 70 for the round. In the afternoon, as in the morning Macfarlane duplicated the score of his first nine holes on the second nine. He was out in 37 and back in the same number of strokes for a 74. In the afternoon round, however, the elusive orthodox figure had him worried. He was uncertain going to the third after having holed out a long putt for a birdie 4 on the par 5 second, but lost a stroke on the short third. He lost another stroke to par on the seventh when his second shot failed to hold the green, but made it up by laying his approach on the eighth dead and dropping his putt for a birdie 4. He finished the nine in 37, which is par.

On the tenth, Macfarlane dropped a stroke when he took three putts to get down and he lost another on the eleventh when his iron to the green was short. The long holes were his forte all day and he finished the last of them by scoring another birdie, a 4. Macfarlane lost another stroke on the seventeen, a short hole, when he failed to get on the green with his drive.

Farrell Trails Leader.

Farrell, who tied with Macfarlane for the medal in the Eastern qualification for the P. G. A. tournament at the Quaker Ridge Club, was only two strokes behind the leader at the end of the first round and retained the position to the twenty-seventh hole but fell down badly on the last nine. He did not have any one bad hole coming in, but was consistently one stroke above par. His main trouble was in keeping his tee shots on the line. He had to fight a tendency to hook all through the two rounds. He was also inclined to underestimate the distance and under-club himself.

His cards:

In	4	4	5	4	5	3	4	5	4	—38—73—142

Neither Sarazen, Brady, the metropolitan open champion, nor McLean, the defending champion, gave a good account of himself. They played together and played far below form. McLean had a 77 for the first round, Gene a 78 and Brady a 79, but none of them could do as well on the west course, regarded as the easier of the two, in the afternoon.

N. Y. U. Harriers to Run Saturday.

The New York University cross-country squad has now been increased to sixteen members. Coach von Elling runs them over a three-mile course every afternoon. An intramural run will be held this coming Saturday afternoon over the Van Cortlandt Park course.

50 OARSMEN REPORT TO COACH MILLER

NEW SYSTEM IS INSTALLED

Squad Will Be Divided Into Clubs to Be Captained by Van Wyck, Walker and Muller.

Prospects for Columbia's 1925 crew campaign took on a rosy hue yesterday afternoon, when fifty oarsmen reported to Head Coach Miller at the '97 Boathouse on the Harlem River for the opening Fall workout. The fifty varsity candidates, added to the fifty yearlings who reported on Friday, bring the Blue and White squad to 100, one of the largest Fall turnouts in the long history of the crew on Morningside Heights. Present indications are that the squad will be augmented by at least twenty-five oarsmen during the present week.

Yesterday's practice session was a light preliminary to the workout which will come today and which will usher in the hard Fall campaign that has been outlined by the coaching staff. Head Coach Miller gave a short talk to the candidates yesterday in which he said that he was satisfied with the first day's showing. After that one boatload of varsity men took a short spin on the Harlem.

The organization of Columbia's crews is along a different line this year than in former years. A plan for the division of the varsity squad into three clubs has been formulated. This is expected to afford competition in practices of a more serious tone than the racing held between the varsity and junior varsity squads in the past. The three clubs will be captained by Halsey Van Wyck, Thomas B. Walker and George Muller, all veterans of the sport. The Van Wyck eight will use the 1924 shell; the Walker squad the 1918 shell, and the Muller crew will be seated in the Francis S. Bangs.

Not only have the coaching plans been changed but the coaching staff itself has undergone a change in its personnel. Head Coach Miller still is in charge, but he has two new assistants in place of Sydney Waldecker, last year's freshman coach, and "Bill" Weed, the assistant coach. Wascheck, stroke of last year's varsity, and Marshall, the coxswain, are the newcomers to the coaching staff. Their coming makes the entire coaching staff one of former Columbia oarsmen.

Football practice will keep several veterans away from the workouts until after the gridiron season closes. Outstanding on this list is Larry Tilbonen, the captain, who is holding down a regular end both on Coach Haughton's eleven. Others who will not report until later are Buddine, Wiberg and Mound. Among the veterans from last year's varsity and freshman boats who were on hand are Theobald, Olstead, Ferris, Henderson, Billstone, Lont, Sherman, Schludi, David, Remy and Casey. Schludi stroked the freshman eight last year and he is expected to put up a strong bid for a varsity position this season.

The present yearling squad is composed of several prep school stars who have had former rowing experience. The coxswain problem, which was a serious one last year, seems to have been overcome, for ten men have already put in an appearance for the "calling" seat. The 1928 aggregation had its first taste of the water yesterday when four barges took short spins on the Harlem River.

GREAT PROGRESS MADE BY WOMEN SWIMMERS

American Aquatic Stars Have Shattered Many Records in Last Four Years.

The quadrennial Olympics, with their international competition, serve as fitting milestones by which to gauge progress in sport, and it is interesting to note at this time the amazing strides made by American girl swimmers since the games in Antwerp four years ago. Nothing more remarkable has featured athletic activities the world over. Even our watermen have not improved at the same rate as a class.

One of the outstanding performances of the meet in 1920, it may be recalled, was the 100-meter free-style swim in 1:15 3-5, returned by the then peerless Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey of New York. The feat clipped nine seconds from the Olympic record and the belief was general that a long time would elapse before another woman swimmer touched the striking mark. Nevertheless, three American heiads, the Misses Marjechen Wehselau of Honolulu, Ethel Lackie of Chicago and Gertrude Ederle of New York, beat the figures by one second or more in the recent games at Paris, while three more, Miss Helen Wainwright and Miss Adelaide Lambert of New York and Miss Lillie Bowmer of Honolulu previously had been credited with shading them at home.

Another of Miss Bleibtrey's Olympic records of 1920 which created quite some stir was that of 4:34 for 300 meters. Yet last Winter Miss Wainwright hung up a world's standard of 4:19 3-5 for the event, and at Paris, with the course changed from 300 to 400 meters, all three of our fair contenders, Miss Martha Norelius of Jersey City and the Misses Wainwright and Ederle, went under Miss Bleibtrey's time on the way to the full distance, and several other girls bettered it in earlier races over here.

The third of the Olympic records for women set at Antwerp, 5:11 3-5 for the 400-meter relay swimming, was lowered to 4:58 3-5 by the American team this year.

Additional data concerning the progress of our women swimmers are provided by comparing the national records for some standard events not included in the Olympic program, these being listed as follows at the end of 1920: 220 yards, free style, 2:53 4-5, Miss Charlotte Boyle, New York; 440 yards, 6:21 3-5, Miss Bleibtrey; one mile, 29:32 3-5, Miss Claire Galligan, New York; 100 yards, back stroke, 1:17 2-5, Miss Bleibtrey; 100 yards, breast stroke, 1:20 1-5, Miss Ruth Smith, Columbus.

The 220-yard time now has been brought down to 2:41 1-5 by Miss Ederle and no less than nine other American girls have done 3:02, or better, several showing between 3:45 and 3:49. The 440-yard figures have been slashed by Miss Ederle by the huge margin of 37 seconds, to 6:34 2-5, and nearly a dozen women have broken 6:20. The one-mile mark has been reduced by Miss Wainwright to 28:44 2-5 and a score of others have succeeded in going under Miss Galligan's old record.

Miss Bleibtrey's quoted 100-yard back stroke swim in 1:17 3-5 was thought so extraordinary when made that more than one competent coach expressed the belief it might never be equaled, except by the holder. Yet Miss Sybil Bauer of Chicago has eclipsed it completely with a performance in 1:12 3-5 and Miss Aileen Riggin of New York has clipped it also with a swim in 1:14.

The breast stroke record of 1:20 1-5 by Miss Smith steadily was improved upon, until Miss Agnes Geraghty of New York brought it down to 1:22 3-5 lately, and there are in the field today girls aplenty who can go under 1:20.

All other national records, largely world's records also, have come down proportionately and the most gratifying feature of the progress is that it promises to continue unchecked hereafter. With very few exceptions the present ingenuehers are girls with several years of improvement before them, while child mermaids are displaying speed never attained by their predecessors. There is every assurance, therefore, of increasingly brilliant exploits as the champions and newcomers grow to maturity.

Cross Word Puzzlers

The headache-producing Cross Word Puzzles have taught that the synonym is greater than the definition. Every day in New York more people are learning that the seven-letter word synonymous with good clothes is—"D'Andrea."

The puzzle about buying D'Andrea clothes is to find which suit you like most in the wonderful Fall assortment. And there will be no cross words. You will be fitted quickly and satisfactorily in a hand-tailored suit of distinction which represents a value far in excess of its modest price.

GENERAL SHAKEUP HITS YALE ELEVEN

WEINECKE PUT OFF VARSITY

Bunnell Also is Dropped, but Pond Keeps Post—Sturhahn Goes in at Guard Instead of Wallace.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—Yale coaches today expressed the measure of their dissatisfaction with the poor showing of the eleven against North Carolina University last Saturday by a general shakeup. In the backfield Eddie Bench, who has been fullback since the season opened, was stationed at quarterback. The game displayed by Weinecke and Bunnell has not met expectations and Wadsworth has not recovered from his recent injury. Allen, freshman captain two seasons ago, replaced Bench at fullback.

Failing, last of four fullbacks tried against North Carolina, was given Cottle's left halfback berth. Pond, alone of the regular backfield, was left. Richards, freshman rush line star of last season, went into the varsity lineup, replacing Joss at left tackle. Joss had won a first string selection at tackle two seasons ago when he was injured. He was out of condition last season and has been a regular tackle this season.

Sturhahn, freshman guard last year, replaced Wallace, who was tried in that position Saturday. For the signal and dummy drill the first team lined up as follows: Ends, Luman and Bingham; tackles, Butterworth and Richards; guards, Eckart and Sturhahn; Captain Lovejoy; quarterback, Bench; halfbacks, Pond and Failing; fullback, Allen.

COLUMBIA WORKS HARD.

Football Squad Begins Week's Training for Game With Wesleyan.

The Columbia football squad started a week of busy preparation yesterday for what is expected to be its hardest game of the season on Saturday, when it faces Wesleyan. The day's program opened with a hour-hour lecture by the coaching staff. After that the squad went to the field where another half hour was spent in limbering up in the general fundamentals of football. Then came a scrimmage practice of about forty minutes. The workout closed with a fast signal drill lasting about thirty minutes.

Unless a mishap takes place in this week's scrimmage the Blue and White squad will start the Wesleyan game in first-class condition. Trainer Barrett said yesterday that every player was in top-top shape following the game with St. Lawrence on Saturday. Despite Columbia's two victories of the season in which it has rolled up 81 points to its opponents' 3, the Morningside Heights campus does not appear to be over-confident about the Wesleyan encounter. During the past Wesleyan has proved a hard opponent for the Blue and White and it is not expected to stray far away from past performances this season.

William Girsh of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who is trying out for a line position on the freshman eleven was knocked unconscious in the scrimmage yesterday. He appeared to be in a serious condition, first examination leading to the opinion that he was suffering from a broken jaw and a possible concussion of the brain. He was rushed to St. Luke's hospital but last night the doctors said that no bones were broken, that there was no concussion and that the player would be released this afternoon.

FORDHAM SQUAD IS BUSY.

The Fordham football team has begun preparations for its game with Boston College next Monday. Yesterday Frank Gargan gave the squad an hour's talk and demonstrated on the blackboard the plays which the Maroon will use in its encounter with the Bostonians. The squad then went out and were put through a signal drill which also lasted an hour and rehearsed the plays which Gargan had previously explained.

The Maroon mentor took charge of Team A with Graham, Manning, Delaney and Malone in the backfield, while Assistant Coach Ward watched over the second team with Howley, Slane, Woerner and Buckley as backs. This second backfield presents a speedy little quartette which, although not as heavy as the first set of backs, is just all fast. Before the signal practice in yesterday's workout some time was spent on running down punts, with Manning and Graham doing the kicking.

Fordham Field was closed to spectators yesterday and practice will be held secretly for the remainder of this week. Frank Gargan is priming his team for the Boston College game and will be disappointed with a defeat. Last year B. C. won over the Maroon by 20 to 0, but the Fordham team held this strong outfit scoreless for the last half. Fordham is anxious to turn the tables next Monday and is confident of beating Major Cavanaugh's eleven.

C. C. N. Y. IN LIGHT PRACTICE

Wishing to give his team complete rest after last Saturday's strenuous encounter with Stevens, Coach Parker yesterday gave his C. C. N. Y. team a practice of the lightest sort. The team was split up into two large sides and the coach refereed a game of association football, which was played with much enthusiasm. The sport was profitable in giving the back-field men practice in dodging in and out among nearby opponents.

With plans being made for the St. Stephen's game of next week, considerable anxiety is being felt as to the extent of Captain Bob Philidius's injuries. Philidius was removed from the Stevens game in the second quarter after he had hurt his shoulder in diving after a fumbled ball. An X-ray of the shoulder has been taken, and while the results are not yet known the medical department of City College has expressed its belief that the shoulder-blade is fractured. If this diagnosis proves correct the Lavender will be without the services of its captain and last end for the remainder of the season.

N. Y. U. WORKS ON DEFECTS.

Football Team Tries to Perfect a Smooth-Working Attack.

New York University's football squad spent yesterday afternoon in smoothing out the defects that were apparent in last Saturday's game with St. Stephen's, which the Violet won 19 to 0. The entire team was in excellent condition yesterday afternoon. O'Neill is rapidly rounding into shape and will be in the best of condition for the Union game next Saturday.

Yesterday's practice consisted of a long session for the linemen on a group of specially constructed sand bags, each of which weighed more than 200 pounds. The backs were coached by Eddie Butler for over an hour, in an effort to increase their speed in starting, which was noticeably slow in the St. Stephen's game.

Tomorrow afternoon the Violet will meet the Seventh Regiment eleven in a practice game at Ohio Field.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—William Duke and Guy Garner, respectively trainer and jockey for the stable of H. H. Aga Khan, are to leave the Indian Prince's employ Nov. 1, as their contracts, expiring on that date, are not being renewed. This American combination has carried the Aga Khan's colors to the head of the list of winning owners on the French turf for 1924. Duke's place will be filled by J. Tortorela, while D. Tortorela will ride in place of Garner. Both the Tortorelas came from Argentina in 1922 to train and ride for Señor Unsue, Argentine sportsman.

M'MILLAN CENTRE ON PRINCETON TEAM

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 6.—Bill Roper shook up the Princeton centre trio today in an attempt to get a combination with more speed. Forrest was shifted from centre to guard and Davis promoted from the second team to be his mate. McMillan, the heaviest man of the squad, was put in at centre, where he played well against Amherst Saturday. Hills appeared at right guard on the second team.

A blackboard talk started this afternoon's work, and then Roper had the men walk through the new plays he outlined. Slagle, Dinsmore and Dignan were drilled in punting, while the other men practiced starts. A half hour of signal drill followed, and the afternoon ended with a forward-pass drill for skeleton teams made up of a centre, two ends and a set of backs.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 6.—Coach Martin began this afternoon to whip the Wesleyan team into shape for the Columbia game. Riday, Lott and Martin, who have been on the hospital list, are improving and there seems to be no reason why the Cardinal and Black will not be in good condition for its appearance in New York on Saturday.

An effort will be made to eliminate the fumbling and offside play which figured so prominently in the game with Rochester. The team will be put through a scrimmage tomorrow.

TRIBUTE PAID TO M'GOVERN.

English Paper Praises American Olympic Counsel in Editorial.

An indication of success in their efforts to establish more firmly their friendly relations with athletes and officials of athletics in other countries of the world, is recognized by American athletic officials who made the trip to Paris with Uncle Sam's Olympic team, in editorial comment contained in one of the English papers just received here. The editorial refers to John T. McGovern, counsel of the American Olympic Committee and, under the heading, "Terry McGovern Leaves His Mark," reads as follows:

"Sportsmen are very sad over here that Terry McGovern, Counsel for America to the Olympic Games, has left England for America after his lavish hospitality during the Olympic Games in Paris and London.

"He holds a high judicial post in America and is well known throughout the States as an athletic 'fan.' If every sportsman approached the subject with Terry's devotion to duty and unselfish spirit there would be no quarrels in the sporting world.

"I hear that some of the British athletes wish to join together to send Mr. McGovern some small token of their regard, and a silver ornament is to be presented to him later on. He left yesterday on the steamship America and has been wirelessed many messages of good will."

HARVARD IS HELD TO ONE TOUCHDOWN

Runs Team Toward End of Practice Session—Hammond Impresses by Getting Off Long Punts.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6.—A hard thirty-minute scrimmage with the Varsity making one touchdown against the Scrubs featured in the Harvard football workout this afternoon. Doherty, who was ineligible last year, got away for a twenty-three yard run for a touchdown. Greenough, Zarakov, Miller and Gehrke rested today and were not dressed for play.

The Varsity backfield that lined up against the Knox Scrubs was composed of Cheek, quarter; Samboraki and Hammond, halfbacks, and Rogers, fullback. Stafford, who played so well Saturday during the last moments of the Virginia game, supplemented Cheek at quarterback. Captain Greenough's place in the line was taken by Lindner while Hoag was at guard in place of Theopold.

The punting of Hammond was a feature in the Crimson workout today. The latter displayed some of his old-time form, one time kicking from his ten-yard line to the second team's twenty-eight yard mark.

MILLROSE A. A. ENTERS RUN.

Team of 15 to Compete in Cross-Country Race Saturday.

A team of fifteen harriers has been entered by the Millrose A. A. for the four-mile handicap cross-country chase which will be held Sunday afternoon at Van Cortlandt Park under the auspices of the Metropolitan A. A. U. The race has been arranged as one of a series of chases over the hills and dales of Van Cortlandt Park to prepare local harriers for the sectional national championship events to be held later in the season.

Entries for the race will close on Thursday.

BROWN BEATS GOOZEMAN.

Mickey Brown of the east side, 129 pounds, received the decision over Ernie Goozeman of Milwaukee, 128½, in the main bout of twelve rounds at the reopening of the Broadway Exhibition Association in Brooklyn last night. It was a fast fight all the way, marked by plenty of action and hard hitting. In the semi-final of six rounds Billy Kennedy of New Orleans, 124½, got the decision over Mike Castle of Brooklyn, 122. Both boxers put up a fine battle and kept the spectators on edge throughout.

MARTIN WINS ON FOUL.

Wolgast Disqualified in Eighth Round of Boston Bout

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Eddie Cannonball Martin of New York won from Bobby Wolgast of Philadelphia in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round boxing bout here tonight when the Philadelphian was disqualified for holding. Martin had led throughout. Each weighed 119 pounds.

Tommy Murray of Philadelphia won the decision over Johnny Cuthbert of England in the eight-round semi-final.

The Danger Signals of Little Feet—

TO guard against foot troubles in children mothers should heed the danger signals of little feet. Turned ankles, runover heels, and flat feet warn of fallen arches that invariably lead to suffering and expense in later life.

The Coward Arch Support Shoe is the most effective relief known to foot science for arch and ankle weakness. It restores the bones and tendons to their natural position—in this way permitting the foot structure to regain its former strength.

$100,000 Account Through Advertisement in The New York Times

The New York Times:

As a result of our advertisement in The New York Times we received a $100,000 account on our opening day. The depositors happened to see the name of our counsel in the advertisement and thereupon placed confidence in us for that amount of their funds.

INSTRUCTION.

"Study Accountancy at Pace"—advice oft given—advice accepted and acted upon times without number—advice still current, still sound. Its acceptance means much to young men and women of serious intent.

Nine beginning classes in Accountancy and Business Administration have already been fully enrolled this autumn at Pace Institute. Two additional classes have been scheduled and will be organized on Thursday, October 9, at 6 P. M.

Monday, October 27, at 8:45 P. M.

You are cordially invited to call at the Institute, to visit its classes, to meet its executives and teachers. You will be welcome at any time. Pace Institute, 30 Church Street, New York.

"ODDLY TIMED."

The Federal Trade Commission finds that the Aluminum Company of America has disregarded a decree of the courts, is trading in violation of the Sherman act and has taken advantage of needlessly high tariff rates on its product in order to charge exorbitant prices. This sudden blow has so knocked the wind out of the Republicans that they can only gasp and murmur that the making of such a report "at just this time" is highly suspicious. Very "oddly timed" is the rueful comment of one Republican newspaper. The coincidence is, in fact, instructive even though undesigned. Mr. DAVIS was last week singling out the protection of aluminum as one of the grossest abuses of the Fordney-McCumber tariff. Secretary MELLON, who has a large personal interest in the aluminum company, hastened to deny that the tariff had markedly affected the American price of aluminum goods and protested that the company had not acted in a monopolistic spirit. Now comes the Federal Trade Commission to reinforce the Democratic attack, and even to push it further.

Why complain that the report is ill-timed? We are all the while urging governmental bodies to speed up their work. The Federal Trade Commission has been, in obedience to a resolution of the Senate, for three years looking into the charge that American housewives are mulcted by having to pay unconscionable prices for utensils used in the home. Among them, articles made of aluminum have come to have a great vogue. If the Federal Trade Commission is to be blamed at all, it is for not having made its report long ago. With its material for judgment at last in hand, and its decision ready to announce, why delay until after the election? Can it be that the Republicans would like to have householders go to the polls uninstructed about the workings of the tariff and of a monopoly sheltered behind it? This was to be a campaign of education, and the report of the Federal Trade Commission is a most profitable subject of study.

Surely nothing can come too early for a political party conscious of its own purity, and ready to defend its tariff policy, and its enforcement of the law, against all comers. The publication of the report may seem to the Republican managers to be badly timed, but to people who want to know the facts before voting it must appear extremely pat.

LA FOLLETTE CLASS-CONSCIOUSNESS.

Sunday afternoon witnessed a lively debate between two graduates from the classical school of socialism. The verdict of the audience, as expressed in boos and cheers, ran decisively against Mr. MEYER LONDON, who has turned to the Right and to LA FOLLETTE, and in favor of Mr. SCOTT NEARING, who has headed to the Left and into the dictatorship of the proletariat.

The debate dealt with the subject of class-consciousness. The only Socialist member of Congress ever elected from the East worked hard to prove that a class-conscious Socialist could conscientiously vote for LA FOLLETTE. His opponent argued that the only kind of candidate a Socialist can conscientiously support is a candidate on the Moscow model. Both were greatly concerned with a dogma that is pretty dead. Mr. LONDON was apparently aware that the war and its lessons have emptied class-consciousness of most of the meaning it ever had, but he could not quite screw himself up to saying so. If he had, then his plea for LA FOLLETTE and progressivism would have been logical. Mr. NEARING did not seem to suspect in the least that class-consciousness has been sinking below the horizon. In fifty years he expects class rule to repeat in this country the triumphant demonstration it has achieved in Russia. Against an opponent who insisted on speaking of class-consciousness as a real thing Mr. NEARING had an easy victory.

Only an extremely acute mind will detect in LA FOLLETTE the vindication of the old Socialist class-consciousness. The forces behind him are agrarianism, which has always in history been anti-socialistic; irreconcilable Germanic Americanism, which has not the slightest connection with economics; Hearst and Hylan tractionism, which does not fall under the Marxian formula; third-partyism, which is a political motive, and finally official labor support, which alone can be suspected of class-consciousness. The class-conscious Socialist must find himself ill at ease in the company of the Western farmers historically known in socialism as the "petty bourgeoisie," the "independent" bankers, merchants and manufacturers to whom LA FOLLETTE has made his appeal, and especially the people who propose to vote for both LA FOLLETTE and Governor SMITH.

REGISTRATION WEEK.

The massing of all the registration days for New York City in a single week lends itself to a concentrated and non-partisan appeal to qualified voters to make sure that their names get on the lists. There is no need of stating again the argument for a full vote. If the people are asked to make known their will, and half of them do not take the trouble to do it, what becomes of government based upon popular sovereignty? Figures have frequently been printed showing a steady decline in the percentage of votes actually cast out of the number eligible to exercise the right of suffrage. In the Presidential election of 1896 about 80 per cent. voted. Only 50 per cent. voted in 1920.

There are several explanations of this falling off. One of them is the very low percentage of most of the Southern States, owing to the large elimination of the negro vote. In 1920, for example, Mississippi cast less than 10 per cent. of the votes to which she was entitled by population. But it is to be feared that woman suffrage is mainly responsible for the heavy drop of the actual vote below the possible vote. This furnishes special grounds for urging women to register. Many of them were opposed to the grant of suffrage. Some of them still resent having this civic duty forced upon them against their will. But whether they like it or not, the suffrage is theirs, and they cannot refuse to vote without shirking the obligation of an enfranchised citizen. If indifferent or fastidious women decline to go to the polls, their wishes and interests may be disregarded and overruled by those who do go. Every effort ought to be made during the week to get the largest possible registration of women voters.

The September election in Maine showed what can be done when both parties work hard to get out a full vote. The total was the highest ever known. It may be said that the issues of that State election were uncommonly stirring. But they certainly could not have been more so than are the questions which are to be put up to the voters of New York four weeks from today. Matters affecting the State profoundly, and involving the policy of the Federal Government for four years to come, are to be passed upon at the polls. Nothing but the fullest expression of the mind of the electorate can square with the just demands made upon citizens in a democracy at such a juncture.

THE FUTURE OF RADIO.

Everybody who has a radio set should read Secretary HOOVER's address opening the Third Annual Radio Conference. The radio audience, estimated at 20,000,000, is a constituency which should have a good deal to say about the future of broadcasting. It is not true that owners of radio sets pay nothing for all this information and entertainment. By their purchases they support an industry whose sales amount to $1,000,000 a day. The problem of improving the programs vitally concerns those who maintain the broadcasting stations, and, of course, the manufacturers and retailers of receiving sets. It is an industry of interlocking interests. "It is not the ability to transmit," says Secretary HOOVER, "but what is transmitted that really counts."

Government radio is one thing and popular radio quite another. But if the latter is not developed, the former will suffer. Mr. HOOVER's view that organized cooperation of the industry itself is essential to its progress was not original with him. The difficulty will be to bring the broadcasters, manufacturers and dealers together in an association profitable to all. It might become necessary to assess the members according to their stake in the industry, so that programs should be improved by engaging singers, musicians and lecturers. Nothing could be collected from owners of radio sets, although it has been proposed in Great Britain that they be lightly taxed. The money must be found in some way if the local stations are, as Mr. HOOVER proposes, "to deliver "every important national event with "regularity" and "to bring to their "listeners the greatest music and entertainment of the nation." He points out that the work of wire interconnection done by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's radio interconnection through the use of short wave lengths has cost them a very large sum of money "without direct consequential return." He suggests "for consideration" the organization of a broadcasting service similar "to that "which the newspapers have for their "use in the press associations, which "would furnish programs of national "events and arrange for their transmission and distribution on some sort "of a financial basis." But whatever organization is attempted he is sure that "the quickest way to kill broadcasting would be to use it for direct "advertising." Indirect advertising cannot be prevented. But "if a speech by the President," says Mr. HOOVER, "is to be used as the meat in a sandwich of two patent medicine advertisements there will be no radio left."

In the matter of power used in broadcasting, the question, he says, is "whether we should aim to cover a "large territory through a single station or through a number of interconnected smaller ones." Which would be regarded as progress? Mr. HOOVER leaves it to the conference. He would like to have the motives of the big broadcasting stations in expending large sums of money upon construction and operation inquired into. There is one thing he does insist upon: that marine services, upon whose efficiency lives often depend, shall have every facility to improve their equipment.

JUST ONE PEACE PLAN.

The topic set by Mr. FILENE for the German peace award was narrower in scope than the thesis submitted by Mr. BOK. Our own competition of last year was concerned with a plan for promoting and preserving the peace of the world. Mr. FILENE invited the German people to discuss the question, "How "can peace and prosperity be restored "in Germany and in Europe through "international cooperation?" The "restoration" of peace obviously makes the problem more specific and immediate, and thus opens the way for suggestions that are concerned with peace at the moment rather than with peace for all time.

As a whole the German peace plans, if one may judge from the prize winners, show a strong family resemblance to the 22,000 peace solutions elicited by Mr. BOK. They fall into two general classes that may be described as the fundamentalist and the pragmatist. The fundamentalist peace-seeker strives for peace by eliminating the "causes" of war; and the causes are usually found to coincide with the author's personal interpretation of things. Among such causes are economic imperialism, undemocratic diplomacy, nationalism, armaments, and so down to the most inconsiderable of pet aversions. And always the remedy is to "eliminate" the pet aversion. Eliminate the modern economic system, eliminate secret diplomacy, eliminate national and racial feeling, eliminate armies and navies—it is as simple as all that. This type of peace solution is well exemplified in one of the winning German plans, evidently the work of a Socialist, who finds that the great cause of war is economic competition conducted by "capitalistic entrepreneurs" who have seized control of foreign policy everywhere. The remedy is to take foreign policy away from the capitalistically controlled Governments and hand it over to some other agency. How the capitalists will be prevented from taking possession of this new agency is not stated.

The alternative German first prize plan is pragmatic. It is less concerned with the causes of war than with the prevention of war when it threatens, from whatever cause arising. Presumably the author has examined the fundamentalist argument and came to the conclusion that this business of eliminating the causes of war is a hopeless task. In the history of mankind wars have been fought for every conceivable reason. Man is so busy making inventions that by the time you have eliminated one cause he will have devised two other new factors in social life working for friction. That is why this second German plan wisely begins:

"The sole practical means of assuring peace and prosperity for Germany and Europe lies in the organized cooperation of the nations for the purpose of substituting law for violence and guaranteeing the decisions reached by legal arbitration."

But when you speak of organized cooperation for the enforcement of law and arbitration you inevitably suggest one peace plan that antedates Mr. BOK's and Mr. FILENE's competitions by several years. And that is the peace plan embodied by WOODROW WILSON in the League of Nations. It is a plan which, perhaps, needs expansion and elucidation in accordance with changing circumstances; but the provisions for such changes are embodied in the Covenant. That this is really the one winning plan is attested by the fact that after five years of search and study the nations at Geneva have returned to the basic Wilson idea. The only difference from subsequent peace awards is that WOODROW WILSON received for his peace plan no money prizes and much heartache and embitterment. His reward must be sought in less material but more substantial terms. One such significant instalment was the cheering of WOODROW WILSON's name in the Reichstag last Sunday.

THE CITY BUDGET AND TAX RATE.

Hard on the heels of the increase of a billion and a half in the tax valuations comes an increase of $13,500,000 in the budget of the city. True, the Budget Director soothingly remarks that there may be a decrease in the tax rate. There ought to be. The purpose of real estate valuations is practically to find money to spend, although theoretically they are a constitutional limit on expenses. In this century there have been two decreases of about a million in the budget. But there has been a deficiency in the tax yield, and the budget has grown from $92,397,446 to $388,000,000. Yet this year the budget includes a decrease in taxes on State account of $4,000,000, against an increase last year of $7,698,782. But the city is unable to imitate the example of either the State or the nation. The national budget has been reduced over two billions and the public debt has been reduced nearly three billions. But the city's cry is still for more.

There is need for vigorous reinforcement of the constitutional limit on debt, and indirectly on budget and tax increases. The figures of new construction do not justify the greatest increase in valuations in the city's history. The other boroughs show much greater proportionate increases than Manhattan in building, and correspondingly greater increases in valuations. Brooklyn leads the increase with $563,000,000, against $386,000,000 for Manhattan, $338,000,000 for Queens and $255,000,000 for the Bronx. The greatest relative increases are in the boroughs which have most to hope from rapid transit. There is no worse way for the city to save money than by not spending it in completion of its dual subway contracts. Even if the Mayor got $275,000,000 to spend on inferior plans and he were re-elected, not a mile of subway could be completed within his new term of office.

DR. FOSDICK'S DECISION.

To understand the answer which Dr. FOSDICK made yesterday to the committee of the New York Presbytery, one must recall what went before. He is a Baptist clergyman who for some years has been acting as associate minister in a Presbyterian church. There was no offense in this, and probably no notice would have been taken of it had not Dr. FOSDICK become known as a man of liberal views in theology. They were not made prominent in his preaching, which had been of such power as to draw great throngs to hear him, but the fact was seized upon by extreme conservatives in the Presbyterian Church to move against Dr. FOSDICK. They first thought of something like a trial for heresy, but as he was sustained by the great majority of the ministers and elders of the New York Presbytery, that course seemed hardly feasible. Accordingly, the point was made by the General Assembly that the continued employment of a Baptist minister in a Presbyterian church was "irregular," and that Dr. FOSDICK should be required to become a Presbyterian or else the First Church must give him up as an associate minister.

To the case as thus put to him, Dr. FOSDICK now makes a clear and conclusive reply. He would have no objections to complying with the request of the General Assembly on denominational grounds, as he is a great believer in church unity, and would have inter-denominational exchanges and fellowship greatly extended, instead of being restricted. But he is unwilling to commit himself to anything which would look like a "closed shop" in the church. Moreover, he does not feel in conscience that he could assent to the ancient creed which Presbyterian ministers are required to accept for "substance of doctrine," especially since to do so would expose him to the unhappy interpretation of stretching his principles a little in order to keep his position. The result will be, of course, that he will give up his associate ministry in the First Presbyterian Church, though he may still be invited from time to time to preach there.

It is plain that the whole loss will fall not upon Dr. FOSDICK, but upon the Presbyterian Church. It will have convicted itself in the eyes of the lay public not only of a certain denominational narrowness, but of the folly of giving up the services of a preacher whose good report has filled the whole city, become known throughout the entire country and reached the knowledge of the churches in England. Such a voice as that of Dr. FOSDICK's is in no danger of being silenced by any technical ecclesiastical veto. He has but to speak, anywhere, and people will flock to hear him. Without artifice in the pulpit, or the slightest trick of ministerial sensationalism, he has moved thousands by the quality of his thought and the depth and sincerity of his religious emotions. When a church, no matter of what denomination, has at its disposal such a preacher of spiritual power in a time of dominant materialism, it is so stupid as to be almost wicked to let him go. It seems very close to a violation of the Scriptural injunction to quench not the spirit. But Dr. FOSDICK need not think of abandoning his great following or his high mission. If not in one pulpit, then eventually in another, his exceptional vocation for the ministry will, no doubt, be exemplified so long as strength and life do not fail him.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Hunt Long and Vain.

In considering the evidence for and against "the Indian rope trick," discussion of which has interested a number of TIMES readers, it is necessary, first of all, to remember that even a little testimony of the positive sort outweighs a much greater amount of the negative sort. What the negative testimony does in such cases, if there is enough of it, is only to throw doubt on either the credibility or the powers of observation of the positive witnesses, and to put them more or less on the defensive.

Another thing to be remembered is the seemingly obvious impossibility of throwing a rope into the air, having it remain suspended from nothing, and then having a boy climb it so high as to be out of sight from the ground, and, after coming down in separated parts, to reappear alive and well. Only the glamour of the belief that India is the land of Mahatmas and gurus capable of performing miracles enables anybody to give such a yarn as that the slightest credence.

If is true, however, that several people do claim to have seen just that, and one of them wrote the letter printed on this page yesterday, in which the experience was claimed as a personal one. Presumably the correspondent thought he saw what he said he saw, but that is or may have been a lot different from seeing it, as is proved at every exhibition of prestidigitation, professional or even amateur.

An entirely reputable and undeniably honest witness on the other side is Major L. H. BRANSON, who, in the course of twenty-three years of service in India as an army surgeon, visited all parts of the great peninsula. A special interest in "magic" led him everywhere to ask about the "rope trick," and he was on terms of intimacy with several of the wandering magicians. Yet never once, among natives or among foreigners whom he regarded as veracious, did he find anybody who had seen the thing done or who claimed the ability to do it. In addition, a long-standing offer of £200 for convincing information on the subject remained unclaimed. Major BRANSON, therefore, utterly disbelieves the "rope trick," and though his evidence is negative, it is far from being without weight.

A Famous Marvel Explained.

In a book on "Indian Conjuring," published by George Routledge & Sons, Major BRANSON gives not only his conclusions as to the "rope trick," but the others reached by him as a result of his long investigation. He declares that the great reputation of Indian magic has for basis only a few feats well within the power of any Occidental "magician" to explain and duplicate, and that even the best of the Indian illusionists is far inferior not only to those of Europe, but also to those of China and Japan, though the latter do not come up to Western standards by a long distance.

For many of the Indian "miracles" the Major offers convincing explanations, including an almost absurdly simple one for the "mango trick," which in the literature of imaginative or credulous Westerners ranks close to the "rope trick." It is one, however, which any traveler in India can see as often as he chooses, as it is performed by all the wandering fakirs.

In a little mound of earth a mango seed is planted and covered with a cloth. After a few moments of murmured incantation the cloth is lifted and protruding from the earth is a little mango tree. With successive coverings and liftings the little tree grows in a few minutes to some two feet in height and sometimes it has fruit on it! That's what the observers see. What they don't see is that the magician has provided himself beforehand with mango twigs of several sizes, and that he sticks them one after the other in his mound of earth, removing the predecessor of each under his convenient cloth and getting rid of it in the ways known to every prestidigitateur.

Yet this performance has been described as something wonderful and deeply, darkly mysterious by numberless gullible travelers. Done by anybody else than an Indian, they might have been puzzled, but they would have known that the explanation was something like the one given by Major BRANSON, who took the small trouble of making a real investigation. All the other feats of these much-lauded magicians, he says, are of the same nature.

They Can Stand the Cold.

At least as notable as Miss EVA MORRISON's swimming in seven and a half hours the twelve miles between Charlestown Bridge and Boston Light was the fact that, of the several men who had planned to swim with her, all but one decided not to enter the water after testing its temperature, and that one, after a single mile, decided that it was too cold for him and gave it up.

This illustrates the one form of hardiness in which women are the decided superiors of men. Not only can they remain longer in colder water than men can, or, at any rate, than men will, but they wear with seeming comfort much lighter clothing in Winter. Few of them have any use for the thick flannels to which men resort soon after Fall begins.

The reason is physiological, the average woman having just under her skin a deeper layer of adipose tissue than the average man. It forms an excellent protection from the cold. That, too, is why, in spite of wearing few clothes and thinner ones, they do not catch pneumonia so easily as men do, or die of it so often.

A Slow but Real Improvement.

RAYMOND COLLINS, the Deputy Police Commissioner in charge of the Bureau of Public Safety, congratulates the people of the city on the fact that they have made at least the beginning of abandoning the once widely prevalent habit of "jay-walking"—of crossing the streets elsewhere than at corner crosswalks. They also are becoming more careful in the matter of looking both ways before they cross anywhere.

That such a beginning really has been made he proves only by the decrease in the number of fatalities so caused in the past year as compared with the year before. It is not a large decrease, being only from 762 to 740, but is larger than it seems, for in the number both of automobiles and motor driven trucks as well as of population largely increased, the fatalities would have increased in proportion if the people on foot had not learned to take care of themselves better than they did.

Of course, if pedestrians would take sufficient care they never would be run down by motor cars. Everybody, however, never will be cautious always, and it is too much to expect of children. But as time goes on, the sense of danger from these vehicles will become more or less nearly instinctive, and from that, rather than from scoldings about "jay-walking," the ultimate diminution of street accidents to the irreducible minimum is to be expected.

The advice to cross only at crossings is good advice, though there are a few times and places where the centre of a block is safer than the corner. But the police want the rule against "jay-walking" to be invariable.

DESPOTIC SUPREME COURT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The core of Senator LA FOLLETTE's official program lies in his proposal to destroy a despot. That despot, says he, is the Federal court. "The usurpation," Senator LA FOLLETTE declares, "by the Federal courts of the power to nullify laws enacted by the legislative branch of the Government is a plain violation of the Constitution." Therefore, says the Senator, "it is essential that the Constitution shall give to the Congress the right to override such judicial veto."

Certainly we want no usurpation in this country. We want no despot. Let us be statistical in order to measure the basis of Senator LA FOLLETTE's accusation against the court.

In the past thirty years Congress has enacted 23,252 laws. These are published in a series of heavy, sheepskinned volumes called The Statutes at Large. The laws of these last thirty years cover 34,951 pages of closely printed matter.

How many of these laws has that despot, the Supreme Court of the United States, nullified? Since 1888, during a period of thirty-six years, the Supreme Court has nullified thirteen acts of Congress—something like one out of every two thousand statutes enacted. For Senator LA FOLLETTE's information, I refer him to the following authorities:

In 131 U. S. Supplement, 235, statistics are found showing that up to 1888, twenty acts of Congress had been invalidated by the United States Supreme Court.

Professor Charles Beard declares in his book, "American Government and Politics," that up to 1903, the Supreme Court had from the beginning of this Government invalidated twenty-one acts of Congress.

Charles W. Pierson, in his book, "Our Changing Constitution," published in 1922, states that no more than thirty Congressional statutes had up to that time been nullified by the Supreme Court.

Since 1922, an examination, volume by volume, of the United States Supreme Court reports, discloses three cases in which acts of Congress were nullified.

Senator LA FOLLETTE would allow Congress, in the event of such nullification of any of its statutes by the Supreme Court, "to override the judicial veto," i. e., to re-enact the statute and make it law. Such a program, carried into effect, destroys the Constitution and puts minorities at the utter mercy of the majority. Let the Ku Klux Klan gain a temporary majority in Congress, and what of Senator LA FOLLETTE's program is carried out, becomes of religious freedom? Let the fearsome capitalists gain such a majority and labor unionism will become a capital offense. Let labor control, and the capitalists will be taxed into bankruptcy.

The statistics set forth above amply show that the Federal court is not a despot; that the number of cases in which it has set aside the will of Congress is negligible. The court's power to set aside acts of Congress as unconstitutional is the only safeguard against the unbridled tyranny of the majority. The truth is that Senator LA FOLLETTE is not proposing to tear down but to create a despot.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As one of the city's agencies which is seeking to prevent loss of life and increase the health and efficiency of the community, the teaching centre of the New York County Chapter of the Red Cross has begun registering pupils for Fall classes in food selection, home nursing, first aid and Braille transcribing.

These classes are practically free, a nominal fee of $3.50 being charged to cover cost of textbooks and clerical expenses. A competent dietitian gives the course in food selection, which covers in fifteen lessons such subjects as the care of the digestive mechanism, food for adults, food for the baby and growing children, menus, food plans and dietaries, food for the sick and convalescents and food costs.

Instruction in home nursing is given by a trained nurse and covers in fifteen lessons such subjects as recognition of symptoms, administering of medicine, bed making and bathing the patient, care of patients with communicable diseases, care of babies and personal hygiene. A physician gives instruction in first aid, while an expert in Braille teaches the transcribing of books for the blind.

Classes are held during the day and evening at teaching centre headquarters, 24 Fifth Avenue, and as soon as ten persons have registered for the course the instruction begins.

CONFLICT.

I am a landsman, scared of the sea—
Life is an unkind master to me!—
Fear of the ocean keeps me ashore—
I who could live on sailormen's lore!

Somewhere in land beyond of mine
A roving seaman entered my line.

Schooners in harbor, fog rolling in—
How they have stirred that something within!

Rain-blackened pavements far from a ship
Whisper of sea nights . . . docks all adrip.

Even the mountains, mantled in mist,
Hint of a call that I cannot resist.

Blood of my fathers' battles in mine—
Most of it landbound—some of it brine.

Oh, I could curse me—sometimes I do—
Fearing the sea, and loving it, too!

S. OMAR BARKER.

A QUAD STORY IS RECALLED.

How One Soldier is Supposed to Have Died in the Civil War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent death of "M. Quad," the humorist, recalls a story written by him and published in The Detroit Free Press about forty years ago.

It concerned two Union soldiers who were on the firing line and lying down awaiting orders to advance. Overhead shells were bursting while bullets whined past their heads. One of them thought it would be great sport to toss a pebble over and strike his comrade whose face appeared most anxious, and make him think he had been shot. Picking up a very small stone, he whipped it over and it struck his companion. The soldier hit gave a quick gasp and his head dropped on the ground.

After laughing at the deception, the soldier who played the trick called to his comrade and, receiving no response, went over to him and was astonished to find him dead. He was unwounded, but suspense and the shock had done the trick.

Whether M. Quad founded his story on fact or not, I can draw a parallel which really occurred in July, 1898. The Eighth New York was encamped at Chickamauga Park, Ga. In those days there was no piped water and we drank the water from Chickamauga Creek, after boiling and cooling it off. We had "cooties" in those days, too, although they were not known by that name. We would go to the drug store at Lytle and buy a small bottle of poison which we would dissolve in water and soak our clothes in this. It rained almost every day there, and one day while watching the water pour from the tent I thought it would be a good idea to catch some for drinking purposes.

When it cleared, I went to Lytle and purchased a two-quart flash tin kettle, known in anti-bellum days as a growler. The next day there came a heavy shower, and after allowing time for the dust to wash off the tent, placed the can under and the result was a can full of beautiful, fresh, sparkling water which was quite cool. Taking a bottle of sun cholera drops from my medicine kit, I put a teaspoonful in the pail and after stirring it up, took a long draught. Just then "Assembly" blew and seizing my blouse, belt and rifle, I hurried into line.

A comrade running up the company street to the place of assembly saw this inviting can of water at the entrance to my tent and rushed for it, and raising it to his mouth, took two great swallows before he discovered the strong flavor. Spitting out what remained in his mouth, he looked at the tent and recognized it as mine. Rushing over to me he asked what was in the pail. I feigned alarm and said: "You didn't drink any of that, did you? It is poison to kill the lice."

The man turned pale and began vomiting. Suddenly he dropped his rifle and rushed for the regimental hospital. It had all happened so suddenly that I had not the chance to tell him the truth, and now it was my turn to be scared, as I feared when he reported at the hospital there would be an investigation and I would be questioned and punished; but evidently no questions were asked him, although he remained at the hospital for ten days and was a mighty sick patient.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with much interest the statement which Mr. La Follette made in Washington on Sept. 17 as regards his making a thorough housecleaning, if elected, and removing all of the present Cabinet members.

In justice to our Secretary of Commerce, Herbert Hoover, I wish to say that at no time has he abused his office or been connected in any dishonest dealings whatsoever. He has contributed to the welfare of our American industries. He has managed the nation's business with great care. He has put simplified methods in a great many industries and has saved millions of dollars for the American manufacturers, and he has achieved more success than any of his predecessors. He has handled the American Relief, which was under his jurisdiction, with the greatest care and ability, and has accomplished much to that end as a humanitarian, and he has won the admiration of the American people, as well as that of the European nations.

He has reorganized our Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Commerce and placed the same in the hands of a most able business engineer, Dr. Julius Klein, who has put efficiency in the Bureau of Foreign Commerce—more efficiency than any of the former directors. He has tried, and is trying, to educate the American manufacturer and exporter who is seeking foreign trade how to obtain better results, and has been more than successful to that end, as statistics of our foreign commerce show in the thousands of inquiries received by the Commerce Bureau from foreign markets; and there isn't a commodity or manufactured article which is not represented in our Foreign Bureau of Commerce.

The game of politics is not played in his department; the best men, well experienced in this line, are sent abroad as our commercial representatives, and American merchandise is flowing in all corners of the foreign world, all of this is due to the good management and foresight of our Secretary of Commerce, Herbert Hoover, and, therefore, I believe that Mr. La Follette is unfair in reflecting upon the characters of our good and faithful public servants, who have proved by their work and ability that the interest of the American nation and public is ever in their minds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the new regulations which compel steps of street cars and omnibuses at even streets only is really done for the purpose of making time, to say nothing of attempting to make the streets safer for pedestrians, is it not balking the effort to adhere so rigidly to the order? When the cars are held up for traffic for two, perhaps three, minutes, why would it not help all around to allow passengers to descend and even to take them on if they are on the spot at the moment? Refusal to do just this particular thing makes the situation infinitely harder all around, including the strain upon the motormen, whose work would be greatly facilitated if the law were rescinded to make it possible "to unload" instead of standing answering questions and struggling with irate people until it is time to move only to be held up again at the next street. Otherwise why not allow cross traffic only on the even streets?

The Coolidge Way.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the biography of Calvin Coolidge, written by R. M. Washburn and circulated by the Republican National Committee, we find this significant sentence in reference to his first election to the Legislature:

"He had bided his time for coming to the House from Northampton when he could come without opposition."

Then again do we not find in the following paragraph a complete explanation for the appointment of Sleman as his private secretary:

"Our hero was never skittish about his playmates whether they taught school or not, so long as they could help in a cause which looked good to him."

TO PRESS CAMPAIGN FOR ST. JOHN FUND

TO LAST TWELVE DAYS

Franklin D. Roosevelt, National Chairman of the Committee for Completing the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, authorized the announcement last night that an intensive campaign for $15,000,000 to complete the great church would be made in New York City from Jan. 18 to 29, inclusive.

The campaign will open with a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden Sunday evening, Jan. 18. This meeting will take the place of the Bishop's meeting usually held in November.

"I will ask every citizen of New York to remember these dates," said Mr. Roosevelt. "The Committee for Completing the Cathedral includes men and women belonging to various denominations beside the Protestant Episcopal Church. We should like all New Yorkers to feel that the Cathedral is a civic and a national institution, and to realize that its capacity for service to the community will increase as each unit is added.

"During this twelve-day period the general public will be asked to contribute, and we expect that gifts will flow into the treasury of the committee in large volume. The results of this effort will not be regarded as conclusive, however, unless the full amount is reached. The committees will continue work until every possible gift has been obtained.

"Last May Bishop Manning announced that gifts totaling $2,561,000 had been made in less than three months. Of this sum, $2,220,000 had been obtained through his personal efforts. A committee on preliminary gifts, of which Frank L. Polk is Chairman, has also been calling on men and women of means, and has obtained substantial gifts. The Bishop and the committee will continue their efforts up to the opening of the popular campaign."

Elihu Root and George W. Wickersham are the Chairman and Vice Chairman of a citizens' committee which is being formed. The membership of the entire committee will be announced in a short time.

PLAN PHILANTHROPIC DRIVE.

A rally of 137 trades of the Business Men's Council, to which were assigned quotas ranging from $1,000 to $275,000 to be raised in the coming drive of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, was held yesterday at the Pennsylvania Hotel under the chairmanship of Felix M. Warburg and Percy S. Straus. The largest quotas were assigned to the bankers and brokers' division, which will raise $275,000, and the real estate men, who will raise $25,000. The quota for department stores is $50,000.

The council has recruited more than 1,000 volunteers, Mr. Warburg said. He told how thoroughly business men and professional men had been organized for the drive, which will be inaugurated on Oct. 26 at a dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The dinner, for which a cover charge of $100 per person will be made, will be donated by an anonymous contributor, and the cover charge will all go to the fund.

Albert J. Erdman, Chairman for the bankers and brokers, said his committee was organized to do its share in raising the $1,250,000 deficit in the federation's current budget of $3,845,000 for its ninety-one institutions.

The insurance men, William Schiff, Chairman, hope to raise $12,500; the leather goods men, Mutterperl, Chairman, $7,500, and the lawyers, Mark Eisner, Chairman, $50,000.

HONOR DEPARTING PRIEST.

Sing Sing Officials and Prisoners Present Gifts to Chaplain.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OSSINING, Oct. 6.—With music, speeches and the presentation of gifts, Sing Sing Prison's staff, from the highest official to the humblest guard, from the lowliest of crooks to the highest in the "profession," made an affectionate farewell tonight to the Rev. Father William E. Cashin, who is leaving for other duties in New York City after twelve years as Sing Sing's Catholic chaplain.

The prison chapel, decorated for the occasion, was crowded with the convicts among whom Father Cashin has labored long and hard. Warden Lewis E. Lawes, who was there with his official staff, was the master of ceremonies.

On behalf of the Mutual Welfare League, Father Cashin was presented with a gold crucifix, bearing the inscription, "To the Bishop of Sing Sing From the Saints of Sing Sing." Members of the Holy Name Society among the prisoners presented him with a wrist watch. From the officers of the prison staff there was another gift.

CARDINAL SCORES SPORTS.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Believing that young men are sacrificing religion to love of sport, the Cardinal Prince-Bishop of Breslau has written a letter to the Governor of Upper Silesia, where Breslau is situated, urging him to consider taking measures toward remedying the evil, especially with regard to the holding of sporting events on Sundays.

Sunday sports, declares the prelate, are seriously reducing the attendance of youth at church, since the events often are held at the same hour as religious services.

He adds that spiritual culture is being neglected more and more in favor of physical culture, which is bound to be detr

MISS GUGGENHEIM ENGAGED TO MARRY

MISS K. D. EXTON BETROTHED

DENIES SOVIET GETS MORDKIN'S RECEIPTS

Morris Gest yesterday denied the report cabled from Berlin that the coming American tour of Michael Mordkin, under his management, would involve a payment of a portion of the receipts to the Soviet Government or that it was in any other way connected with the Bolsheviki. Mr. Gest produced his contract with the dancer, which not only fails to contain anything to bear out the Berlin report but which carries a clause specifically pledging Mordkin and his company to refrain from political propaganda and agitation while in this country.

"The contract for Mordkin's American tour was made by me with Dr. Leonidoff, business manager of the Moscow Art Theatre, acting in Mordkin's behalf. Not only did I not agree to any Soviet participation in his receipts, but I shall refuse to continue to direct his American tour unless I am absolutely convinced that he has made no arrangements that involve him with the Bolsheviki.

"The story that a Soviet representative will be allowed to check up the receipts of the tour and keep count of Mordkin's percentages is absurd. I certainly would not tolerate any such arrangement."

The report, as it came from Berlin, seemed to emanate from Isadora Duncan, in a statement denouncing Mordkin. Mordkin, in answer to her, said: "Miss Duncan can not dance. That is why she has become a politician."

MISS JACKSON'S BRIDAL.

Plans for Her Marriage to Edward Austen Hodge on Saturday.

Two old American families will be joined by the marriage next Saturday in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Norwalk, Conn., of Miss Olive Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Brady Jackson of Norwalk, to Edward Austen Hodge, son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Morse Hodge of this city.

The ceremony will be performed by the Right Rev. David L. Ferris, Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of Western New York. It will be followed by a reception at the bride's ancestral home in Bettlewood Park. The bride is the great-great-granddaughter of Governor Bysselle of Connecticut.

Mrs. Harold E. Nash of Norwalk will be the matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Genevieve A. Hodge, sister of the bridegroom; the Misses Elizabeth and Phyllis Jackson, sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Douglas E. Nash of Norwalk. Mr. Douglas E. Nash will be best man. The ushers will be Gilbert Colgate Fox and Lloyd Noble of New York, Harold E. Nash of Norwalk and Richard C. Morse of Chicago.

The bride and bridegroom expect to live in Orange, N. J.

Newcomb Carlton Improves.

Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who was injured by a taxicab Saturday night at Vanderbilt Avenue and Forty-third Street, was reported to be improving last night at his home, 27 East Seventy-second Street. Dr. Adrian Lambert of the 16th Street and Forty-first Street, after a visit to Mr. Carlton yesterday was understood to have announced that his injuries were not as serious as at first supposed.

Marion Telva Operated On.

Marion Telva, the Metropolitan contralto, formerly of St. Louis, is recovering after an operation for appendicitis, performed at the French Hospital here by Dr. Charles Peck. Her attending physician said yesterday the singer might leave the hospital within a fortnight. Miss Telva spent the Summer abroad in study at Munich and Paris.

'AIDA' TO OPEN OPERA SEASON ON NOV. 3

Novelties Are "Jenufa" and "Giovanni Gallurese"—"Falstaff" Revival—Galli-Curci in January.

The Metropolitan Opera House will open on Nov. 3 next with "Aida," a first-night favorite on more occasions than any other opera during Gatti-Casazza's sixteen seasons here and some of the five earlier years that Caruso sang for Conried. Mr. Gatti, just back from Italy, held his first audience yesterday at the opera offices in West Thirty-ninth Street.

Here the opera's general manager outlined his finished plans for the Winter, while the opera orchestra held its first rehearsal within the great theatre and the chorus and ballet were likewise engaged on their separate practice stages built atop of the opera house over Seventh Avenue.

Tullio Serafin, the new Italian conductor, arriving this week, will be the chief newcomer concerned in "Aida." A familiar cast will include Rethberg, Matzenauer, Martinelli, Danise and Mardones. There may also be an extra performance of opera on Tuesday, Nov. 4, in response to many requests for such an event on Election Day.

Mme. Jeritza will make her re-entrance on Wednesday, the second regular subscription night, in "Tannhauser," with Leubenthal, Whitehill and Bender, led by Bodanzky. Serafin will conduct a revival of "La Gioconda" after many years at the Saturday matinee, with Ponselle and Gigli. The first week will also include a performance of "Boris," with Chaliapin.

Botta, Pins and Di Pinna are to sing in the revival of "Tales of Hoffman" in the second week, with Hasselmans conducting and new scenery by Urban. Early in December will come the season's first actual novelty, Janacek's "Jenufa," sung by the Czechoslovak composer's compatriot, Jeritza, with Matzenauer and Laubenthal, led by Bodanzky.

"Falstaff," with Scotti, will be revived in the last week of the year, after a silence of some fourteen seasons as far as Verdi's final masterpiece is concerned. The second part of the current series, after New Year's, will bring the second novelty, Montemezzi's "Giovanni Gallurese," sung by Lauri-Volpi and a new soprano, Maria Mueller.

"Götterdämmerung" in January and "Rheingold" a month later will bring the final restoration of Wagner's Nibelung music dramas. The two weeks will be sung for the first time at this house since 1917, and all four of the "Ring" cycle will then be heard in their proper sequence during February and March.

Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande" will be a long-awaited production about the middle of March. After its celebrated career at Hammerstein's Manhattan, the work was performed by the Chicago Philadelphia Company on visits to the Metropolitan. Mr. Gatti's cast will include Bori, Edward Johnson and Whitehill.

Speaking of individual singers, the impresario said he expected to present Toti dal Monte in December, Galli-Curci in January, and later the new German prima donnas, Larsen-Todsen in dramatic and Mueller in lyric roles. Chaliapin will also appear as Basilio in "The Barber," which he has not sung here since the Conreid regime.

Mr. Gatti, who looked well after a Summer spent in Milan and at his home in Ferrara, talked informally in Italian, French and English during yesterday's interview.

"My English is—magnifique, n'est-ce-pas?" he laughingly explained, as he hesitated momentarily for a word.

For the season's subscribers, he said, the final sale will open on Friday of this week, the book closing Oct. 22. Seats for single performances of the opening week will be available Thursday, Oct. 30.

STUYVESANT KIN BURIED IN ST. MARK'S

Bishop Manning Conducts Rites for Miss Catherine—Brother and Sister Came in Family Coupe.

A funeral was held yesterday morning at the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie that was more like such a ceremony in the New York of the last century than any that has taken place in the city for many years. It was the funeral of Miss Catherine E. S. Stuyvesant of 3 East Fifty-seventh Street, a direct descendant of Peter Stuyvesant, the last Dutch Governor of New Amsterdam. She died last Wednesday of pneumonia at her Summer residence in Newport.

Bishop Manning conducted the services, and in order to show this mark of respect to a family that for generations had staunchly supported the diocese he entered the church for the first time since he deprived it of episcopal ministration and visitation last March. Only a few intimate friends and the near surviving kin were present, their number including Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rhinelander, Mrs. Edward Finch, Mrs. Charles Brown, Miss Satterlee and Mrs. De Peyster Martin. These mourners arrived in automobiles, but the brother and sister of Miss Stuyvesant, A. Van Horne Stuyvesant Jr. and Miss Anna W. Stuyvesant, drove down to Tenth Street and Second Avenue in the family coupe, which bore their crest on the door, and was drawn by a handsome pair of horses, with two men in livery on the box.

The Stuyvesants had lately attended the services at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, to which they gave $250,000 for a new baptistry, but the funeral and burial yesterday were naturally held in the church of their forefathers, where lie eighty-three other Stuyvesants, including the famous Petrus, late Captain General and Governor-in-Chief of Amsterdam in the New Netherland now called New York and the Dutch West India Islands."

BEN-AMI AT THE PALACE.

Carmella Ponselle, dramatic mezzo-soprano, made her vaudeville début at the Hippodrome yesterday afternoon. She was in excellent voice and her offerings—among them, the "Samson and Delilah" aria—were enthusiastically received. Frederick Bristol was her accompanist.

Others on the lengthy and well-rounded program were Toto, the clown, returning to the theatre of his first triumphs in his new "Revue a la Minute"; Selbit, an illusionist; Jimmy Watts; Rome and Gautt; Collins; the Vestoff Cossack Orchestra; the Rath Brothers; Coleman's Police Dogs, and a new "Si-Ba-Ba" presentation by D'Apollon.

Interest at the Palace was divided between Sophie Tucker, returning to her first love after a brief incursion into the revue field, and Ben-Ami, making his vaudeville début in the second act of "Samson and Delilah." Miss Tucker was uproariously received and the Ben-Ami offering went surprisingly well in its strange surroundings.

The rest of the bill was made up of Ivan Bankoff and Beth Cassen, in a new dance offering; Dooley and Morgan; "The Test," by Willard McDonald; Little Billy; Fred Lindsay; Jack La Vier, and Stan Stevens and company.

DR. SHANKLIN DIES ON SUBWAY STEPS

Dr. Shanklin, who retired from the presidency of Wesleyan last Fall, was seated on the stairway of the subway entrance at Forty-third Street and Madison Avenue and was groaning as though he were suffering pain. A woman notified patrolman La Rousse of the East Fifty-first Street Station and Dr. Dishongh was summoned from Bellevue Hospital. Before the arrival of the physician, Dr. Shanklin had died.

Dr. Shanklin, who was 63 years old, lived with his wife and three children in Jackson Heights. He had been in ill health for some time. He was graduated from Hamilton College in 1883 and received his theological training at the Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill. He was the recipient of honorary degrees of M. A., D. D., and LL. D. from many other prominent universities.

From 1909 to 1923, under President Shanklin's administration, Wesleyan University developed very extensively. The educational standards were raised, the curriculum improved and the Faculty doubled in number. The physical assets of the university were trebled in value and the annual income nearly quadrupled. The student body doubled in number and nearly one-half of the living alumni attended college during President Shanklin's administration. Three of the alumni, who are physicians, examined him in June, 1922, and decided that he must immediately cease strenuous work.

In June, 1920, President Coolidge, then Governor of Massachusetts, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Wesleyan, the degree being conferred by President Shanklin.

George A. Graham.

George A. Graham, Treasurer of John H. Graham & Co., hardware dealers, died Saturday at his home in Englewood, N. J., aged 55. After graduation from Adelphi Academy in Brooklyn in 1888 he entered the employ of Graham & Co. and was made a partner five years later. During the World War he worked with J. P. Morgan & Co. organization that purchased supplies for the British Government, and in the Fourth and Fifth Liberty Loan drives was chairman of the Hardware and Allied Trade Division.

The Rev. Dr. James De Normandie.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Oct. 6.—The Rev. Dr. James De Normandie, widely known Unitarian clergyman, from 1883 to 1918 minister of the First Church in Roxbury, died in a hospital here today in his eighty-eighth year. He was born at Newport, Pa., and educated at Antioch College and Harvard Divinity School.

He was formerly editor of The Unitarian Review and for twenty-one years was pastor of the South Parish, Portsmouth, N. H. He was a trustee of the Boston Public Library.

Bernard M. Shanley Jr.

Bernard M. Shanley Jr., head of the manufacturing jewelry firm of his name in Newark, died there Sunday after a sudden attack of heart disease. He was 51 years old, the last of four sons of the late Bernard M. Shanley, one of the organizers of the present system of trolley lines in Northern New Jersey.

Robert E. Bonner Dead.

Robert Edwin Bonner, son of the late Robert Bonner, whom he succeeded as publisher of The New York Public Ledger, died yesterday at his residence in Lenox, Mass., of a paralytic stroke. HOOVER PROPOSES RADIO COOPERATION

OPPOSES FEDERAL CONTROL

Secretary Tells Radio Conference He Favors a National System of Programs.

TO AID LOCAL STATIONS

They Must Be Able, He Says, "to Deliver Every Important National Event Regularly."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover told representatives of every branch of the industry assembled tonight at the opening session of the third National Radio Conference that the development of nationwide broadcasting had now reached the stage where the possibilities and potentialities of radio intercommunication must be considered as a regular daily routine of the nation.

Experimental broadcasting upon a national scale during the past year had been brought to the point where "we know it can be done," Mr. Hoover declared. For accuracy and regularity of reception the local broadcasting stations could be depended upon, he said, but the local stations "must be able to deliver every important national event regularly."

Unless national broadcasting could be systematically organized, Mr. Hoover said, it could not be expected to continue.

Sees Need of Cooperation.

After commenting upon the wonderful development of radio in the last four years, Secretary Hoover said that in a large sense the purpose of the conference was "to enable the listeners, the broadcasters, the manufacturers and the marine and other services to agree among themselves as to the manner in which radio activities are to be conducted."

"Radio activities, so long as they remain within the legislative restriction which holds for the Government the fundamental control of the ether, are largely free," said Mr. Hoover. "The industry's future conduct with a single view to public interest, a voluntary imposition of its own rules and a high sense of service, would go far to make further new legislative or administrative intervention unnecessary."

"The local station must be able to bring to its listeners the greatest music and entertainment of the nation," he went on, "but far beyond this it must be able to deliver important pronouncements of public men, it must bring instantly to our people a hundred and one matters of national interest. To this it must add its matters of local interest. This can only be accomplished by regularly organized interconnection on a national basis, with nationally organized and directed programs for some part of the day in supplement to more local material.

Opposes Government Distribution.

"It is our duty to consider the possibilities and potentialities of interconnection as a regular daily routine of the nation. Unless it be systematically organized, we cannot expect its continuation. I realize that this matter, except in so far as it may be fostered and encouraged, does not lie in the Government. It would be unfortunate, indeed, if such an important function as the distribution of information should ever fall into the hands of the Government. It would be still more unfortunate if its control should come under the arbitrary power of any person or group of persons. It is inconceivable that such a situation could be allowed to exist.

"But I am not dealing with monopoly. Nor is this a question where any one says claims to a monopoly. Interconnection is going on to a local extent and over wires of the telegraph companies, the telephone companies and by radio itself. We have promises of superradio, and we have promises of interconnection of wired wireless. If there are several methods, it means that we might have several alternative programs always available. But whatever the method of interconnection may be, we are lacking in a definite organization of a national system of programs and a basis of support.

"I believe that the quickest way to kill broadcasting would be to use it for direct advertising. The reader of the newspaper has an option whether he will read an ad or not, but if a speech by the President is to be used as the meat in a sandwich of two patent medicine advertisements, there will be no radio left. To what extent it may be employed for what we now call indirect advertising I do not know, and only experience with the reactions of the listeners can tell.

"I do not believe there is any practical method of payment from the receivers. I wish to suggest for consideration the possibility of mutual organization by broadcasters of a service for themselves similar to that which the newspapers have for their use in the press associations, which would furnish programs of national events and arrange for their transmission and distribution on some sort of a financial basis, just as the press associations gather and distribute news among their members.

"It may be that we cannot find a solution at this moment, but I believe that one result of this conference should be not only the consideration of the question but the establishment of a continuing committee for its further consideration."

Takes Up Wave Length Problem.

Taking up the problem of wave lengths, Secretary Hoover spoke of the difficulty of providing operating channels for broadcasting stations. He pointed out that of the present 530 stations, fifty-seven are Class B, operating on from 500 to 1,000 watts and having a wide range, and 287 are Class A, many using small power and covering small areas, and 186 are Class B and Class C stations, most of which have low power, all on a wave length of 360 meters.

"Our chief trouble is with the Class B stations," he said. "They are all assigned within the band of 285 to 545 meters, within which there are, under the present system of allocation, and excluding the Class C band, only forty-four available channels, and only thirty-three that seem desirable at present. To assign these among the fifty-seven stations necessarily means duplication, although it was the theory of the last conference that individual wave lengths could be assigned to each. At present twenty-three stations either have excluded wave lengths or are sharing with stations so distant that both may operate simultaneously, while the remaining thirty-four are compelled to divide time.

"Another question of importance is the limit of power to be used in broadcasting. Most Class B stations are now operating on 500 watts. A limitation of 1,000 watts is imposed in the license. I understand that there are several stations erected or in course of construction which contemplate the use of power up to 5,000 watts, and I am aware of the suggestions of those who would go beyond even this.

"There is opposition to the plan. Its advocates tell us of the great advantages in the way of louder signals and more distant transmission, while opponents complain of interference and the drowning out of other stations. The latter fear is particularly acute when the powerful station is located in a congested receiving centre."

Turning to the marine radio service, the Secretary said those engaged in the use of radio for marine services between ship and shore and ship and ship felt that the present band devoted to their use was too narrow.

"We must not forget that what is a convenience or a pleasure for us is a necessity for them" he added, "and that life may depend on the efficiency of their communication service. There is undoubtedly congestion along our coasts, particularly in the vicinity of such harbors as New York, Boston and San Francisco. There are two fundamental troubles in the situation, and they are interdependent; first, the character of the apparatus used; and, second, the fact that most ships operate on only two wave lengths, 600 and 706 meters. Practically all marine radio equipment is of the spark type. There can be no economical use of wave lengths until this condition is remedied."

Publishers Make Recommendations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (Associated Press). — Recommendations embodying the views of newspaper publisher-radio broadcasters were submitted to the National Radio Conference here after a meeting called by Walter A. Strong, Chairman of the Radio Committee of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Its resolutions committee opposed removing present restrictions on the power of stations; pledged cooperation in the broadcasting of events of national importance, as suggested by Secretary Hoover; expressed belief that listeners are "opposed to any form of direct advertising by radio," and agreed that the Department of Commerce be vested with authority to compel stations to eliminate "all harmonic transmissions which are unnecessarily in excess of the frequency indicator approved by the Bureau of Standards."

The committee pledged the publisher-broadcaster to a program of education "to instruct the listener in to avoid unnecessary interference by the certain receiving sets, and for the benefit of future radio broadcasting development recommended that "at least 10 per cent. of the wave lengths below 150 meters be set aside for special use by broadcasting stations."

Indian Census Put at 346,962; Said to Equal 1492 Population

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Interior Department announced today that a tabulation made by the Indian Bureau showed the total number of Indians in the United States to be 346,962, a gain of 2,619 in the fiscal year ended June 30 and a gain of 16,253 in the last eleven years.

Oklahoma has the largest Indian population, 119,969. New York State has 6,135 Indians, the largest number in any Eastern State.

In making known these figures the Interior Department said:

"From the best sources of information, it is doubtful whether the American Indians in what is now the United States exceeded the present number at any time since the advent of Columbus, particularly if account be taken of the 60,000 or more who have surrendered their tribal identity and have mingled with the general population."

SUPREME COURT OPENS ITS WINTER SESSION

Jersey Trolley Fare Case Is Dismissed—Grace and Ruby Appeal Is Dropped.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Supreme Court reconvened today for its Winter term, but handed down no decisions. The first are expected next Monday.

A controversy of long standing between the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners and the Public Service Railway Company of New Jersey over the question of street-car fares was dismissed today. The court was advised that the parties had reached a settlement.

The court dismissed, upon motion of counsel for Samuel Gross, his appeal from his conviction for attempted bribery to obtain in Brooklyn, N. Y., fraudulent permits for the withdrawal of whisky from a bonded warehouse.

The owners of the Grace and Ruby, a British schooner seized outside the three-mile limit as a rum runner, abandoned in the Supreme Court their effort to have the ship released. An appeal docketed by them was dismissed on motion of their counsel.

At the time the appeal was instituted it attracted wide attention, because it involved the jurisdiction of the United States to seize vessels outside the three-mile limit. Since then, however, the United States by treaty has extended its sea jurisdiction in prohibition cases.

The seizure of the Grace and Ruby was sustained by the Federal District Court for Massachusetts on the ground that it was authorized by the "hovering act."

The States of Missouri, Tennessee and Louisiana obtained from the court permission to file briefs in support of the effort of the Sanitary District of Chicago to receive permission to take water from Lake Michigan in excess of the quantity allowed by Congress. Several commercial bodies representing shippers in the Mississippi Valley also obtained permission to file briefs in support of the position taken by the Chicago sanitary district.

The tax case brought by the First National Bank of Council Bluffs, Iowa, against Pottawattomie County, Iowa, was dismissed by stipulations between the parties when it was reached for argument today.

The Commonwealth of Australia abandoned its appeal brought to test the validity of the decision of the lower Federal courts, awarding to the Patterson-MacDonald Shipbuilding Company of Seattle damages of $1,000,000 for breach of contract in connection with the building of ships ordered by Australia during the World War.

With the consent of the State of Washington, the Government asked the court to enter a decree which will have the effect of returning to the Yakima Indians certain lands in that State. The lands had been set aside as part of the Yakima Indian Reservation, but later were granted to the State as school lands by the Secretary of the Interior.

TEN REPORTED DEAD IN WEST INDIES FLOOD

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Oct. 6.—Ten lives are reported to have been lost at Dominica, Leeward Islands, West Indies, yesterday, when torrential rains caused the Roseau River to overflow.

The town was flooded with four feet of water. The damage is estimated at several thousand pounds. Crops in the Roseau Valley suffered heavily.

GOULD SUIT COSTS $10,000 EVERY DAY

Most Expensive Litigation Ever Known Will Run Into Millions Before It Ends.

URGED NOT TO WASTE TIME

Lawyers Are Cautioned Against Introducing Evidence Already Before the Court.

The hourly cost of the accounting suit in the $82,000,000 estate of Jay Gould is $2,500, or $10,000 for each four-hour day of the proceedings before Referee James A. O'Gorman, it was estimated yesterday by William Wallace, counsel for the estate of George J. Gould. It is the most expensive private litigation ever known in any country in the world, Mr. Wallace said. Although it is impossible to estimate its total cost, Mr. Wallace said it would eventually run into the millions.

The Court has already set $2,000,000 aside from the estate of George J. Gould to defray his share of the trial expense, and Mr. Wallace said he believed that the $10,000 a day estimate understated the actual expense. This figure, he explained, covers the fees of all of the counsel, the allowance for Referee O'Gorman and the cost of stenography and printing.

The suit was instituted in July, 1916, and its end is not yet even in sight. It is the only legal proceedings known in the history of Jurisprudence, Mr. Wallace said, in which depositions have been taken continuously from two persons for approximately six years, one of them—George J. Gould—dying before his testimony had been completed. The examination of George and Edwin, before trial, began in April, 1917. The lawyers have finished with Edwin, but still were seeking information from his brother when he died, May 16, 1923.

Warns Against Wasting Time.

Mr. Wallace's estimate of the expense came yesterday in connection with his request to Walter B. Walker, of counsel for Frank J. Gould, to avoid repetition in reading into the record documentary evidence already before the court. He said that Mr. Walker had consumed $5,000 worth of time in this fashion and Referee O'Gorman warned all counsel to exercise particular care in this direction.

Judge Alton B. Parker, counsel for Edwin Gould, attempted to offer in evidence all of his client's testimony given in examination before trial. Judge Samuel Seabury, of counsel for Frank, said that it took twelve volumes to print the testimony and that it was too much to encumber the records with. The referee ruled that it be excluded in its entirety. Such portions as are considered pertinent will hereafter be introduced.

It developed from the examination of Edwin before trial, presented yesterday by Mr. Walker, that he had never inquired into the details of George's complete control of the sale of stock for their father's estate.

"Did you know," Edwin was asked, "that George sold short on his personal account and would have made losses if he hadn't delivered securities belonging to the estate?"

Edwin said that he didn't. He first knew, he testified, that George was mingling estate funds with his personal account in August, 1916.

By means of an intricate patchwork of excerpts from the testimony of both George and Edwin, Mr. Wallace presented the history of the sale by George in 1909 of 225,888 shares of Western Union stock to the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. Robert Windsor of Boston appeared as the buyer and it was not until six months afterward that it became publicly known that the American Telephone & Telegraph Company was the actual purchaser of Western, through the transaction, it had obtained the control of the Western Union which it holds today.

Delivered 225,888 Shares.

George Gould delivered 225,888 shares of Western Union, in all, it developed yesterday. Of this number, 210,028 belonged to the Jay Gould estate and the balance to himself, personally, and to the other executors and trustees. The price received was $75 a share, plus a bonus of $10 on each share, which was considerably above what was then the market quotation.

T. L. Chadbourne Jr. acted as the broker, through whom the sale was effected and Mr. Windsor paid him a commission of $3.50 a share. Mr. Chadbourne, according to the testimony, received $801,031 under this arrangement, retaining $125,000 as a commission and turning the balance, of $620,421 over to George as his commission.

It was not until after the present suit was started that George Gould paid the money over to the estate, having held it from 1909 to 1917. It was brought out that his action in paying it into the estate followed the receipt by him of a letter from Mr. Chadbourne in which the latter advised such a course. George offered at the time to pay interest at 6 per cent. The present dispute arises from the fact that the attorneys for his father's estate demand 6 per cent.

Mr. Wallace explained George Gould's action in retaining the commission by saying that during his father's lifetime, he had been in the habit of selling securities for his father, who always allowed him a commission. He apparently considered, Mr. Wallace said, "whether right or wrong," that he had the same right to a commission on sales in behalf of the estate.

At his examination before trial George made no attempt to disprove the allegations that he had burned his private books and papers prior to 1912. From the evidence presented yesterday, additional details concerning their destruction were spread upon the records.

Had the Old Papers Burned.

George said that when he decided to move his offices from 165 Broadway and take smaller quarters, because he intended being far less active in railroad matters in the future, he decided to "get rid of some of the old paper that had accumulated."

"I thought they would be of no further value," George testified, "and destroyed my private records together with a lot of old letters."

"Did you destroy any of the estate records?" he was asked.

"No."

Mr. Gould described how he had the personal accounts and letters taken from his office at 165 Broadway to his town house at 857 Fifth Avenue, placed in the fireplace and burned. He said that his son Kingsland took part in the destruction but that he was in the room a part of the time. The bonfire took place in the afternoon and none of his employes were present, he said.

The trial will be continued at the office of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, 165 Broadway, at 10:30 o'clock Thursday.

Takes Children on Tale of Cruelty.

On complaints of neighbors that Mrs. Carrie Noble of Forman Avenue and Second Street, Locust Manor, Jamaica, first scalded, then poured cold water on her eleven-year-old daughter Florence and dragged Mildred, 2, by the hair, agents of the Queens Borough Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children removed the two girls and their five-year-old brother, Robert, to the Brooklyn shelter for children pending and from their mother to Kings County Hospital for observation.

Mrs. G. R. Chester Sues Undertaker for $6,543 Alleged Overcharge for Author's Funeral

Mrs. George Randolph Chester, widow of an author, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Frank E. Campbell to recover $6,543 as the difference between $7,972 collected for the funeral expenses of her husband, and $1,429, which she contends is a fair charge for the bill. She contends that the Funeral Church took advantage of her mental and physical collapse following the sudden death of her husband on Feb. 29 last and induced her to assign $8,000 of a $25,000 insurance policy, after which she got a rescipted bill for $7,972 and $27.63 in cash.

In a petition asking for the examination of the defendant before trial Mrs. Chester said:

"At first I refused to sign and execute the instrument, but on the representations of the defendant's representatives that it was the custom among undertakers and usual for them to obtain ample security for the payment of funeral expenses; and that since the body of my husband had already been placed in the casket, it could not be removed; that it was contrary to law to remove a body therefrom or to use a casket in which a body had been placed, and that the defendant's charges would be in all respects fair and reasonable, in desperation I finally signed the paper."

ENRIGHT TESTIFIES IN HIS LIBEL SUIT

ASKS $150,000 DAMAGES

Defense Unable to Find Two Former Policemen Wanted as Witnesses.

The suit brought by Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright to recover $150,000 damages from Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier and City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan on charges of libel began yesterday before a jury and Justice Callaghan in the Brooklyn Supreme Court. This civil action follows charges of criminal libel made against the two defendants in April, 1923, based on the publication of a telegram sent by Cuvillier from Albany to Magistrate Corrigan in this city. The telegram contained this sentence:

"There is in the safe of the Assembly documents, correspondence and letters showing that the Mullan-Gage law is an instrument of oppression and being used as a blackjack by the high officials of the Police Department to extort money from the citizens of New York, as well as giving the opportunity of police to engage in bootlegging themselves."

The charges of criminal libel were disposed of by Judge Thomas C. T. Crain of General Sessions, presiding as a committing Magistrate, on Nov. 9, 1923. He found that the liquor graft charges against the Commissioner were "unsustained." Judge Crain attacked some of the police testimony. Judge Crain decided that Magistrate Corrigan was not guilty of criminal libel. Cuvillier was held on the charge of criminal libel, which was afterward dismissed. So far as the trial went yesterday there were no developments that had not been passed upon at the former hearing.

"Why is it all this testimony is being given?" interposed Martin Conboy of counsel for the defense.

"To show the extent of the damages," replied Harry Gordon, attorney for Enright. The Commissioner said he had never been identified with any political organization. In reply to questions by his attorney Enright said that the Mullan-Gage law had never been used as an instrument of oppression and extortion, that the law of no "blackjacking" by high officials of the Police Department and knew of no graft in the department at the time of the message between Cuvillier and Magistrate Corrigan.

The defense submitted an affidavit saying they had not succeeded in serving subpoenas on William H. Morrison and Daniel Lambert, former policemen, wanted as witnesses to prove that they had received an order direct from the Police Commissioner's office "to keep their hands off the Petrucci brothers," in whose garage in Thirty-seventh Street Morrison and Lambert had found liquor which was alleged to be the property of three officials high up in the Police Department.

Commissioner Enright said he recalled that Morrison and Lambert had discovered that the chauffeur of the truck had a permit to transport the liquor. The charges of complaint against Morrison and Lambert, he said, had been their failure to report holding up this truck load of liquor.

SUIT TO OUST COHEN FILED AT NEW ORLEANS

Federal Attorney Will Move Dismissal of Action Involving the Fourteenth Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6.—An action in equity to remove Walter L. Cohen, negro Controller of Customs here, in which the validity of the Fourteenth Amendment is questioned, was filed in the United States District Court here this morning by H. Edwin Bolte, an attorney of Washington, D. C., as "a citizen of the United States." He was accompanied by Carl H. McKenery of Lynchburg.

The Federal Attorney for the Eastern District of Louisiana, Mr. Burns, said that within the twenty days allowed for answer he would file a motion to dismiss the suit.

Bolte sets forth that the Fourteenth Amendment was never legally adopted and that its promulgation was equivocal. He seeks Cohen's removal on the ground that he is a negro, and being of African blood and descent is not a citizen of the United States and therefore cannot hold office under the Government.

Bolte issued a statement denying that he is "writing a book for the Ku Klux Klan" and that he has been debarred from practice before the District of Columbia courts. He said his license to practice had been rescinded.

Controller Cohen, who went to Baton Rouge on personal business said he did not take the matter seriously.

James Weldon Johnson, Secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, of 69 Fifth Avenue, yesterday telegraphed to Walter Cohen, Controller of Customs of the Port of New Orleans, offering the association's aid in fighting the suit which would deprive him of his office.

Sued by the Scientific American.

George Mitchell was sued in the Federal Court yesterday by the Scientific American Publishing Company, because he did business under the name of the Scientific American Radio Company. The publication alleges that this use of the name is an infringement of its trade mark and asks for an injunction and an accounting of the profits growing out of the use of the name.

A Correction.

In describing a new musical invention, a Berlin dispatch in THE TIMES of June 8, referred to Grotrian Steinweg of Brunswick, the firm owning the invention as simply "Steinweg," which happens also to be the name of another firm. The proprietors write to say that their registered trade mark is Grotrian Steinweg and the abbreviation should not be used in connection with the invention in question.

GERMANY ANGERS PEACE CONGRESS

STRESEMANN IS BLAMED

Assumption Is That He Forgot About the Gathering—Nansen Pleads for the League.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Amazement and indignation have been aroused among the delegates to the twenty-third World Peace Congress, which opened here today, because the German Government has failed to take any official notice of it.

While Dr. Fridtjof Nansen and other speakers were earnestly urging the necessity for Germany to enter the League of Nations without delay, representatives of the German Government were conspicuous by their absence from the hall of the German National Economic Council, where the congress is sitting.

Though President Ebert had signified his desire to receive a delegation representing the congress, it was decided unanimously at today's opening session to send a telegram to Chancellor Marx, expressing the astonishment of the members over the manner in which the German Government has given the peace congress the cold shoulder.

Various reasons are being advanced today to account for the Government's aloofness. The general assumption is that it was due merely to an oversight, but there are those who say that Chancellor Marx left the matter with Stresemann, as coming within his province as Foreign Minister, and that Stresemann's head was buzzing so loudly with internal political questions that he forgot all about world peace.

The principal speech at today's session was that of Dr. Nansen, who was listened to with breathless attention, since he was assumed to be the spokesman of the League of Nations. He declared that it was incumbent upon Germany to enter the League immediately.

"I understand the reservations made by the German Government regarding Germany's entry into the League," he said, "but I am absolutely convinced that the difficulties can be overcome. In fact, I can say that some have already been overcome. The League will not be a true League of Nations until Germany is represented at Geneva."

Dr. Nansen's speech was received with prolonged applause. There followed a lively discussion as to Germany's entry into the League. One speaker insisted that the accusation against Germany of having been solely responsible for the World War must be withdrawn before she became a League member. Other speakers, however, declared that now was not the time for bringing up this question, since there were more important matters to be discussed.

Among the important peace lovers present at today's session were Professor Ludwig Quidde, Professors Basch and Buisson of France, Count Coudenhove Kalergi, noted Austrian pacifist, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and Lady Barlow of England; Senator Lafontaine of Belgium and Mlle. Capy, French pacifist. The latter declared in a speech that the French peasants and laborers were genuine peace lovers, and that they were the real France, which did not wish to hate any other nation.

AMUNDSEN SEEKS POLAR FLIGHT FUND

Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, arrived yesterday on the Swedish-American liner Drottningholm to deliver a series of lectures by which he hopes to raise $150,000. This amount, he said, would enable him to build three hydroplanes and fit out an aerial expedition, the ambition of his life, to fly over the North Pole. His plan was to start next June from Spitzbergen and fly to the North Pole, six hundred miles away, in about seven hours. After taking observations and photographs he would fly on to Alaskan waters in another pontoon-plane and land his hydroplanes off Point Barrow.

"Flying would be much safer," the explorer said, "than the old slow method of crossing the arctic ice fields with dog sleds. There are no air pockets and no currents in those regions and therefore no danger. The temperature in the Summer months is below freezing point, but there is no wind and no change to speak of."

Mr. Amundsen said that he had come to the United States "broke," having spent his last million krone fitting out the scientific vessel Maud, which is now drifting in the Arctic endeavoring to trace the currents near the Pole.

PRINCE TO SAIL ON OLYMPIC

Will Leave Here for England on Oct. 25.

Officials of the White Star Line at 1 Broadway were notified yesterday afternoon by Sir Harry Armstrong, the British Consul General here, that the Prince of Wales would return to England on the Olympic sailing from New York at 1 A. M. on Oct. 25.

Frederick Topping, First Vice President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, of which the White Star is a subsidiary, said that no definite accommodation had been reserved. "The Prince can have the best in the ship," he said. "There are four regal suites and many others to choose from."

Officials in the passenger department said that probably the Prince and his party would occupy cabins 53, 55, 57 and 59, a suite amidships on "C" deck and considered one of the best in the ship.

FRANCE FOR OPENING LEAGUE TO GERMANY

But Reply to Note Demands She Adhere to All Obligations of Other Members.

MAY RECOGNIZE SOVIET

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The French Government today dispatched to Berlin its answer to the German memorandum relative to the eventual admission of that country into the League of Nations.

This reply is conformable to the declaration made by Premier Herriot at Geneva; the French Government will not in any way oppose German membership and will not oppose the allocation to Germany of a permanent seat on the Council of the League. But it recalls that before any of these steps can be taken Germany must show that she adheres to all the obligations in the compact which bind the other League members.

There cannot be any privilege extended to her on the important first clause of the compact, which reads that any applicant "shall give effective guarantees of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations and shall accept such regulations as may be prescribed by the League in regard to its military, naval and air forces."

That saving clause in the French reply will, it is understood, be included also in those which are being sent from London and Brussels and is intended as a cover during the conclusion of the German disarmament inquiry and the transition period for application of the Dawes reparation plan.

If events proceed normally in these two matters, it is expected that Germany will be received into the League at a special meeting of the Assembly to be held in Geneva in December and the date of the 10th of that month is mentioned as a possibility.

In Geneva dispatches it is stated that the admission of Russia may be discussed at the same time; but that possibility seems somewhat dependent on political events in England and on the decision with regard to Russia which will be taken by France.

The commission charged with the task of drafting the text of the document which will set forth the terms of French recognition of the Soviet Government began work today under the presidency of Senator de Monzie. Its difficulties have been somewhat increased by the situation in England resulting from the Conservative defeat and Liberal gains in the Labor Prime Minister on his Russian treaty, but it appears tonight that the members of the committee are in favor of de jure recognition instead of the partial recognition which have been suggested. Neither the Government nor the commission, it seems, intends to impose financial and economic conditions before recognition. It is considered that the presence in Moscow of a duly accredited Soviet representative is the only manner to settle these questions.

Nevertheless the formula of recognition will be accompanied by a letter indicating clearly that in resuming diplomatic relations France is in no manner renouncing her demand for a satisfactory arrangement both as to her interests and those of her citizens.

In addition the question of refugees, of whom there are about 300,000 in France, the broadest amnesty demanded, except in individual cases, for those wishing to return. For others accelerated naturalization is contemplated.

The French Government will continue its policy of frank and complete advised of all decisions and the motives for them.

A third effort which is being made in France for the binding up of the divisions in Europe is the formation of a commercial treaty with Germany. During last week's meetings only preliminary courtesies and a few preliminary pawn moves were made, but tomorrow the commissions of the two countries meet again and will begin to get down to details. Each side is in a sense waiting for the other to show its hand, and the French are somewhat puzzled to know whether the Germans have any real plan to put forward or are merely seeking to get what they can out of the discussion.

Both sides have begun well in erecting false façades of demands which they can gracefully surrender as they get down closer to real business.

THIRD OIL JURY QUITS WITHOUT FALL ACTION

Adjourns Sine Die With No Report on Investigation of Former Secretary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The third Special Grand Jury which convened here, principally to investigate the activities of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, adjourned sine die today without either indicting Mr. Fall or making a report of the subject matter investigated.

The activities of Mr. Fall were investigated once before after Congress authorized President Coolidge to appoint special counsel to present charges in connection with the leasing of Naval Oil Reserves to the Sinclair and Doheny group of oil operations. Owen J. Roberts and former Senator Atlee Pomerene presented the charges and obtained indictments charging Mr. Fall with accepting a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny Sr., who, with Edward L. Doheny Jr., was indicted on a charge of having bribed Mr. Fall. Harry F. Sinclair was also indicted on a charge of conspiracy by the first Special Grand Jury.

The second investigation, touching upon Mr. Fall's alleged activities, was begun without any previous announcement and was surrounded by great secrecy. It came to a sudden halt after Mr. Fall attacked the motives of Messrs. Roberts and Pomerene and questioned their good faith and charged that an "outsider" in the person of a public stenographer was unlawfully in the Grand Jury room. A third investigation was begun with the same Grand Jury personnel, but it came to nothing.

F. L. WING DIES ON TRAIN.

He Was Head of Piano Manufacturing Firm for Fifty Years.

Frank Lulman Wing, for fifty years head of the piano manufacturing firm of Wing & Son, which he and his father founded, died yesterday morning of heart disease on the train while on the way to the city from his home in Upper Montclair, N. J. He was 74 years old, and left a widow and seven children. Services will be held at his house, 412 Park Street, Upper Montclair, at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Wing had devoted his life to the making of pianos and had contributed many inventions of his own to their improvement, notably a metal key-bed support, a metal-covered hammer rail and a trebel reflector, in addition to various devices for realizing the effect sought by pianists and for preserving the instruments in tune.

Judge's Suspension Upheld; Accuser Is Boyhood Friend

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 6.—The suspension from the practice of law of L. Harold Morford of Long Branch, Judge of the Second Judicial Court of Monmouth County, by the State Bar Examiners, was upheld by the Supreme Court here today. The court confirmed Morford's guilt of two charges of unprofessional conduct and of one of gross negligence. It is expected that Governor Silzer will ask for his resignation from the bench.

When informed of the decision, Judge Morford said he would have no statement to make until he had been formally notified of the Supreme Court's action.

The charges were brought by J. William Jones of Long Branch, one of the Judge's boyhood chums, and with him a partner in an automobile business here. Jones said he had acted for Morford's "own benefit," and charged that the Judge had withheld between $1,600 and $1,700 he had collected for Jones from mortgages.

SLIGHT GAINS MADE ON CHINESE FRONTS

TOKIO MINISTER RAIDED

"Patriots" Beat Shidehara's Clerks, Demanding Japan's Intervention in China.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—The Kiangsu forces, representing the Peking Government, undertook a flanking attack today southeast of Sungkiang, a city twenty-eight miles southwest of Shanghai, and captured the village of Chuking, forty miles southward from here. The place was defended by 200 Chekiang troops.

The Kiangsu force then continued its attack against the village of Mazedo, when it was driven back by the Chekiang troops. The Kiangsu soldiers retreated to positions across the Whangpoo River. During the fighting shells and bullets fell in the vicinity of Sungkiang, resulting in many casualties.

In the area west of Shanghai casual firing occurred today. In the north the second Fengtien army has captured Chienpin and Lingyuan, and is now proceeding against Pinchuan, fifty miles east of Jehol, according to advices from Mukden. The report makes the prophecy that in the event of the capture of Jehol, the Peking troops will attempt to effect an armistice, although, the reports add, the capture of Jehol would be extremely difficult.

Outside influences—the measure of participation Russia and Japan may take in China's civil war—loomed large today as a factor in the fight for control of the Central Government as opposing armies continued battling on widely separated fronts.

Britons Object to General Lu's Bonds.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6.—Shanghai is fairly tranquil, although prices have risen, especially that of rice.

General Lu, Chekiang chief, has imposed a levy on all householders in the surrounding districts, giving in exchange his own bonds, redeemable one year hence, which tenants are instructed to hand over to their landlords.

Some foreign companies, for instance the Anglo-French Land Company or the Shanghai Land Investment Company, which own land outside the French settlement limits, naturally decline to accept these bonds. The British Consul General is protesting on their behalf.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6.—Wen Shih Shietaun, formerly Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Hanking, who came here Saturday night, said that he had been appointed Commissioner of Customs and concurrently Commissioner of Foreign Affairs here to function on behalf of the Peking Government.

This gives to Shanghai two complete sets of Chinese officials, one trying to function outside of the International Settlement and loyal to Generals Lu Yung-hsiang and Ho Feng-lin, and the other inside the Settlement trying to function on behalf of Peking. The latter do not leave the Settlement for fear of arrest and execution by the Chekiang interests.

Commissioner Wen has virtually told the foreign Consuls here that he expects protection and that he does not want interference. Wen also told them that Peking expects the powers to help in driving the Chekiang Generals out of this area if the powers want to protect the foreign area from fighting.

The Shanghai Consular Corps will meet tomorrow, and will take action on the situation.

Rowdies Invade Foreign Office.

TOKIO, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—"Patriotic" agitation for Japanese intervention in the Chinese war on the side of General Chang Tso-lin, the Chinese dictator in Manchuria, was brought to a climax today when three members of the Taiaho Patriotic Association, all jiu jitsu experts, invaded the Foreign Office and forced their way into the private quarters of Baron Shidehara, the Foreign Minister.

When the trio demanded an interview with the Foreign Minister he was absent. They then upbraided him for what they termed his "spineless" policy toward China.

In their rage, they attacked and severely beat the private secretary of the Foreign Minister and other secretaries. The police were called and arrested the trio, but not before they had scattered handbills on the floors and desks. The circulars demanded "a more positive policy to protect Japanese rights and interests in China, stressing the danger that "would result if the hostilities extend into Japan's sphere of interest—Manchuria."

PEKING, Oct. 6.—The Soviet raised the red flag of Bolshevik Russia over the Russian Legation here today without untoward incident. Ambassador Karakhan receiving a large line of Chinese and other well-wishers. Owing to the antagonism against the Soviets due to its separate treaty with Manchuria, a movement has been launched for the revocation of Peking's recognition, but this has only received the preliminary stage.

The war is costing China $20,000,000 a month and will necessitate heavy borrowing. The foreign banks are not inclined to raise funds for this purpose, thereby throwing the burden on the native banks and upon provincial levies.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, October 4, on shipments sold out, ranged from 2.09 cents to 30.60 cents per pound and averaged 24.87 cents per pound.—Adv.

ONE-WAY TRAFFIC GOES INTO EFFECT

SIGNAL EVERY FOUR BLOCKS

MERCHANTS FAVOR MOVE

No-Parking Zone to Be Extended—One-Hour Limit Only Allowed in Public Squares.

One-way traffic in every east and west cross street from Bowling Green to Fifty-ninth Street is now being put into effect by the Police Department, preparatory to the installation of a new electric signal system. According to Inspector Dominick Henry, who is in charge of traffic in the city, the new system should be installed within the next two or three weeks.

When it is in operation all east and west bound traffic will be moving while north and south bound traffic is stopped in the one-way zone, and vice versa. Adoption of the new electric signal system represents the first attempt by any city in the United States, and perhaps in the world, to move traffic in the manner of a weaver's loom.

The new signal posts will be placed at four-block intervals on all the north and south thoroughfares except Fifth Avenue. There the ornamental towers provided by the Fifth Avenue Association from a fund raised by subscriptions of members have been operating with marked success.

The poles bearing the signals will be twenty feet high, according to Inspector Henry. Projecting from the top will be twelve-foot arms to hold the signal lights. The poles will be erected on the sidewalk corners, so that the signals may be seen plainly from every direction by drivers of vehicles.

System to Cost $250,000.

Installation of the new system, which will cost $250,000, will be started just as soon as the General Electric Company, which is making the switches, completes the contract. The poles will be ready within a week.

"The designing of the switches is quite a technical job," Inspector Henry explained. "They are made so that one master or control tower will be able to control miles of streets instead of just a few blocks, as at present. For example, it would be possible for a master tower at Canal Street to control traffic from Bowling Green to Fourteenth Street, or as far north as we desired to extend the zone of control.

"We have begun putting up the one-way signs on the east and west streets. That is a job that will require some time. The one-way regulation will be in force from river to river. Odd-numbered streets will carry westbound traffic and even numbers eastbound.

"North and south bound traffic will be moved as in the avenues. The only exception is Madison Avenue, where the new traffic regulation provides for south bound traffic only between Forty-second and Twenty-third Streets. We have considered the application of the one-way scheme to the north and south bound traffic, but there are so many difficulties to be overcome that we will not make any change in that respect at present.

"The no-parking rule on the north and south thoroughfares has brought great relief. The elimination of dead storage from the principal thoroughfares has resulted in increasing their capacity for vehicular movement almost double. We are doing everything we can to improve the situation. We are looking into every complaint we receive and by the no-parking regulations and are trying to find solutions."

Merchants Back Move.

Inspector Henry said that last

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Princess Swanson.

HER LOVE STORY, with Gloria Swanson, Ian Keith, George Fawcett, Edith Gazzo, Marie Majerski, Sidney Herbert, Donald Hall, Baroness de Hedemann, Jane Auburn; a Paramount production, based on Frederic Lonsdale's play, "Spring Cleaning," adapted from Vin Moore's novel, "The Queen," by Mary Roberts Rinehart, directed by Allan Dwan; Hugo Riesenfeld, musical director, at the B. S. Rivoli, accompanying Gaetano's "Tarantella." At the Rivoli.

Having satisfied her different whims by appearing as an apache, a society woman and a cowgirl, the versatile Gloria Swanson promenades out this week at the Rivoli as the full-fledged but much-troubled Princess Marie of Vlatavia in a film called "Her Love Story." It was translated to the screen from Mary Robert Rinehart's novel, "The Mystery the Queen," a narrative on the Graustark order, which, as told in the shadow farce, is a most fantastic affair. It was filmed in New York, and therefore the idea of playing a wealthy woman or a showgirl is natural to her. She seems not a little puzzled in handling the role of the Princess, being certainly about the Vlatavian characterization more than millions of other persons. Her acting in this new picture is therefore not up to her usual standard. She was assisted in her work by Allan Dwan, who directed "Manhandled," but even he has earned no laurel with "Her Love Story."

In a number of scenes of this current photoplay Miss Swanson's thoughts appear to be wandering. She is seen saying her prayers in bed, and one might suppose that she is first thinking of the winning of the camera and then wondering whether the Vlatavians say their prayers in bed or at the bedside on their bended knees. After viewing this offering one would be justified in surmising that Mr. Dwan excelled in producing murder stories than this one, which is all very well when considered as a fairy tale for the young.

Obviously no expense has been spared in the production of this film and the scenes in many instances are really beautiful. There are the great baronial halls with bare stone walls, a charming convent scene, and glimpses of impressive mountain scenery.

Captain Rudl (Ian Keith), naturally good looking, wins the Princess secretly at a Gypsy camp. The Archduke, the Princess's father, is amused, and in view of the fact that he has some marriageable daughter to the King, he conceals the Bohemian matrimonial arrangement and informs the monarch that his daughter has a school girl infatuation for Captain Rudl. The King, wanting an heir, artfully arranges for the disappearance of Rudl and forthwith takes the Princess for his consort. An heir is born, but the Queen astounds the King by saying that the child is not his son. Naturally the King is upset and commits suicide. The King, who is all-powerful, sends the Queen to a convent, alleging that she is mentally unsound.

Four years afterward Rudl, who had wandered into a saloon in Melbourne, is betrayed by a Gypsy and escapes from the Queen's loyal lady-in-waiting telling him all about the trouble. He immediately packs up and sies himself to Vlatavia. He finds the convent, quickly sees the lady-in-waiting and then climbs over a wall and confronts the deserted Princess-Queen.

Miss Swanson is quite appealing in a chestnut wig of goodly length and her well made contest attire. She is also seen in a wedding gown with an encouraging train. Ian Keith is Rudl, a turbulent tyrant of aristocratic mien, who is seldom without a glass in his hand. George Fawcett, a really good-natured man, figures as the first-hearted Archduke.

This picture is far inferior to what we anticipated. The story could have been whipped into better shape provided certain far-fetched happenings were omitted.

An effective scene arrangement takes place when the orchestra, with white-bavy hats, play "U. S. A. Blues," with an idiom. It is a Bissenfeld "Classical Jazz," and is decidedly artistic.

The Sixteen Fifteen.

Tamara Loraine is seen sitting up until "dawn into the hours of a long winter's night" in a sleeping lodge somewhere in Russia. She is holding a pistol to her head in the hope that the Prince, Prince Gritsko from kissing her again. Suddenly she swooms. Gritsko, becoming penitent, carries Tamara to a couch, covers her with her sable coat and then disappears into an adjoining room.

Tamara, in a mean manner into a sound sleep, and after the inevitable screen announcement of Dawn, the apartment is flooded with welcome sunshine. There is a rap on the door, which when opened discloses the Prince, apparently in a good mood, bearing a tray with breakfast for the English girl with the pretty smile. The repast was all he could find in the place—a bottle of champagne and a dish of caviar.

This sequence of "His Hour" will give a fair idea of the pictorial attraction at the Capitol this week. It was adapted from a story by Elinor Glyn, and while the narrative is not flawless, it is not confined to the bounds of probability. Alison Pringle, who was seen as the Queen in Mrs. Glyn's "Three Weeks," figures in this film as an attractive English girl with an Italian French name.

The introductory scenes deal with the Khedive's ball in Cairo, where the incognito Prince Gritsko is introduced to Tamara. During their first dance the Prince embraces Tamara, who furiously resents such daring, even from a Cossack Prince.

Next one sees the Sphinx, and also the Prince in civilian clothes, Tamara, fearful of spoiling the pre-war noble, mounts a mule, when taking her morning camel ride.

To have any continuance to such a story Tamara has to have some acquaintances in Russia. Mrs. Glyn generously gives Tamara a Russian mother, who has a weakness for ropes of pearls. Gritsko is then seeing his wild oats in St. Petersburg, as it was called in those days. He again meets the English girl, then unlike in Cairo, learned in Gritsko's best friend, Count Boris, of many white tunics and silver hatbands. Apparently as a dare, the Prince challenges Boris to a duel in the dark, and they then come to decide who shall fire the first shot. Gritsko wins, and the two next are seen in a room with an overpolished floor. The doors are closed and the shot is fired, Boris being slightly wounded.

The Prince insists to Tamara that his love will come some day. He tells her this again when they are alone in the snowy lodge, in which they sought refuge from a blizzard when Tamara was leaving for England. The Prince tries to embrace Tamara, and in the struggle she drops his pistol from the holster and points it at her own head to cause Gritsko to desist in his advances. It is remarkable how she could hold that weapon at her head for so many hours. There is no wonder when she faints.

Miss Pringle is charmingly natural as Tamara, and John Gilbert, who indulges in lots of hand kissing as the Prince, is really thoroughly capable in this part. Some of the scenes are interesting, the story is just what one might conclude from the first paragraph of this review.

ED WYNN ALMOST ALL 'THE GRAB BAG'

THE GRAB BAG, a revue in two acts and fifteen scenes. Book, lyrics and music by Ed Wynn. At the Globe theatre. Production—Ed Wynn. Sid Faye, Stephen Maryon, Albert Sarvis, William Lee, Jane Veile, Jane Addir, William Bard, Nigel and Winifred, Francis Hoi, Sadah Haley and others.

The new Ed Wynn revue is as fine a night imagine, in all respects an Ed Wynn entertainment. Mr. Wynn is the author of "book," lyrics and music—all of it but one song, at all events. There are not more than half a dozen lines in "The Grab Bag" that are not spoken by Mr. Wynn, and certainly there are not two scenes into which he does not come and entertain. Complaints. However there were none to complain about the state of affairs last night at the Globe, for Mr. Wynn is unquestionably among the best of the comedians. To his customary comicalities he has added some new ones, and the habit of being periodically surprised at the turn of events on the stage. No comedian in revue excels him in the art of the seeming impromptu.

He was hilarious, also, as the proprietor of a livery stable, and he was unquestionably comic when he introduced a double quartet of Russians to the audience. As executive fellow, Mr. Wynn, and no tribute to his skill would be a complete one that did not also mention a note of regret over the fact that not all of his lines in "The Grab Bag" are original. Perhaps it is the privilege of a comedian to relate the anecdotes of the day, but those that have figured in earlier revues should certainly be barred.

Mr. Wynn does not place complete reliance upon his own effervescent personality; "The Grab Bag" contains several others of interest. Albert Shaw and William Lee are amusing vaudevillians, who become even more amusing when Mr. Wynn joins their act; the aforesaid Russians, whether or not they were Russians—Mr. Wynn is such a joker—fell pleasantly upon the ear, and one of a trio named Le Groh provided some truly sensational contortionistic manoeuvres.

For good measure there were also Riggs and Wilshie, dancing in their accustomed fashion; there were Marion Fairbanks, sister to Madeleine, and there were Janet Adair and Jay and Janet Velie to sing the songs. Speaking of the songs, there was nothing among them to indicate that Mr. Wynn is a great composer, and he has rhymed "round" with "ease" and "ideas" with "dears" suggested that the fashioning of the verses might safely have been left to a more skilled hand. But then, of course, it would not have been Ed Wynn's show.

San Carlo Company Repeats "Aida."

The San Carlo Opera Company opened its third week at Jolson's Theatre with Verdi's "Aida." This second performance of the opera saw a few changes in the principals. Mme. Bianca Saroya sang the leading role, Stella de Mario Valle and Pietro de Biasi filled the other important parts. Fulgenzio Guerrieri directed. The incidental dances were given by the Pavley-Oukrainsky ballet.

Violinist and Pianist in Recital.

Sascha Fidelman, violinist, assisted Mark Gunsburg, a pianist of mature years, in what was said to be a first appearance last evening at Aeolian Hall. Mr. Gunsburg's numbers included a Liszt-Busoni fantasy, chorale and fugue, and a second group from Chopin, Saint-Saëns, Debussy and Saint-Saëns. Mr. Fidelman was heard in a concerto by Karlowicz and in Bach's unaccompanied chaconne. Both players won the applause of an audience of fair size and friendly enthusiasm.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

C. Henry Gordon and Norma Miller have been added to the cast of "The Saint," which opens at the Greenwich Village Theatre on Saturday night.

Florence Mayfield announced yesterday that Raquel Meller will not be seen here this season, but will appear here next season under his management.

THE PLAY

By STARK YOUNG.

An English Social Play.

Sir Thomas Mangle, K. C. ..... Reginald Dandeton

A Waitress ..... Una O'Connor

Frederick Lonsdale last night at the Hudson followed his "Spring Cleaning," "Aren't We All" and many other pieces with his latest, "The Fake," which comes to us after his success in London.

The first impression I got from "The Fake" was that it had been laid out with some care as a dramatic composition and then written off with no great pains of thought into lines and characters. My second impression was of no play at all but a novel, one of those second-rate novels of a new speaker in England, a certain curtey of characters superficially but clearly outlined and an obvious story to carry them. There was no attempt in this piece, no glow, none of the projection or understanding, or whatever it is, that distinguishes theatre from writing. "The Fake" should have, for preeminently this effect of novels in the theatre and who like a certain semi-romantic tale of sacrifice and fantasy and sentiment, an undoubted appeal. I found that it kept well to its level of excellence throughout, one part was as good or as bad as another, and it was moderately bored from start to finish.

"The Fake" concerns the English scene, with its social ambitions and country living, its commoners and lords and younger sons. But the story proper sets out with the purchase of the prominent politician's daughter to an Earl's son. The bridegroom is a drunkard and a drug addict. The years of unhappiness are ended at last with an overdose of a drug administered by a friend, and the daughter will in time marry her father's secretary, a promising young man and long devoted to her.

The character of the father at least is amusingly drawn, his egotism, his silver-lined smile. Nothing shakes his good humor, he is the most popular man in England. Orlando Daly played him amusingly for the most part, though with the many of these pallid lines farce that disturbed his acting in Tata Morgana.

Una O'Connor played the maid of the inn with an odd, crack-brained pathos, well timed and expertly handled all through. Frieda Inescort gave us her best performance, which, it could not be called acting in any important sense of the word, but it was sympathetic and pleasing. Godfrey Tearle, back again after five year's absence, seemed to exhibit the same good humor and low vibration as the play itself.

The performance of Frank Conroy stood out from the manly quiet of the rest, perhaps too much. This was partly due to a certain personal distinction, partly to the nature of the role, the touch of horror in such a figure as the drug addict in the midst of the shallow dramatic water around and about. Mr. Conroy was best in the first act and in the death scene; a good deal of his impersonation was overscored and monotonous.

"The Fake" as a whole hangs together limply, the last act is both necessary and unnecessary, according to what the play has set you to thinking about, what persons, what things. The company as a whole did not play together with much intimacy or give and take; and that only served to leave where it was, the lively, genial, undramatic pulse of the play.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular, Generally Lower—Bonds Mostly Firm—Call Money 3 Per Cent.

Notwithstanding last week's increase of the New York Associated Banks' reserve to an actual surplus higher than any reached between June and September (during which interval 2 per cent. call money prevailed uninterruptedly), the rate for call loans rose to 3 per cent. again yesterday. There was no special indication as to the reason for this movement, except that the season for maximum use of credit in the interior's industrial settlements is at hand. In this week a year ago the money rate declined, but it had risen to 6 per cent. the week before, and had thereby drawn on some of the outside markets.

Although the general money market was unchanged, the unexpected rise in call loan rates no doubt had a hand in the day's weakness on the Stock Exchange. In line with the lately familiar course of things, a few isolated stocks moved against the general market's trend, advancing a point or more. But prices went fractionally lower in the great number of stocks; declines of a point or more were numerous, and even the averages were down about half a point.

But the day's business was unimportant: total transactions were the smallest since the dull days in the middle of September. Except for a few declines, apparently unconnected with the rest of the list, the bond market held steady; even the Government loans made no response to the day's higher call money rate. Foreign exchange was slightly lower. In that direction the only interesting news was the German Reichsbank's statement as of Sept. 30, which showed the largest outstanding paper circulation yet reported, but at the same time announced the acquisition of some $4,000,000 more foreign gold for its reserve, making $32,000,000 thus obtained since April. This gold is left on the foreign markets in which it was bought by the Reichsbank, but it may be heard from, at some later day, in the international movement of reserves.

Yesterday's grain markets were as active as the financial markets were inert. At Chicago, Friday's story was repeated, with an early and violent advance in prices, very excited speculative buying and all sorts of "bull rumors" of the Wall Street sort in circulation; but with equally heavy selling after wheat had advanced 4 cents per bushel, corn 1½ and rye 3⅝. At Winnipeg, where the speculative fever seems to be least controllable, wheat had at one time risen 7 cents. The sales attracted by the early extravagant movement brought nearly all grain prices down below last week's closing, but wheat held strong. Cotton also declined ⅝ cent per pound from Saturday, which, however, left the price still above that of any other day since August.

Interesting light is thrown on the question of the farmer's situation, and in a very specific way, by the monthly averages of commodity prices. The computation of Dun's Review, published yesterday and divided into groups of articles, shows that on Oct. 1 the combined average of the three groups, breadstuffs, meat, and dairy and garden products, had advanced 12¼ per cent. since April 1, while that of all other groups combined had fallen 3⅝ per cent. A longer comparison produces still more remarkable results. As compared with Aug. 1, 1914, October's average prices for the breadstuffs group alone show a rise of 61½ per cent., while the average for all other products is up only 42⅞ per cent.

If the three groups of farm products are combined, their average prices stand 44⅝ per cent. above August of 1914 while all other groups, including cotton, are up 47¼ per cent. The wholly exceptional circumstances of cotton production have driven up prices of textile raw material and goods to an average 85½ per cent. above the pre-war figure. Except for that movement, the Western farmer's prices for all his products would be very much further above 1914 than other commodities combined.

MONDAY, OCT. 6, 1924.

Stock Exchange call loan rate firmed to 3 per cent. just before the close, after having ruled from the start at 2½ per cent. Very little money was placed at the outside figure. There was not much doing in the time money market, quotations for all maturities being unchanged at 2½@3 per cent. up to ninety days and 3@3½ for four to six months. Business was purely nominal. Commercial paper and acceptances were also dull and at prevailing discounts.

Money in London ¾ up at 2⅝ per cent; short bills unchanged at 3⅛ and 3⅝ per cent.; three months' bills ¼ and ⅛ up at 3⅛ and 3⅝ per cent.

Gold bullion unchanged at 92s 9d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a London price of 109⅝. Highest for the year to date, 115 1-2, on Jan. 21; lowest, 100 9-16, on Aug. 11. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149⅝ on Feb. 9, 1920; the lowest, 102⅞, on Feb. 21, 1922.

CONGOLEUM-NAIRN CO., INC.

Companies to Merge and Operate Under New Name

Stockholders of the Congoleum Company, Inc., at a special meeting held yesterday, approved the proposal of the management to acquire at least 66 2-3 per cent. of the stock of the Nairn Linoleum Company of New Jersey. The terms at which stock of the Congoleum Company, Inc., may be exchanged for the stock of the Nairn Linoleum Company, will be on a basis determined by the directors.

The Congoleum Company stockholders also approved a proposal changing the name of the company to Congoleum-Nairn, Inc. The number of Directors was increased to fifteen.

TAKE UP RAIL CLERKS' PAY.

Roads Will Be Represented at Hearing in Chicago Tomorrow.

Representatives of the clerical forces of about ten Eastern railroads and fifteen from the West will appear before the Railroad Labor Board in Chicago tomorrow, to ask for increases of pay ranging from 6 to 15 cents an hour, which would make the pay higher than the peak of 1920.

Among the railroads from the East which will be represented at the hearing will be the Boston & Maine; New York, New Haven & Hartford; New York Central; Michigan Central; Nickel Plate and the Pere Marquette.

Harlem River—Port Chester

First Mortgage 4% Bonds

Due 1954

These bonds are an absolute first and closed mortgage on about 31 miles of six-tracked, electrified railroad, which gives New Haven its only entry into New York City over its own tracks. This road serves as the main artery of freight traffic between New England, New York City and the South and West.

They are also a direct first lien on 546 acres of terminal property in New York City which has an assessed value in excess of the outstanding bonds.

Beginning March 25, 1924, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

Listed on the N. Y. Stock Exchange

Northern Ohio Ry. Co. was originally leased for 999 years to Lake Erie & Western R. R. Co., the lease being assigned to Akron, Canton & Youngstown Ry., in 1920. Lake Erie & Western was, however, not released from its guaranty. The recent Nickel Plate merger, which includes the latter road, has placed this issue, in our opinion, in a very favorable position.

OFFER $15,000,000 FRENCH RAIL ISSUE

LINE MADE RECORD IN WAR

Traffic is Said to Be 26 Per Cent. of the Entire Railroad Tonnage in That Country.

The Nord Railway Company of France, which won the distinction of having carried more men and ammunition to the German front in the World War than any other railroad, is in the American market for a loan of $15,000,000. The issue has been underwritten by J. P. Morgan & Co., the Guaranty Company of New York, the Bankers Trust Company and Harris, Forbes & Co. Offering is made of that amount of 6½ per cent. bonds, due Oct. 1, 1950, at 88½, to yield 7.50 per cent. A sinking fund, becoming operative in 1931, will be used to retire the issue by maturity.

In the first four days of the war the company carried 900,000 men and officers, 270,000 horses and 800 cannon and gun carriers. It was used as the principal artery for taking men and munitions to the front, and a great part of the 2,000,000 American soldiers who went to France traveled over its lines. During the war, it suffered severely from German shells and from German seizures, but reconstruction work was carried on from the time of the armistice to 1921, when it was virtually completed, at least to the extent of reconstruction of thousands of demolished stations and other buildings, bridges and parts of the main line.

The Nord is the third of the great French rail systems to turn to the American market for money, and it is held by bankers to have a slightly higher credit rating than other French roads, owing to the dependence upon it for transportation by many industrial cities. Other French railroad loans were $10,000,000 Paris-Orleans, and $20,000,000 Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean sinking fund bonds. The proceeds of both were used in large measure for electrification.

According to an analysis of French railways prepared by Brown Brothers & Co. of New York, who figured in the underwriting of the Paris-Orleans loan, the company has a total capitalization of about 4,292,000,000 francs, which would be an equivalent of more than $330,000 per mile on the normal basis of the franc, and about from $105,000 to $135,000 per mile at the present depreciated value of the franc. With a mileage of 2,400, or about 10 per cent. of the total mileage of the French railroads, its traffic was computed to be 26 per cent. of the entire French railroad tonnage and its gross receipts 16 per cent. of the total receipts.

The road is controlled by the Rothschilds, who are represented on the Council of Administration by six members of the family. Baron Edouard de Rothschild is President and head of the Directing Committee.

$4,245,682 Added to Reserve in Week—Note Issues Go to Record.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—The statement of the Bank of Germany as of Sept. 30, shows an increase in gold holdings of 17,839,000 gold marks to 577,919,000 marks, whereof 136,463,000 are deposited abroad. Silver coin reserve decreased 6,304,956,000 paper marks. The report also showed the following changes, in trillions of marks:

Treasury and loan association notes	decreased	22,900
Rentenbank notes	decreased	174,213,559
Notes of other banks	decreased	81
Bills of exchange and cheques	increased	82,630,006
Rentenmark bills and cheques	increased	123,502,735
Advances	increased	4,263,650

Other liabilities	decreased	5,516,293
Rentenbank loans	unchanged

The addition to the Reichsbank's gold holdings as shown in the above statement makes a total increase in the gold reserve of 136,042,000 marks since April 30 of the present year, when it reached the lowest point since the war, at 441,877,000 marks. When the war began the bank's gold holdings were 1,253,190,000 gold marks. They were increased to 2,537,780,000 on Dec. 30, 1916, which was the high point of its history.

Intertype Corporation Dividend.

Directors of the Intertype Corporation are scheduled to meet today to act on the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock due at this time. In addition to the regular cash dividend, rumors in Wall Street had it that the Directors would declare a 10 per cent. stock dividend. In the last two years the company has declared a stock dividend of 10 per cent. annually.

NEW HIGH RECORD FOR GASOLINE USED

INCREASE IN PRODUCTION

Production of gasoline in the United States during August again increased, but, due to record-breaking consumption, another large reduction was shown in the surplus stocks carried by refiners at the close of the month. Surplus stocks on Aug. 31 aggregated 1,311,020,845 gallons, a reduction of 159,902,356 gallons since July. The Aug. 31 surplus, based on the daily average consumption of the month, was equal to fifty days' supply, against forty-seven days' supply on hand a year ago. Both imports and exports of gasoline increased in August, and domestic consumption was the highest for any month in history.

Consumption in August was 819,467,892 gallons, the Department of the Interior announced yesterday. This was an increase of 29,801,302 compared with July, which month had held the high record. Production amounted to 735,770,838 gallons, a daily average of 24,379,990, which was 1.9 per cent. larger than in July and 16.5 per cent. larger than a year ago.

A new high record was established for production of gas and fuel oil. The industry is speeding up the production of this oil in anticipation of a record-breaking demand this Winter through the conversion of furnaces from coal burners to oil burners. The August output was 1,167,211,159 gallons, an increase of 64,425,316, or 5.8 per cent., compared with July. Stocks of gas and fuel oils were 1,658,670,997 gallons on Aug. 31, a new high record and an increase of 52,719,478 gallons for August.

Kerosene production was 204,106,726 gallons, a daily average of 6,584,088, or 5.1 per cent. more than in July. Domestic consumption went 26.5 per cent. above July's. Production of lubricating oils was 97,761,592 gallons, a daily average of 2,992,303, or 6 per cent. more than in July. Surplus stocks showed little change.

The Bureau of Mines reports that 265 refineries operated in August at about 77.7 per cent. of capacity, turning out 1,763,165 barrels. The rated capacity is 2,268,472 barrels. Operations were 1.9 per cent. greater than in July and .7 per cent less than a year ago.

Big Ore Shipments Expected.

Shipments of iron ore by the Oliver Iron Mining Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, are expected to aggregate 2,000,000 tons this year over the Great Northern Railroad. In addition, the company will ship 22,000,000 tons over the Steel Corporation's two railroads, the Duluth & Iron Range, and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern.

Examining Your Investments

Advisable Course of Action After an Extended Decline

Whether to hold or sell bonds when unfavorable news is seriously depressing market values is always a difficult question for investors to decide. Intelligent counsel at such times may serve to prevent either the needless sacrificing of values or the incurring of further losses.

On these occasions we endeavor to furnish inquirers with a carefully formulated opinion based on our judgment of the facts.

SAYS MEXICAN LOAN IS ASSURED SUCCESS

Austin Banker Asserts That $40,000,000 Has Already Been Subscribed.

CONSUL GENERAL PLEASED

Prediction Is Made That Payments Will Be Resumed on Mexico's Old Reorganized Debt.

Forecasts were made yesterday that Mexico would resume payment of interest on its $700,000,000 of reorganized external debt before Dec. 15 next. J. L. Arlitt, Austin banker, who started Wall Street last week by offering for subscription $50,000,000 of new Mexican Government bonds, said, through his New York office, that $40,000,000 of the new offering had been subscribed and that "the loan is an assured success." Alberto Mascarenas, Consul General of Mexico in New York, expressed himself as gratified with the apparent success of the loan and said he was certain the debt service would be resumed soon.

Mr. Arlitt's announcement of the "assured success" of the loan was coincident with a new attack on the loan, launched by Rafael Zubaran-Capmany, who was President of the Provisional Government backed by Adolfo de la Huerta. Zubaran, as he is known in Mexican political circles, "warned" prospective buyers against the new bonds on the ground that the oil production tax pledged under the new loan contract was "absolutely fictitious," in that it served as the "only income" with which the Mexican Government is now supporting itself. His statement was issued through Wilbur Bates, an American, who formerly resided in Mexico.

In reply to this statement, the New York office of J. L. Arlitt offered figures of Mexico's revenues in 1923 to show that the oil production tax of 42,000,000 pesos was only one-fifth of her total revenues which in 1923 were reported at 208,000,000 pesos.

Consul General Mascarenas said that only part of the oil production tax receipts would be needed to pay interest on the $50,000,000 new bonds. Annual interest charges on these bonds are $3,000,000 the first year, and debt amortization $5,000,000, leaving for the first year a total of $8,000,000 against estimated oil production taxes, he explained, of $20,000,000 a year. A balance would thus be left of $12,000,000 which Mr. Mascarenas said would be turned over to the Mexican Government. Carrying charges would decrease after each annual payment of interest, he pointed out.

In a telegram to L. F. Herbert, of Jerome B. Sullivan & Co., 42 Broadway, Mr. Arlitt yesterday indicated that the $50,000,000 loan had been underwritten. By most of Wall Street's bankers, it had been assumed the loan was placed on a commission basis. Mr. Arlitt's statement on this score again gave rise to the question as to who his backers were. It was definitely learned that the Committee of International Bankers on Mexico was not interested and the identity of other strong financial interests who might have underwritten the issue was kept secret.

Mr. Arlitt's message to Mr. Herbert was in answer to a request for confirmation of the statement that 65 per cent. of the bonds had been sold. The announcement of this sale was even more surprising to Wall Street than the announcement of the loan. It was not believed that a Mexican loan of such size without Wall Street backing could be sold. Mr. Arlitt's message to Mr. Herbert follows:

"I am pleased to confirm that over 65 per cent. of Mexican oil production tax 6 per cent. bonds have been sold. Present indications are that entire issue will be sold in ample time to meet payments to Mexican Government without need of calling on underwriters to advance money. The loan is an assured success. Please note that oil production tax pledged as guaranty on this issue of $50,000,000 bonds is more than twice the amount of the oil export tax that serves as the principal guaranty of the $700,000,000 outstanding obligations of Mexico that are included in international bankers' agreement of June 16, 1922.

Success of the loan would give Mexico a balance after payment of commissions, and providing for the 1924 interest payments on both the new loan and the old debt of Mexico, which President Obregon will receive for deposit in the national treasury. President Obregon was said to have approved of the new loan largely because of a desire to place the Government's treasury in good shape before turning over his office to his successor, President Calles.

FOR CONVERSION OF BONDS.

Brooklyn Union Gas Announces Rights to Holders of Two Issues.

Holders of Brooklyn Union Gas ten-year 7 per cent. convertible debenture bonds, dated Nov. 1, 1919, have been notified that in addition to their right to convert these bonds on Nov. 1 next, or upon any interest date thereafter to maturity, into two shares of stock for each $100 face value of debentures surrendered, they have the privilege of converting the bonds at any time between actual coupon interest dates upon ten days' notice. The offer is subject to cash adjustment of accrued interest on the bonds and any dividends accruing to the shares of stock delivered.

The company also has notified holders of its ten-year 7 per cent. convertible debenture bonds, dated May 1, 1922, that the conversion privilege into two shares of stock is effective Nov. 1 next, and that ten days' notice of intention to convert is required. The conversion of both debenture issues is to be made through the National City Bank.

The issue dated Nov. 1, 1919, amounts to $2,000,000 and is not due until 1929, while the 1922 issue amounts to $8,879,000 and is due May 1, 1932.

SAY $2,364,249 FEES WERE FULLY EARNED

Witnesses Call Missouri-Kansas-Texas Reorganization Most Complicated Known

Reorganization of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas was one of the most complicated in the history of railroads, according to witnesses who appeared before Examiner Oberlin of the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday, at the rooms of the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building. This testimony was introduced in support of the reorganization managers' claim that they were entitled to $2,364,249 for their efforts, including $750,000 for counsel fees.

Albert Rathbone of Larkin, Rathbone & Perry, counsel for the reorganization managers, who was the principal witness, went into details as to the work done by counsel, setting forth various court actions required in a number of States and other legal and financial ramifications. His testimony was embraced in a pamphlet of 75 pages.

One of the points he stressed was the difficulty of comparing the reorganization charges of today with those of the past, on account of the change in the purchasing power of the dollar.

Besides the firm of Larkin, Rathbone & Perry, that of Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff gave legal advice to the reorganization managers, the firms of J. & W. Seligman & Co. and Hallgarten & Co.

R. L. Lacy, accountant of the commission, resumed his testimony regarding the receipts and disbursements of the reorganization managers of six other railroads, the Southern, the Missouri Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Northern Pacific, the Wabash, and the St. Louis-San Francisco.

RAILROADS REPORT NO CAR SHORTAGE

Loadings Continue Heavy, but Surplus More Than Meets the Demands.

Although car loadings for the third week in September were within 21,000 of the high record for all time, the railroads had on hand a total of 143,348 surplus cars. These figures were contained in a report of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association, made public yesterday.

Because of the heavy movement of freight, there has been a steady decrease in the number of surplus cars. On Sept. 14 the railroads had 167,157 cars on hand. According to executives, these figures indicate that unless there is an unexpected increase in the gross business during the next few weeks, there will be no shortage of freight cars this year.

Distribution of cars is said to be exceptionally good. As the result of efforts made earlier in the year, most of the cars are on their home roads. Especially is this the case in the Northwest. Preparation has been made there to move a large crop of grain with little delay, shippers having helped by loading cars to the limit and unloading them with little delay.

Surplus coal cars in good repair on Sept. 28 totaled 72,279, a decrease of 11,918, compared with the previous week. This is more than one-half of all the surplus cars and represents cars enough to handle a large increase in the anticipated coal movement. Surplus box cars in good repair numbered 48,138, or 9,693 less than the week before.

Reports showed 9,276 surplus stock cars, a decrease of 249 since Sept. 14, with 4,775 surplus refrigerator cars on hand.

Southern Orders 50 Locomotives.

The Southern Railway has placed an order with the American Locomotive Company calling for the delivery of fifty engines. The value of this order is estimated at between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000.

ST. PAUL SELLING PUZZLES BANKERS

Common Stock Makes New Low Price and 4% Bonds Drop 7 Points.

ROAD'S EARNINGS IMPROVE

Preliminary Estimates Show September Net Will Be Largest of Any Month Since 1918.

Amid heavy selling, which proved a mystery to bankers and officials, the common stock of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway made a new low record for all time yesterday at 10¾. The other securities of the railroad also declined, the 4 per cent. bonds, due in 1925, dropping 7 points.

Those familiar with the railroad gave three causes for the sharp drop in prices. The first was that reports of a financial readjustment which had been circulated in the financial district recently were now being reflected in the stock market. Another was that some of the largest institutions holding large blocks of the stock might be disposing of their holdings. The third reason and the one most generally accepted was that another raid on the shares was being made by speculators.

Railroad bankers declared emphatically that there had been no recent changes in the St. Paul situation to warrant such action in the market. Within the last few weeks there had been no changes whatever, it was said yesterday. It had been decided some time ago, after a conference between bankers and a committee representing the railroad, that no action on the St. Paul refunding would be taken until after the first of the year, because it was believed that earnings in the later part of this year would materially improve the outlook for the property.

Preliminary estimates of the St. Paul's earnings for September, which were given out yesterday, tended to justify this action. They indicated that the net operating income for the month would be more than $3,000,000, the largest single month's earnings since 1918. Gross revenue for the month, according to these preliminary figures, will be about $15,500,000, the highest for any month since 1918.

The most rapid decline in yesterday's market was in the 4 per cent. bonds of 1925. They opened at 71¼ and, amid the selling of about $100,000 in bonds, declined to 63. Some idea of the speed at which they moved downward was indicated by a drop of 2½ points between sales. Before the close of the market there was a slight strengthening of the bonds, and they closed at 64¼, a net loss of 7 points for the day. The 4½ per cent. bonds of 1932 declined from 68 to 61¼, with a net loss of 3 points for the day; the convertible 5 per cent. bonds of 2014 were off 1 point for the day; the 4 per cent. bonds of 1934 were down 2¼, and the 4½ per cent. bonds 1 point.

Those in close touch with the railroad pointed out that the fixed charges for the year are $21,500,000. Toward meeting this the net operating income in the first seven months was $7,900,000. With $3,000,000 net for September, more than half of the fixed charges must be met in the remainder of the year. Whether the railroad would be able to accomplish this is a question upon which interests in the financial district differ.

EXPRESS SHARES MOVE UP.

Over-the-Counter Trading Begun in Advance of Listing.

Over-the-counter trading in the shares of the American Railway Express Company has begun here in anticipation that the shares will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange in the near future. The initial supply of stock was provided a few days ago when stockholders of the Wells-Fargo Express Company received $10,466,700 as a liquidation dividend.

At a price of around $80 a share with the start of this trading, the stock had moved up yesterday to a bid price of $81 and $83 asked, with a few dealers asking $85. The dividend rate on American Railway Express shares is $6 a year.

It was reported that the American Express Company and the Adams Express Company might eventually make distribution of American Railway Express Company stock. Executive officers of both companies expressed surprise over the report, but withheld comment.

MORE COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

Two more counterfeits—a $50 gold certificate and a $5 Federal Reserve note—are in circulation, the Treasury Department announced yesterday through the Federal Reserve Bank. The $50 gold certificate is of the series of 1922, check letter "H," plate number 11, with the names of H. V. Speelman, Register of the Treasury, and Frank White, Treasurer of the United States. It is printed from photo-mechanical plates of excellent workmanship on genuine paper obtained by bleaching the printing from the $1 note.

The $5 Federal Reserve note is on the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland and contains the check letter "F," with the plate number blurred. Names on the note are A. W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Frank White, Treasurer of the United States. It also contains a portrait of Lincoln. It is a poorly executed zinc etching on paper without silk threads.

REGRADES CRUDE OIL.

The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana announced that it had regraded its classification of Smackover crude oil, and was paying the higher prices quoted by other companies. Under the new schedule the company is paying 95 cents a barrel for oil of 25 gravity and above and 85 cents a barrel for oil of less than 25 gravity. Previously the company paid 85 cents for all crude of less than 24 gravity.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company yesterday reduced the price of Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas grades of crude oil from 15 to 20 cents a barrel, thus meeting the prices posted by the Prairie Oil and Gas Company about ten days ago.

HUGE STOCK DIVIDEND.

Stockholders of the Gillette Safety Razor Company met yesterday at Boston and approved the plans of the management for a change in the authorized capital stock from 500,000 to 2,000,000 shares. The additional stock is to be distributed as a dividend.

The company has in its treasury 149,000 shares of unissued stock of the original authorized capital of 500,000 shares. The unissued stock will be paid over to stockholders, and, after all of the original 500,000 shares are outstanding the company will again distribute three shares of new stock for each share held, making a total of 2,000,000 shares outstanding. The holders of the 550,910 shares now outstanding will receive altogether 1,649,000 shares.

Interest June 1 and Dec. 1 without deduction of Normal Federal Income Tax up to 2%; Pennsylvania and Connecticut four mills, Maryland 4½ mills, District of Columbia five mills and Massachusetts 6% Income Taxes refunded upon appropriate request. Coupon bonds of $1000, $500 and $100 registerable as to principal. Redeemable in whole or in part on 30 days' notice at 105 and interest until June 1, 1934—premiums decreasing thereafter ½% each year. The Equitable Trust Company of New York and E. E. Beeck, Trustees.

These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a closed mortgage on the leasehold, covering approximately 19,800 square feet of ground at the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and 38th Street, New York City, and covering a modern 22-story office and loft building to be erected thereon. The period of the lease is twenty-one years from May 1, 1924, with the right to two renewals of twenty-one years each. The land is free of all liens, and no mortgage can be placed on either the land or building ranking prior to or ratably with the rights under the lease.

Approximately 40% of the construction is to be completed and paid for by the Corporation before any of the net proceeds of these bonds are used.

The net proceeds of the bonds will be deposited with The Equitable Trust Company of New York and advanced against the cost of the work on certificates of the Engineering Department of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company which will supervise the construction.

The Corporation is furnishing a bond of a group of surety companies in the sum of $2,000,000 guaranteeing the completion of the building, free and clear of liens, under arrangements requiring that any amounts recovered thereunder be applied to the completion of the building or payments under the lease.

The cost of the building as defined in the contract with the Trustee, must be at least $3,349,000.

If the cost is less, the amount of outstanding bonds is to be proportionately reduced.
Dwight P. Robinson & Co., Inc., Engineers, have estimated the cost of construction at $3,336,000.

Joseph P. Day & Co.	$3,670,791
Fenimore C. Goode Co.	3,347,500

Annual gross rentals	$751,500
Net Annual Income Estimated	$418,687

This is equivalent to almost three times the $140,000 maximum annual interest requirements on these bonds.

All legal matters pertaining to this issue are under the supervision of Messrs. Chadbourne, Stanchfield & Levy for the bankers and Mr. Herman A. Brand of New York for the Corporation.

We offer these bonds when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to the approval of counsel. Delivery will be made in the form of Temporary Bonds, exchangeable for Definitive Bonds when ready.

New Offering

The Ohio Public Service Company
First Mortgage and Refunding 5% Gold Bonds, Series D
Due September 1, 1954

Price 89 and Interest, Yielding over 5¾%

Interest payable March 1 and September 1 at the office of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., in Chicago, and at the office of the Company in New York, without deduction for normal Federal Income Tax now or hereafter deductible at the source not in excess of 2%. Coupon bonds, denominations $1,000, $500 and $100.

A letter from Mr. T. O. Kennedy, Vice-President of the Company, is summarized as follows:

Territory: The Ohio Public Service Company does substantially the entire electric light and power business without competition in Warren, Mansfield, Lorain, Elyria, Ashland, Massillon, Alliance and other communities, and is acquiring certain properties in contiguous territories serving Sandusky, Port Clinton, Coshocton, Medina and Lima. The population of the combined territories is in excess of 400,000.

Security: These bonds, in the opinion of counsel, are secured by a direct first mortgage upon an important part of the Company and are also secured by a direct mortgage on all property now owned or hereafter acquired, subject to prior lien bonds at any time outstanding. In addition, there are $2,891,600 divisional bonds pledged as security for the First Mortgage and Refunding Gold Bonds.

Valuation: The total value of the Company's property, as determined by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, plus subsequent expenditures for additions and improvements to July 31, 1924, is in excess of $42,500,000. Total funded debt outstanding with public upon completion of this financing will amount to $29,230,536.80, of which divisional bonds outstanding (mortgages closed except for pledge) amount to only $4,063,800.

Earnings of the Company, including those of the properties to be acquired, were:

Calendar Years	Gross Earnings (Including other income)	Net Earnings
*1924	$10,767,917	$3,916,077
*1923	10,959,247	3,892,746
1922	10,033,340	3,379,738
1921	8,509,750	2,408,359

* Twelve months ended July 31.

Annual interest requirements on the total mortgage indebtedness now outstanding with the public, including this issue, will amount to $1,652,788.

For the twelve months ended July 31, 1924 over 83% of the net earnings and over 76% of the gross earnings were derived from the sale of electric current for light and power and 16% and 19%, respectively, from gas sales.

HUGE PROFITS MADE IN WHEAT AT $1.57

Sales of 5,000,000 Bushels to Europe Sends Price to Highest Record for Year.

SHORTAGE ABROAD SERIOUS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The United States has a natural corner in supplies of dry wheat and rye of good quality at the present time, and with further rains in Europe and in the Canadian Northwest foreigners have been stampeded into buying millions of bushels of cash wheat and also rye. Sales of wheat to Europe were estimated as high as 5,000,000 bushels for the day, and heavy buying by exporters and foreigners advanced May wheat here to $1.57, a new high for the year, and 20 cents over the inside figure of two weeks ago and 51 cents over the low point made earlier in the year.

The highly strained condition of the market resulted in millions of bushels of long wheat, rye and oats being sold out by speculators who foresaw the present condition developing many weeks ago, and big profits on small holdings were taken.

Andrew W. Cutten, who startled the grain trade in May by taking a delivery of millions of bushels of cash corn and merchandising it at a profit estimated at $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, is said to have more than duplicated his feat in the wheat, rye and oats markets; but as only part of his line is said to have come out so far, it is impossible to estimate what his aggregate winnings on the advance have been. There was heavy selling of grain during the day credited to Mr. Cutten, with a lot of wheat coming out that is said to have shown a profit of 30 cents per bushel or more.

Many of the local traders who were pessimistic a few months ago regarding the outlook now are smiling and have "cashed in" for immense profits at the expense of the foreigner who has been forced by a wet harvest in Europe and Canada to come to this country for supplies and has taken the cash grain at the highest figures in many years, exclusive of the war period.

The largest trading in grain in years is on, millions of bushels passing from one operator to another without attracting attention. The trade gossip had it today that one commission house, Jackson Bros. & Co., had sold around 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 bushels of wheat, several million bushels of corn and oats and a big lot of rye. It was the talk of the board that the big selling was for Mr. Cutten, who was in New York. But late today it was denied by an official of the Jacksons that he had been the leading seller of grains.

As Mr. Cutten has predicted that wheat would sell above $1.50 and bought on sharp declines at times, it is estimated that his profits on trades cashed in and those said to be open amount to more than $2,000,000 in hand and prospective in Chicago and in Winnipeg. The Federal Government will take around 50 per cent. of the profits in income taxes.

Many small traders have taken profits of $20,000 to $50,000 out of the advance in wheat and rye in the last two months.

Foreigners have been the largest buyers of grains in all American markets and at Winnipeg. They have been in here to have it to provide against any shortage in foodstuffs this Winter. This is confirmed by a statement issued today by the Department of Agriculture. France and Italy have reduced their import duties on foreign grain and indicate that it may be necessary to reduce the per capita of consumption through the use of substitutes.

Wheat in Winnipeg jumped up 5 to 6 cents early today to a new high mark, with October up to $1.39 and May to $1.60, but met profit taking and closed only 1¼ to 1⅝ cents higher for the day at $1.63⅝ and $1.59⅝, respectively.

At Chicago May wheat reached $1.57 and finished at $1.54. Corn was up to $1.16⅛ and closed on a break to $1.13, while rye after touching $1.40 early closed at $1.37. Oats had a little flurry and closed at 61⅛ cents after reaching 63 cents early. Rye is the only grain that has not had an advance in proportion to that in other cereals. In two weeks wheat has advanced 20 to 22 cents, corn 12 to nearly 14 cents, oats 10 to 11 cents and rye has led all with jumps of 28 to 31 cents.

$11,700,000 UTILITY BONDS TO BE SOLD

Public offering of a $11,700,000 issue of secured 6½ per cent. gold bonds of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, to mature in 1964, will be made soon by a banking syndicate headed by Otis & Co., Howe, Snow & Bertles, Inc., Peirce, Fair & Co. and J. G. White & Co., Inc. The issue will be priced at 99 and accrued interest, to yield 6.55 per cent. It is in connection with the merger of Western public utility companies recently effected by Frank T. Hulswit and Cyrus S. Eaton.

The consolidated company will be known as the Continental-United Light and Power. The issue will be the direct obligation of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, which controls a group of electric power and light companies operating in four States and in Canada and serving 142 communities. Gross earnings of subsidiary companies for the year to June 30 were reported as $21,411,844, and net earnings after operation, maintenance and taxes, $9,243,305.

Preferred and common stocks of the Continental have been sold to provide more than $5,000,000 cash. This, with the proceeds of the proposed bond issue, will be used to acquire practically the entire remaining outstanding shares and 20,000 additional treasury shares of the Kansas City Power Securities Corporation, which owns common shares of the Kansas City Power and Light Company, and to acquire more than 75 per cent. of the common shares and a substantial interest in the preferred shares of the Columbus (Ohio) Railway, Power and Light Company, as well as additional securities of controlled companies.

The new company has contracted to buy not less than 75,000 of the 100,097 shares of common stock of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, outstanding on June 30, and 35,000 additional treasury shares, thus obtaining more than 75 per cent. of the outstanding common stock. The preferred and common stocks of the United Light and Power Company, following this transaction, will have a market value, at current quotations, of about $33,000,000.

AVERAGE PRICES UP 3⅞ PER CENT. IN 4 MONTHS

The monthly index number of average commodity prices, given out yesterday by Dun's Review, as of Oct. 1, shows an advance of 1⅛ per cent. in the general average during September; this being the fourth consecutive month in which the average has risen. Since June 1, when average prices were at the lowest of the year, the advance has been 3⅞ per cent.

As compared with Feb. 1, the highest of the year, there is a decrease of about one-tenth of 1 per cent. The general average is now 19 per cent. above that of July, 1921, when the low prices of the deflation period were reached; 27⅝ per cent. above May, 1920, when the highest average since the war was touched, and 58⅝ per cent. above the average of Aug. 1, 1914.

Oct. 1, 1924	190.878	Oct. 1, 1923	190.827
Sep. 1, 1924	188.716	Oct. 1, 1922	176.546

Of the seven separate groups of commodities classified by Dun's Review, all showed advances during September, the rise being greatest in farm products. As compared with Aug. 1, 1916, the average for groups of commodities showed that breadstuffs have risen 61½ per cent., whereas all other commodities than breadstuffs are up only 42⅞ per cent.

The present index number by groups of articles compares as follows with the preceding month and with Oct. 1 last year:

	Oct. 1, 1924.	Sep. 1, 1924.	Oct. 1, 1923.

OIL CONCERN EXPANDS.

Crew-Levick Company, a Doherty Subsidiary, to Build a Big Plant.

The Crew Levick Company of Philadelphia will enlarge its Petty Island terminal near that city and make it one of the largest receiving and distributing stations for petroleum products on the Atlantic Coast. The company now handles only lubricating oils for export and distribution through the Eastern States, but it now plans to build storage and receiving tanks for gasoline, kerosene, gas oil, fuel oil and distillates, all of which are expected to be purchased in the Mid-Continent States.

The company is one of the most active subsidiaries of the Henry L. Doherty organization, supplying millions of gallons of refined oils annually to Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and adjoining States through its own filling stations and other jobbers. The Petty Island program will permit of further expansion in this territory.

Vacuum Well Shows Salt Water.

The test recently brought in by the Vacuum Oil Company in the Lake Charles district of Louisiana is reported to be showing about 5 per cent. salt water, in advices received here yesterday. This well had an initial production of between 3,000 and 4,000 barrels daily, which was considered so satisfactory that the company rushed work on the other wells being drilled in that section. The opening of this well marked Vacuum's first attempt to produce oil needed in its daily operations.

THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

The Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company has leased from Oct. 1 1924, the first three floors of this building for 15 years at a rental approximately equal to the interest charges on the first mortgage. The income, therefore, from the remaining 20 floors of the building is directly applicable to sinking funds, operating expenses and interest charges on this issue.

Mr. Geo. R. Coughlan, President of the 60 Broadway Building Corporation, summarizes his letter concerning this issue as follows:

Location: The 60 Broadway Building, bounded by Broadway, Exchange Place and New Street, is in the heart of the New York financial district, diagonally across New Street from the New York Stock Exchange. Within one to two blocks of the building are located the United States Treasury, J. P. Morgan & Company, Bankers Trust Company, First National Bank, Central Union Trust Company, Equitable Trust Company, Adams Express Building and American Express Building.

The property consists of about 9,009 square feet of land owned in fee and the 23-story office building thereon. The building is of the highest type bank construction and is in excellent condition. Under present zoning laws only a 15-story building could now be erected on this site and added value should be given to the property, as an equal net rentable space per square foot of ground area would not be possible in a new structure.

Security: These Notes, in the opinion of counsel, will be a direct obligation of the 60 Broadway Building Corporation, and will be further secured by a closed mortgage lien of $1,000,000 on the land and building subject only to existing leases and to a First Mortgage of $2,900,000 due in 1939, at 5% for 10 years and 5½% thereafter, held by the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company of New York City, on which a sinking fund of less than 2 1/5% per annum begins May 1, 1930. Based on appraisals by Joseph P. Day, Inc., and McKim, Mead & White, the property is valued at $3,554,965.

Earnings: In accordance with statements furnished by the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, the earnings of the property for the past three years have been as follows:

Gross Earnings	$557,833	$555,717	$506,993
Operating Expenses, Maintenance, Insurance and Taxes	196,005	187,923	185,059
Net Earnings	$361,828	$367,794	$321,934

The Net Earnings, as shown above, have averaged $350,515 per annum, or approximately three times the interest requirements on this issue after deducting the interest requirements on the first mortgage now outstanding. Based on existing leases and the new bank lease, the earnings for the year 1925 are estimated as follows:

Gross Rentals		$623,071
Operating Expenses, Maintenance, Insurance and Taxes	$198,729
Interest on First Mortgage	145,000	341,729
Net Earnings		$281,342
Maximum Interest Charges on this Issue		70,000

This Net Income, equivalent to over four times maximum interest charges on these Notes, does not reflect certain operating economies which we are advised can be effected in this building without changing the present high standard of service. The building has averaged 95% rented since completion. In addition to the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, which occupies the first three floors, the tenants on the upper floors are of the highest grade, including Tucker, Anthony & Co., The North American Co., W. E. Hutton & Co., Orvis Brothers & Co., the Recess Club, etc.

Sinking Fund: A Sinking Fund is to be created commencing October 1, 1926 for the semi-annual redemption of Notes by purchase or call. Beginning the following year, in addition to fixed payments, the company further covenants to pay into the sinking fund one-half of the remaining net earnings of the property. The combined payments are calculated to retire the whole issue by maturity.

Price 100 and accrued interest to yield 7%

We offer these Notes when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to approval of our counsel, Messrs. White & Case, and of Messrs. Alger & Coughlan, counsel for the borrowers. Delivery in the first instance may be made in the form of temporary notes or interim receipts.

COTTON MARKS TIME WITH TRADING DULL

Disposition Is to Even Up Commitments in Advance of Bureau Report.

FIGURES CONFUSE TRADE

Method of Using Government 'Pars' Brings Wide Divergence of Private Forecasts.

A more favorable weather map than expected was reflected by an early decline in the cotton market yesterday. Otherwise, however, there was no special feature beyond the continued disposition to even up commitments in advance of Wednesday's Government report. Four more of the private end-September crop reports were issued, with condition figures ranging from 52.4 up to 55.2. Crop estimates accompanying these figures showed a continued wide difference of opinion as to the probable yield. One authority said that, allowing 4 per cent. for abandonment in acreage, the indicated crop would be about 12,049,000 bales, while another, using the Government pars and acreage, made the indicated yield 12,625,000 bales.

This confusion of methods in arriving at indicated crop figures has prevailed more or less ever since the beginning of the new schedule of Government reports, and has been promoted by an apparent lack of confidence in the official estimate of the acreage under cultivation, or in the official methods of allowing for such abandonment as may have occurred since June 25. Altogether, no fewer than seventeen private reports have been issued during the past few days, and while there has been no very great difference of opinion as to the condition of the crop, figures on the probable yield have run all the way from 11,584,000 bales up to a possible 13,000,000.

Additional advices were received in the trade here from Bombay yesterday regarding Indian crop deterioration as a result of excessive rainfall. It would seem that the scaling down of American crop estimates because of the wet and cold September has been coincident with deterioration in the foreign crop outlook, and this may find an ultimate reflection in export demand. According to reports reaching here from Houston yesterday, ocean freight room has been booked for 700,000 bales for shipment out of Houston and Galveston during October, compared with 659,000 bales actually exported from these ports during October last year. Southern spot markets have been a little less active since last Friday, but a number of reports received from the Southwest yesterday said that the basis was firm and that offerings from the interior were light.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
Oct.	26.15	26.32	25.80	25.97-99	26.33

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton, good inquiry, 22 points higher at 15.20d for middling. Sales, 7,000 bales; American, 3,000. Futures opened steady, 12 to 18 points advance; closed quiet, 2 points lower to 4 points higher. Prices: October, 14.00d; December, 14.32d; January, 14.40d; March, 14.44d; May, 14.42d; July, 14.22d.

Manchester: Yarns, quiet and firm; cloths, a fair business doing.

COTTON EXCHANGE TO MEET

Members to Discuss Extension of Delivery Privileges to New Orleans.

Edward E. Bartlett Jr., President of the New York Cotton Exchange, has called members to a special meeting to be held Oct. 15 to express their views on the proposal to extend cotton delivery privileges to New Orleans, as recommended recently by the Southern Warehouse Committee. Some members are understood to be opposed to the plan, while many others have not as yet formed an opinion.

"The question of extending delivery privileges to New Orleans is one which concerns the whole membership of the Exchange," said Mr. Bartlett, "and the board feels that every one should have an opportunity to express his opinion. A free and open discussion of the plan will help to give every member a better understanding of what it involves and just what its adoption would mean. It is the desire of the board that whatever action the Exchange eventually takes will be truly representative of the wishes of a majority of the membership."

NASH MOTORS INCOME.

Net for Quarter Equal to $3.40 a Share on Common Stock.

The Nash Motors Company, for the three months ended Aug. 31 last, reports net income of $1,205,706 after all charges and reserves for taxes. This compares with $2,257,767 in the same quarter last year. After allowing for dividends on the preferred stock, the balance available for the common stock in the last quarter was equal to $3.40 a share on the 273,000 shares of no par value common stock outstanding, against $4.48 a share in the previous quarter and $7.22 last year.

For the nine months ended Aug. 31, 1924, net income was $4,226,241, equal to $12.81 a share on the common stock, after preferred dividends. In the same period last year, net income equaled $20.25 a share on the common. Directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, payable Nov. 1, to stockholders of record Oct. 20.

SUES "A. G. W. I." FOR BONDS

Trustee of Ward Line Mortgage Asks Restitution.

The County Trust Company, one of the defendants named in the action instituted by Francis G. Caffey, as receiver of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, better known as the Ward Line, against the Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Steamship Company, which controlled the Ward Line, filed in the Federal Court yesterday a complaint against the "Agwi," as the defendant company is known. Mr. Caffey alleged in his complaint that the "Agwi," through its control of the Ward Line, deprived the latter of so much of its earnings and properties as to cripple it and force it into the hands of the court.

The County Trust Company was named as a defendant in the Caffey action because it is the trustee under a mortgage of the Ward Line. Its complaint, which is in the nature of a counter claim, asks for the return by the "Agwi" of $5,679,400 in Liberty bonds, an accounting of 1,000 shares of the stock of the Mexican Navigation Company, the proportion of $4,000,000 taken by the "Agwi" from the Mexican Company, and of three dividends paid in 1923 by the Cuban Terminal Company.

In his action against the "Agwi" Mr. Caffey charged it, with having diverted from the Ward Line from $12,000,000 to $18,000,000, and left for the creditors of the company and its bondholders an empty treasury, a few worn-out or unsuitable ships and debts amounting to about $8,000,000.

United Gas and Electric Earnings.

Gross earnings of $14,526,944 are reported by the United Gas and Electric Corporation for the twelve months ended Aug. 31, against $13,608,205 for the previous year, a gain of $918,739. Net earnings were $4,782,401, against $4,567,496, a gain of $215,905.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Slight Interest in Europeans—Far Easterns and South Americans Strong.

European exchanges again yesterday evinced little position subordinate to the interest and activity in the Far Eastern and South American. The forward swing in silver, which advanced three-eighths of a cent, to 30¼ cents, a new official high, while as much as 71¾ cents was paid on some contracts, sent the Chinese and India currencies to new highs for the year. Hongkong checks advanced ¼ to 54.38 cents; Shanghai, ¼ cent, to 77.63 cents; Peking, ¼ cent, to 79.10 cents, and Bombay, ¼ cent, to 34¼ cents. On the other hand, the great weakness in Japanese yen, which dropped ¼ cent to 39¼ cents, was the result, dealers said, of heavy selling of the yen in Shanghai on the possibility that Japan might be drawn into the confusion in the Far East.

The excellent trade prospects of the South American countries, and the fact that certain of the political difficulties have been smoothed, both worked to lift these exchanges buoyantly higher. Uruguay and Argentina both advanced a few points, while improvement was noted in the Brazil and Chile bills.

Fluctuations in the Europeans were narrow and unimportant, with the trend fractionally under. Saturday's finals, sterling declined ¼ cent, to 4.45¾; French francs yielded one point to 5.24½ cents, with proportionate losses elsewhere.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Cash markets opened the week with the forward swing still in effect, for the grains, and two other staples, which had been pushed to record high levels last week. Wheat advanced 2 cents, to $1.36; flour, advanced 5 cents to $7.80 and $8.20, both new high points, while corn gained one-half of a cent, to $1.34½. Coffee, No. 7, improved three-eighths of a cent, to 19¾ cents, and lard, 5 points to 15.85 and 15.95 cents, both new highs for the year. Elsewhere values were fairly well maintained, although spot cotton dropped 35 points to 26.25 cents.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Monday, a week before and a year ago. Prices are those of the New York cash markets unless otherwise indicated:

Herbert C. Heiler & Co., Inc., and Prendergast & Co. are offering $330,000 Dade County (Fla.) 5 per cent. highway bonds due Oct. 1, 1926-1954, at prices to yield 4.10 to 4.65 per cent.

CONDEMNS DAWES PLAN.

Gives Europe to Bankers, Says Charles Edward Russell.

Charles Edward Russell, author, who returned last week from a three months' tour of Europe, said yesterday before leaving for Washington that the work accomplished by the League of Nations at Geneva toward the future peace of the world was magnificent in its ideals. The United States would have to enter the League, he said, or be condemned by all civilized nations for remaining aloof. By the Dawes plan he said the Allies had handed over the finances and railways of Germany to a group of international bankers, who would be able to raise prices and have the power that such a control gives.

"This would mean the erection of a supreme power in Europe," Mr. Russell said, "that would practically control the finances, industries and railway systems of France, Germany, Belgium and Italy. The J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Rothschilds would be the principals in the group of international bankers.

"Italy is prosperous industrially, but not politically. Mussolini has smashed the elective system of government by decrees on which his name appears on the same line with that of the King. The ideals of the Italian people are too democratic to allow this state of things to go on long."

Live Stock Markets at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The hog market closed with a top of $11.50, the best figure since August, 1921. The day's average was $10.85, or $3.30 higher than a year ago. Improvement in the quality was responsible for part of the gain of the day. The shipping demand was urgent. Receipts were 33,000 head, with only 12,000 estimated for tomorrow. Killing lambs sold up to $14 under urgent Eastern demand. The general market was steady to 25 cents higher. Receipts were 32,000, including 8,000 direct to packers from other markets. Plainer grades of heavy steers were weak to 25 cents lower, while yearlings and best steers were about steady. Receipts were 30,000. Many loads of heavies were sold at the close, with a top of $11.25 on best, while yearlings brought up to $12.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Mauretania arrived at Plymouth yesterday afternoon after a passage of 4 days, 21 hours and 51 minutes, beating her previous record by six minutes. She carried only 400 bags of mail, whereas on her previous voyage she had nearly 2,000.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 6.—A new contest is forecast here in the move of the United States Government to obtain evidence from H. S. Osler, K. C., formerly President of the Continental Trading Company, for the purpose of tracing certain Liberty bonds said to have been purchased for that company in New York and believed to have reached the hands of Albert B. Fall through certain oil interests.

The new contest involves the question as to whether Section 50 of the Ontario Evidence act is ultra vires of the Legislature. It was under this section that an order was issued in court here recently authorizing attorneys for the United States Government to examine Mr. Osler in the matter of the disposal of the bonds in question. Mr. Osler has declined to testify, and when the matter comes up again in court the invalidity of the section named will be questioned.

This section has stood for forty years upon the statute books of the Province without question. It was first introduced into an act for administration of the law.

A. W. Anglin, K. C., counsel for Mr. Osler and other witnesses wanted to testify on commission in the action against the Mammoth and Sinclair oil interests, says the act is ultra vires. Doubt as to the validity of the section was raised before Justice Rose at Osgoode Hall today when two motions were reached on the list before him, one for the committal of Mr. Osler for refusing to testify and the other to set aside the order made by Justice Wright, acting under the section in question, requiring Mr. Osler to attend for examination.

E. G. McMillan, representing the United States Government, intimated that Mr. Anglin had served him with notice of the pending contest. The case will come up on Oct. 16.

CASTIGLIONI FACES COURT VERDICT TODAY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 6.—A decision in the Castiglioni banking case is expected tomorrow. The Banca Commerciale of Milan now declares itself ready to lend Castiglioni $5,700,000, provided Castiglioni's whole possessions are pledged as security.

A large section of the Viennese press has taken up the cause of Castiglioni and reproached the Attorney General for his action against the banker, although these same papers formerly urged the action.

It is reported today that the Reinhardt Theatre, recently rebuilt by a financial group headed by Castiglioni, is in difficulties and may change hands. Reinhardt, however, is expected to continue his directorship of the theatre.

It is learned that the banking scandal may affect adversely, or at least postpone, the American credits now being negotiated for Austrian provinces and towns. The bankers who are carrying on the negotiations here are receiving constant inquiries from America regarding the banks and the amounts involved. Today one more bank was added to the long list of insolvencies. This is the bankruptcy of the Nordslische Oesterreichische Bank, known as the Monarchist Bank, founded during the inflation period by Lago Lenquist, a Swedish war correspondent. Austria's former aristocracy and former army officers were the chief patrons of the bank, among others, a sister of Archduke Joseph, Margareta of Tuscany, has considerable sums deposited in the bank.

FRENCH STRIKE AVERTED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—After three days of heated debate which, on one occasion, led to a slight disturbance in the streets, the conference of French functionaries, which has been meeting in Paris, has closed its discussions with a unanimous demand for a minimum salary of 6,000 francs.

On Friday last the Government made a final offer of 5,600 francs and the practical result of the conference's decision is that it has accepted the Government's offer, but will continue to ask for more.

One of the most influential leaders, when the vote was taken, asked that a certain amount of latitude be allowed the central committee. "We must not lose sight of the financial situation and the position of the Treasury," he said. These words and the near approach of the Government's offer to the demands seem to indicate that for a time at least there will not be any danger to the Government from threats of functionaries such as had been feared.

Italian Population 39,900,000.

ROME, Oct. 6.—The Official Gazette publishes the result of the last census, in which it appears that, calculating the increase which has taken place since the census of December, 1921, the population of the kingdom now is 39,900,000 actual residents. It is stated that the total would be about 41,000,000 if those temporarily resident abroad were included.

AMERICAN OIL MAN MURDERED IN MEXICO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—William B. Massey, an American citizen of Muskogee, Okla., serving as terminal superintendent of the Metropolitan Oil Company, has been murdered at Tomo, Mexico, according to a report to the State Department today.

Under date of Oct. 4, James B. Stewart, American Consul at Tampico, Mexico, stated he was in receipt of a report from the American Consular Agent at Port Lobos to the effect that "Massey was murdered by a certain Jaquin Saenz, a Mexican."

The murdered man is survived by a widow and two children. Saenz, the Consul reports, is in the custody of the local authorities.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 6.—Attacking a train near the Isthmus of Tehuantepec yesterday, bandits killed the entire military escort of twenty-five and two women passengers. A number of Catholics en route to the Eucharistic Congress at Mexico City were aboard the train, which was carrying both freight and passengers from Tierra Blanca, in the State of Vera Cruz, to Cordoba.

The bandits, having halted the train by ripping up rails, opened fire from ambush. Then they rushed the cars, looting them and robbing the passengers even to their outer clothing and shoes. Federal troops immediately set out in pursuit.

Another group of robbers, headed by a woman, today robbed the restaurant of an American country club on Chapultepec Heights, killing a watchman and wounding the chef, who is a Frenchman.

ZR-3 MAY SAIL THURSDAY.

But Probably Will Not Leave Germany Before Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The German-built airship ZR-3 may take off on her transatlantic flight to the United States Thursday, the Navy Department was informed today in an official cablegram.

The dispatch added, however, that "her departure is not probable prior to Saturday, Oct. 11."

TRANSIT COMPANIES URGED TO ADVERTISE

HOPE FOR FEWER ACCIDENTS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 6.—"Honest advertising" as a boon to business prosperity was emphatically advocated by W. H. Sawyer of East St. Louis at the opening session of the forty-third annual convention of the American Electric Railway Association on the Million-Dollar Pier today.

Under the direction of Mr. Sawyer, who is Chairman of the association's advertising activities, the electric railway industry has spent, through local companies, about $3,500,000 for advertising during the last year. But Mr. Sawyer says that is insufficient. "We're only scratching the surface," he asserted.

"No electric railway company can afford not to advertise in its local newspapers," Sawyer continued. "In fact, I contend that if know of entering in a local general public can afford not to advertise in local newspapers. We ask to be treated like other businesses. We, therefore, must conduct ourselves like other businesses and advertise in the local newspapers.

"Effective publicity has caused electric railway companies to be born anew. It has radically and effectively changed public sentiment by giving the public—our customers—the facts about their electric railways, so that they appreciate that every time they cooperate with us, every time they help us, they put us in a better position where we can and will help them.

"The public is entitled to know the facts regarding their public utility, just what is done and why it is being done. We cannot expect cooperation unless we give our customers full and complete knowledge of the facts, take them into our confidence, and do our part toward instilling into them a just pride in the electric railway company.

"Publicity not backed up by performance is useless, is worse than useless. No man, no company can afford to go on record with publicity unless he tells the true, honest facts. He has no right, no, to promise or mention something which he is not practically sure he can fulfill."

How to reduce Sunday accidents, particularly those caused by reckless automobile drivers, was discussed today by railway executives and experienced automobile driver, who takes to the road on Sunday, when traffic is heaviest, is responsible for most of the total and he must be curbed, it was declared.

All centrals for the relief of adults and education for children in the homes were agreed on as most effective by experts who handle damage claims for the railways. Not more laws, but enforcement of present laws, is the crying need, it was declared.

Instructing electric railway employes in safety work has become a regular part of the educational effort of hundreds of lines, the Accident Prevention Committee reported.

CONVERSES DONATE $475,000 TO HARVARD

Family of Late Steel Financier Gives Chemical Research Laboratory as Memorial.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—Bishop Lawrence, Chairman of the committee raising $10,000,000 to extend the national service of Harvard University, announced today a gift of $475,000 for the Division of Chemistry from the family of the late E. C. Converse of New York, one of the group of international financiers who founded the United States Steel Corporation. Bishop Lawrence said:

"The family of the late E. C. Converse of New York has given $475,000 to be used for the erection of a chemical research laboratory at Harvard as a memorial to Mr. Converse and to carry his name. The members of the family who have contributed this gift are Mrs. E. C. Converse, his daughters, Mrs. Benjamin Strong and Mme. Antoinette Converse, and his son, E. C. Converse.

"Although Mr. Converse was not himself a Harvard man, he came from distinguished New England ancestry and many of his forebears were graduates of the college. He had prepared for Harvard, but was prevented at the last moment from entering.

"His interest in educational effort was always intense. He endowed a professorship of banking in the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. The beautiful Converse Library at Amherst was a gift from Mr. Converse in memory of his brother, who was an Amherst graduate."

NOT GOING TO RUTGERS.

Dean Hawkes Denies Being Offered Presidency of College.

A report current for several days on the Columbia University campus to the effect that Dean Herbert E. Hawkes has been offered the Presidency of Rutgers College at New Brunswick, N. J., was denied yesterday by Dean Hawkes and by Dr. John H. Raven, Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Rutgers.

"I have not heard anything about such an offer," Dean Hawkes said. "No one has approached me on the subject. If there had been such an offer, or even if such an offer had been contemplated, I should have heard of it, I am sure."

Dr. Raven said that the selection of a President has been put in the hands of a special committee of twelve trustees, which in turn has appointed a subcommittee of four to make the choice. This subcommittee consists of Dr. Raven, Lenore F. Loree of New York, Philip M. Brett of New York and John Wyckoff Mettler of East Millstone, N. J.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Lafayette Memorial Committee, 15 West Forty-ninth Street, which created the Chateau Lafayette in France as a memorial to the allied soldiers killed in the World War announces that the number of children admitted must be reduced unless additional support is forthcoming. The chateau was bought by a group of Americans for sick and destitute children.

A directors' luncheon meeting of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants' Association will be held Oct. 21 at the Uptown Club, 17 East Forty-second Street.

The Sphinx Club will give a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria next Thursday evening in connection with the one hundredth anniversary celebration of Fifth Avenue. Robert Grier Cooke, President of the Fifth Avenue Association, and Horace A. Saks will be among the speakers.

A series of lectures on the Julius Bear Foundation is announced by the Faculty at Political Science of Columbia University, to be delivered by Inazuki Tsurumi on the subject of "Japan Today," beginning this evening in Havemeyer Hall of the university.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Saturday, 3¾@4¼ for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Combination Cloths Raised Again.

A second price advance on men's wear fabrics in which worsted and wool are combined was announced yesterday by the American Woolen Company. The range of the increase was from 5 to 12½ cents per yard, distributed by departments as follows: Department 1, 5 to 10 cents; Department 2, 5 to 7½ cents; Department 7, 5 to 7½ cents and Department 8A, 7½ to 12½ cents. It was explained that the first advance made by the company on these goods was due to the higher cost of wool content, while the second one partially reflects the higher cost of the worsted used.

More Favor for Fur Jacquettes.

Because of the warm weather recently, fur sales at retail continue to be described as fair. Medium priced merchandise figures largest in the consumer demand, with jacquettes showing an increase in popularity. In long coats, reports say that caracul and Hudson seal are the leaders. Natural muskrat, squirrel, mink, kolinsky, opossum and raccoon also stand out. In jacquettes, the leading furs are caracul, muskrat, Hudson seal and coney. In chokers those of fox pelts dominate the demand, with stone and baum marten following. Considerable stimulation of the demand is expected with the advent of cooler weather.

Silk Storage Stocks Show Rise.

Stocks of raw silk in storage here on Oct. 1 show a large increase over the amounts held in the first of the preceding month, according to figures issued yesterday by the Silk Association of America. The quantity was 42,260 bales, as against 30,076 on hand Sept. 1. Approximately deliveries to American mills during September also registered a marked increase, amounting to 36,886 bales compared with 29,518 bales in August. Total imports of raw silk during September were the largest in two years, the figure being 46,551 bales, while the August imports were 36,380 bales.

Gray Goods Prices Hold.

The break in cotton yesterday served to restrict trading in gray goods but did not lower the basis on which sellers were willing to transact business. There was a small volume of buying of print-cloths at prices unchanged from Saturday. In the transactions were sales of 39-inch 68-72s at 10 cents and of 38½-inch 64-60s at 9 cents. Sheetings were also quiet, but small business was done in 36-inch five-yard cloths at 5¾ cents, in 4.50s at 7¾ cents and in 4.10s at 7½ cents. For 37½-inch 48-square four-yard sheetings the asking price held firm at 10¾ cents. Drills and sateens were without feature.

Fall Outlook for Shirts.

A feeling of optimism prevails among some of the leading shirt manufacturers for a good Fall trade, the Spring and Summer slump having been broken early in September. One house is having difficulty in filling orders for its novelties among the colored effects with stiff cuffs, pleated bosoms and collar to match. Even November deliveries are out of the question in most cases, it is said, as it is impossible to obtain from France and England goods in sufficient quantities to satisfy the demand. The popularity of the colored collar shows no sign of abating, although, as in other lines, a shortage of the newer effects is inevitable, according to manufacturers of the more exclusive styles.

Opening of Botany Lines.

Official announcement was made yesterday that the Botany Worsted Mills would open its Spring line of women's wear fabrics on Thursday. The line is expected to be particularly strong in sports weaves, with the flannel division especially well represented. Cordod fabrics are also likely to come in for marked stress. New color treatment will be a feature, with the ashes of roses shades standing out as leaders.

Styles in Men's Neckwear.

French crêpes will be an outstanding feature in men's Spring neckwear, with growing demand for the various shades of purple, says a manufacturer of the higher grades. The demand for regimental stripes is still large. Business generally shows a slight increase over last year, although buyers are not inclined to place quantity orders. There will be a resulting shortage in novelty merchandise goods around holiday time, it is predicted in some quarters. The butterfly styles are no longer in demand, although the conservative bow ties are selling fairly well.

Silk and Sateen Bindings.

A silk or sateen binding suitable for blankets, bathrobes and kimonos is a leading item of one notion house. It comes in widths of from one to one-half inch, folded, with edges turned in ready to apply. Skinner satin is used for the better grade, the prices ranging from $21 to $27 per gross yards. A new fingerie tape, of genuine silk in novelty weaves with borders in a contrasting color, is also in great demand, and is largely superseding the wood-silk product which does not launder well.

Types of Vanity Boxes.

One novelty house is having great success with a "cigarette case" vanity box, made to retail for $1. It is of celluloid, in a large choice of colors, and is fitted with mirror, lip-stick, rouge and powder. In size it is about 2½ by 3 inches. When empty it may be used as a cigarette case. The same house also reports that a "Princess Pat" vanity case is in great demand. In size about 3 by 4 inches, it is strongly made of metal covered with leather, with a tooled Florentine inlay. Another style utilizes durable shoe satin as a covering, with applique bands of a contrasting color. These sell at from $24 to $30 a dozen wholesale.

Oriental Rug Demand.

The demand for Oriental rugs is well up to normal with one of the leading importers, who says that there is a growing demand for the better grades of Chinese rugs. Decorators are in favor the scatter sizes for the large living room, and the carpet sizes are consequently in demand, which is being met by the importers. One dealer stresses the point that the cheapest grades of Chinese and Persian rugs are a bad investment inasmuch as aside from the question of good taste they do not wear nearly so well as a good domestic. A 9 by 12 Chinese rug costing $175, he points out, cannot compare in appearance or wearing qualities with a good wilton or axminster at from $125 to $135. Indications for Fall business are good, it is said, in spite of the lateness of the Fall showing this year, which will not take place until after election.

NEW WEAVES SHOWN FOR SPRING SEASON

New developments in worsteds, directed principally toward lighter weight fabrics, and a continuance of leather finished cashmere weaves for coatings and the ensemble costume were the features of the Spring lines opened yesterday by the Forstmann & Huffmann Company. Much brighter colors ruled in the line, new "jewel tones" being a special feature. Prices on most of the line showed no change from those of the past season. Where advances occur they are small, ranging from 3 to 5 per cent. It was intimated, however, that the prices made are subject to upward revision "at any moment," due to the steadily increasing price of fine Australian wool. In the repeated fabrics which show no change in price are Juins, Piquetine Superior, Milanette, Charminette and Kermana, which have been in strong demand.

In the worsteds, Charmeen and Piquetine are now known as Helio-Charmeen and Helio-Piquetine, the prefix indicating their extreme lightness in weight. Serapheen in both plain and Ottoman weaves made from very thin yarns, is another of the new light weight fabrics, on the order of the firm's Patou crepe. It was stated by company officials that these fabrics "represent an entirely new development in the spinning and weaving of fine worsteds, hitherto regarded as impossible of accomplishment."

Another innovation in the worsteds, which is shown in several of the principal fabric qualities, is a new self stripe designated as "Braideen." This is a twisted weave and is introduced to replace hair line stripes and checks which have been abandoned because of extensive imitation. "Purisuede" is a novelty in the worsteds, having the characteristics of a suede finished fabric.

In the cashmere coating and suiting range, the general idea of the lightly woven, closely shorn fabric is developed in new weights and weaves. Kashmirsuede, a much lighter version of Kashmana, is an outstanding "number" in this group. It also includes "Iosepna," said to be the lightest weight cashmere ever made, and "Reginella," a silk and cashmere weave. While dyed in one color, the silk warp of the latter fabric gives it an unusual two-tone effect. Kashmirbloom and Jawmakin are continued from the Fall season, as is Kashmir Kermana, both in new developments of weight and finish.

Close to forty shades comprise the color range, which is characterized by a further featuring of bright silk-like colors which were first shown in woolen materials last Spring by the company. In addition to the regular range, "jewel shades" are featured in which the colors of large variety of jewels and minerals are reproduced. This range is especially stressed in a cashmere fabric on the order of Juina called "Jewel-tone." Among other outstanding colors are several versions of a bright blue, a tone which has been "played up" for several seasons. Other important new colors are gravel, gingersnap, wisteria, cicada and golden oak.

With respect to prices, the Forstmann & Huffmann Company made the following statement: "The prices quoted have been made possible only because the company covered its requirements for the wools necessary to begin Spring operations well ahead of the usual need and prior to the recent advances in prices. This advantage is being passed on to customers."

STATE PAYROLLS INCREASE.

Manufacturers Report a Rise of 1 Per Cent for August.

SEVENTH AV. DEAL INVOLVES $6,000,000

PLAN 22-STORY LOFTS

Structure Will Cost $3,500,000—Several Important Theatre Leases Made.

A notable addition to the group of buildings comprising the garment centre will be made as the result of a leasing deal closed yesterday when operators acquired a large corner plot for improvement with a tall structure. In the transaction the Wendell estate leased to the Millinery Center Building Corporation, represented by Herman A. Brand, attorney, the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. The lease is for a period of twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of $2,500,000, with the privilege of two renewals at a figure to be determined. This will mean the payment of a yearly rental of $100,000 plus income tax, which with the cost of the building will represent an investment of about $6,000,000.

The property fronts 98.9 feet on Seventh Avenue and 200 feet on Thirty-eighth Street. The lessee will erect a twenty-two-story building for high-class loft and showroom purposes, to be ready for occupancy Nov. 1, 1925. The building will cost $3,500,000.

Hayden, Stone & Co., bankers, are putting out a $2,000,000 Bond issue to cover the project. The building will be erected from plans by Henry I. Cobb and Henry I. Oser, architects. A. A. Brody & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

Theatre Properties Leased.

Three deals involving the leasing of important theatre properties were also closed yesterday. The Chanin Construction Company, Inc., have leased the Chanin Theatre, which they are now constructing on Forty-sixth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue, to the Shubert Theatre Corporation for a term of twenty-one years.

The site upon which the new theatre is being built replaces six old landmarks at 226 to 236 West Forty-sixth Street, being on the south side of the street, about 200 feet west of Broadway, adjacent to the Imperial Theatre, built last year.

The theatre has a frontage of 112 feet 6 inches and a depth of 100 feet with a seating capacity of 1,400.

The term of the lease is twenty-one years and a very substantial amount of cash as security or advanced rent was paid by the lessees to the owners upon the signing of the lease. The plans were designed by Herbert J. Krapp, architect, and the theatre is being built by the owners, The Chanin Construction Company, Inc., engineers and builders.

J. B. English, Inc., and Pease & Elliman have leased for the Lyric Playhouse Inc., to Joseph Oppenheimer of St. Louis, the Lyric Theatre and office building, 214-226 West Forty-third Street and 213 West Forty-second Street, for a term of sixty-three years at an aggregate rent of $10,080,000, or $160,000 a year.

The policy of the theatre will be changed to burlesque. Mr. Oppenheimer is connected with the Mutual Burlesque Circuit which operates through the West. Fox Film Corporation are occupying the theatre now and possession will be given in about twenty weeks. Andrew J. Cobe represented the Fox Film Corporation.

The Bethlehem Engineering Company has leased space in its building to be erected at 1,556-1,560 Broadway for a motion picture theatre, six hundred seats. There will be an entrance 18 feet by 80 feet, the theatre proper to be 100 by 65. The plans have been drawn by Thomas W. Lamb, architect, and the theatre will probably be ready for occupancy by March 1, 1925. This little theatre is intended to be the last word in theatrical construction of this kind and will be used as a presentation house for first run big features. The promoter and broker in the transaction was Andrew J. Cobe.

THE BRONX MARKET.

Winans Estate Sells Site to Buyer, Who Will Improve.

The estate of Henry D. Winans sold the vacant plot, 100 by 100 feet, on the east side of Jerome Avenue, 598 feet south of Gun Hill Road. The purchaser, John A. Sharp, who intends to build either a garage or a taxpayer, was represented by McLernon Brothers. Maurice Wertheim was the broker.

Commissioner Daniel L. Ryan of Mayor Hylan's Board of Transportation has purchased the corner dwelling at 2,054 Davidson Avenue. It occupies a plot 36 by 100 and was sold by William C. Bergen, the builder.

The Repla Realty Corporation sold to Nathan Schwartz the property, 74 by 105, on the west side of Southern Boulevard, 151 feet south of Barretto Street.

Commercial Leases.

Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., leased for the Wilgreen Corporation (David Zimmerman, President), to William H. Sullivan, doing business as Mitchell the Tailor, the corner store in the Emerson Building, 1,431-33 Broadway, for a long term of years.

After extensive alterations, the latter will occupy the premises.

Cross & Brown Company leased the entire building at 312 West Fifty-third Street for Frank A. Brady to Aalders Brothers, Inc., for a garage and repair shop for a term of years.

Weinberg & Gumbinner in conjunction with James Kyle & Sons leased for twenty-one years the premises 855-857 Third Avenue to Samuel Geller who will make extensive alterations. Olga Bookman is the owner of this property.

Architects to Meet.

The last meeting of the present administration and the first of the new of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects will take place tomorrow evening at the Fraternity Club Building, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street. D. Everett Waid, past President of the New York Chapter, recently elected President of the American Institute of Architects, will officially hand over the presidency to Benjamin Wistar Morris. An informal dinner will take place.

Flushing Builders Sell.

Johnston & Strongran, builders, report the sale through Halleran Agency of the brick Colonial house in course of construction situated on the West side of Twenty-seventh Street between State Street and Mitchell Avenue, Flushing, L. I.

The plot is 40 by 100 feet and the purchaser is John B. Griswold who will make the property his future home.

Lease With Option to Buy.

B. Osgood Fell & Co. leased for twenty-one years with the option of two renewals the premises 123 and 125 East Fifty-seventh Street, a plot 40 by 80 feet, improved with dwellings, to the Felcy Realty Company, builder, Thomas L. Cunningham, President. Dr. Franklin A. Dorman is the lessor. The lease carries an option to purchase.

Recent Buyers.

Bernard W. Fischer is the buyer of the dwelling at 172 West Ninety-fourth Street, and Frank Hall, of the house at 446 West 150th Street, recently sold.

Three Projects Involving About $3,100,000 for Winter Construction.

Plans were filed yesterday with the Building Department of Manhattan for three new apartment house projects estimated to cost in the aggregate about $3,100,000.

R. Candela, architect, filed the plans for the fifteen-story Wellston apartments which Anthony A. Paterno will build at the northeast corner of Amsterdam Avenue and Seventy-fifth Street, connecting with 174 West Seventy-sixth Street, estimated to cost $1,300,000.

J. E. R. Carpenter filed plans for Anthony Campagna to erect a fourteen-story building on a plot 155 by 92.1 at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Ninety-third Street, recently acquired from Samuel A. Herzog and Edgar A. Levy. Mr. Carpenter places the cost at $1,000,000.

Goldner & Goldner, architects, have completed the plans for a fifteen-story apartment house, which David J. Rubenstein will build at 260-262 West 100th Street, on a plot 100 by 100. Construction work is expected to begin about Nov. 1. The estimated cost is $800,000.

BUILDING CONGRESS MEETS.

Lucius R. Eastman, President of the Hills Brothers Company, and now President of the Merchants' Association of New York, will speak to the members and friends of the New York Building Congress at its first Fall luncheon meeting tomorrow at the Commodore Hotel, 12:30 o'clock. "Better Work Through Better Working Conditions" is the subject for discussion at the luncheon.

Members of the congress and other persons interested in problems affecting the building industry are invited to attend the series of monthly luncheons which are among the most important of the congress activities focusing attention as they do in a personal way to problems of special interest which come up from time to time. For the convenience of those attending, the meetings are scheduled so as to adjourn not later than 2 o'clock.

BIG HEIGHTS PLOT SOLD.

Dudley F. Sicher and others as executors and trustees of estate of Bernard Loth sold the tract of land containing about seventeen city lots, situated on the west side of Fort Washington Avenue, 340 feet north of West 187th Street, fronting 193.6 feet on Fort Washington Avenue and extending westerly to the easterly side of Northern Avenue, on which it fronts 190 feet, to the Wilstock Holding Corporation. Ely Maran, President, for development. This property was held at $180,000.

Mr. Maran has been very active in building on Fort Washington Avenue, St. Nicholas Avenue and other prominent avenues in this section for the past twenty years. The property just purchased is only a short distance south of the large holdings of John D. Rockefeller Jr. David Stewart was the broker.

ASTOR HOUSE LEASED.

F. Grosvenor Goodridge of Connecticut Takes Vincent Astor Dwelling.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co., Inc., have leased for Vincent Astor the five-story American basement dwelling, 7 East Sixty-fifth Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, on a lot 25 by 100 feet, to F. Grosvenor Goodridge of Pomfret, Conn., for a long term of years.

Buys Lexington Avenue Corner.

Tankoos, Smith & Co. have sold for the Schulte Cigar Stores Company to a client of Masten & Nichols the property at Lexington Avenue, southeast corner of Forty-fifth Street, a four-story store and apartment building having a frontage on Lexington Avenue of 79 feet and a frontage on Forty-fifth Street of 18.9 feet. The entire property has been leased for a term of twenty-one years to the Burnet Corporation, who own and operate the Nedick Orange Drink establishments. The lease contains a privilege of termination if the property is required for any large improvement in connection with adjoining or abutting properties. The property was held at $175,000.

$325,000 Loan Placed.

Lawrence, Blake & Jewell have placed for the 269 West Seventy-second Street Corporation a first mortgage loan of $325,000 for a term of years on the property 267-269 West Seventy-second Street, now being improved with a fifteen-story apartment house of the highest class construction.

Hewson Wolfe & Co. have negotiated a building and permanent loan of $65,000 for the Vyse Construction Company, Inc., Philip Zeiring, President, secured by first mortgage covering apartment to be erected on the northeast corner of Vyse Avenue and Jennings Street.

Waterfront Sale on Staten Island.

The property fronts on Kill van Kull and on Bank Street about 125 feet. It was purchased in 1896 by Colonel Geo. B. M. Harvey and General Samuel Thomas interests and was developed as the first power plant for Staten Island traction lines.

It has been acquired for the manufacture of cement brick and roof tiles by a new process and for the handling of building materials.

"Literary Digest" forecasts
Presidential Election Outcome
I am not doing any "Forecasting"
BUT—here is a tip for you!
Corona-Flushing Subway Lots are already the Real Winners
You do not have to rely upon forecasts and predictions to see for yourself how the Borough of Queens is growing along Roosevelt Ave.—the route of the CORONA—FLUSHING SUBWAY.
THE ENORMOUS INCREASES shown in subway ticket sales at the various stations of the Corona Division of the Queensboro Subway say as plainly as words: "This is the way to the Land of Profits."
An 1,800% Increase in 6 Years
SUBWAY TICKET SALES at Alburtis Ave. station, Corona Division, Queensboro Subway in 1917 were 266,500—Subway ticket sales in 1920 were 2,703,200—Subway ticket sales in 1923 were 4,701,884.
MY ADVICE to all speculators, investors, builders, homeseekers and lot buyers, who are looking for a real opportunity to buy "Subway" lots, and to make money, is to go to-day to the Alburtis Ave. subway station of the Corona Division of the Queensboro Subway and see for themselves the extension of the SUBWAY now being BUILT RIGHT THROUGH THESE CORONA—FLUSHING SUBWAY LOTS.
"My only concern for the public's good in viewing this ridiculously simple and wonderful opportunity for the plain people to buy some of these Corona—Flushing 5-cent fare subway lots, and to make the money that the operators should make, is that not enough of the people with a few dollars and an intelligent desire to make money will take the time and trouble to visit these Corona—Flushing 5-cent fare subway lots, and see for themselves the money-making opportunities they will miss by not going to see them, and by not attending this Absolute Auction Sale and buying a few lots at their own price."

Steinway BUILDING
109—113 West 57th Street
106—116 West 58th Street
A 15 Story Office and Business Building
Office Location
THE location of an office building is a matter of moment to those who transact their business with patrons or clients of the better type. Steinway and Sons are erecting the New Steinway Building with this fact in mind, both in its relation to their own customers, and those of the other tenants who will share their new building with them.
Aside from the architectural beauty of the building, the exceptional arrangement of the floors, the splendid light, the flexibility of the space, the modern and unusually complete equipment and service all represent the determination of its owners to provide a business building of outstanding desirability, in which space may be leased at the cost of comparable space elsewhere.
Leases are being made for occupancy during the Spring of 1925. We invite you to see the plans, and learn the details of the New Steinway Building.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The disturbance that was over Ontario Sunday night has moved rapidly eastward to Eastern Quebec, attended by local showers in the lower lake regions and the St. Lawrence Valley. The Far Western disturbance has moved slowly eastward to Utah, and another area of low pressure has moved rapidly southeastward from Alaska to Alberta, where it was central Monday night. The barometer was high almost generally Monday night from the Plains States eastward to Bermuda. In addition to the precipitation in connection with the Northeastern disturbance, local rains have occurred within the last twenty-four hours in portions of Florida, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Nevada and in Northern and Central California. The temperature was higher Monday throughout the Rocky Mountain and Northern Plateau regions and the Northern Plains States and it prevailed considerably above normal in the Western and Southern States.

The indications are for generally fair weather Tuesday and Wednesday in the Washington forecast district, except that local showers are probable in the Florida Peninsula Tuesday and Wednesday and in Ohio and Kentucky Wednesday. The temperature will be somewhat lower in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States Tuesday and will change but little elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the next two days.

Post Office Notices

Postmaster Morgan announces that transatlantic mails are due at New York on the SS BERENGARIA, due Oct. 10, with mails from Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Lithuania, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Rumania, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

Postmaster Morgan announces that, beginning on or about Nov. 15, the London, England, Post Office will process the letter mail for the stations of mail "P" Wall Street, Trinity and Hudson Terminal Stations which comprises the district south of Chambers Street, west of Broadway, and south of Worth Street, Chatham Square and Catharine Streets east of Broadway provided the station of delivery appears as part of the address.

This arrangement will greatly expedite the delivery of mail from London, and patrons in the district mentioned are requested to instruct their London correspondents to include the Post Office station of delivery in the address.

Postmaster Morgan announces that mails of the following dates: Auckland, Sept. 15; Wellington, Sept. 16, which arrived at San Francisco per steamer MAUNGANUI, were dispatched East on Oct. 3, and are due in New York tomorrow.

Autumn Days on the Hudson

SEE the Hudson's wooded shores, now brilliant in the browns and reds and yellow tints of early Autumn. See a September sunset in the upper reaches of the river—the purple haze—the foliage drooping from the banks. Autumn days are numbered. If you've never seen the river in September, you really haven't seen the Hudson.

Those who have visited the Yellowstone and Glacier National Parks, the St. Lawrence with its "thousand islands," the Saguenay and Lake St. John will tell you there is nothing finer, nothing more majestic than the Hudson—right here, at your very door.

Steamers run until October 19

WALK-OVER'S FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Walk-Over

Fifth Avenue Shoe Shop

Paris has spoken. The silhouette for fall is molded. Whether the waist line be high, low, or non-existent, the costume is molded tightly to the figure. Whether the skirt be flared, slashed, or tunic-draped, it must be short.

With such a silhouette, your shoes must fit. They dare not yawn at the sides with every step. They need not gape at the heel. Pumps for fall must follow the molded, clinging silhouette—and where but in Walk-Overs can you find that snug, affectionately clinging fit that the uncopyable Walk-Over narrow heel gives.

Here are the correct types of daytime pumps for fall. You must choose from these or similar styles. Make your selection here, in Fifth Avenue's Tailored Shoe Salon de luxe, and know that the fit of your pumps is as correct as their smart style.
